Illinois History Day

By Lacy McDonald
Genealogy & Local History Manager

I am considered something of a history expert. But in just three days, the students who participated in Illinois History Day 2016 taught me a phenomenal amount about the Prairie State

I served as a judge at two regional competitions and at the state level this year. The rules required all projects to be about Illinois, and the national theme was "Exploration, Encounter, Exchange in History." Rocky Fork and the Underground Railroad, Hamilton Primary School, Robert Wadlow, and even My Just Desserts restaurant all made appearances as local history topics.

I was extremely impressed with the projects I saw. These students put so much work into their research: they visited libraries and museums, conducted interviews, and clearly spent hours poring over old newspapers

Illinois is divided into four regions, and Alton is right on the border of two of those regions: Jersey County participates in the Central Region competition at the Abraham Lincoln Presidential Library in Springfield, and Madison County participates in the Southern Region competition at Southern Illinois University Carbondale. Projects judged as superior advance to the state level, also in Springfield. Some projects make it all the way to National History Day in College Park, Maryland.

My friend Amy, an archaeologist with the U.S. Army Corp of Engineers, joined me as a judge at the Central Region, and Hayner Youth & Young Adult Manager/Education Liaison Sharon Windham accompanied me to State. Judges hailed from all over Illinois and included high school history teachers, Illinois State Museum employees, and college professors.

Everyone was divided into teams of two to review projects, and we had some time to chat before judging started. My State judging partner retired from a long career with the government, working at the IRS and National Weather Service. Sharon's partner had been CFO of the city of Chicago while they built Millennium Park. We ended up learning a lot from students and other judges alike.

When all was said and done, I'd driven 592 miles, visited tourist attractions across the state of Illinois (hello Route 66 Cozy Dog Drive In!), and judged 27 projects. Next year Sharon and I will most likely judge the state competition only, but our goal for this year was to understand what Illinois History Day was about so that Hayner Library can better serve students and teachers in the area who would like to participate in the future

If you would like more information about the process, please let us know!

Be Ready to Vote! Register at Hayner Library

The Hayner Public Library District offers many services to our patrons—including voter registration. Many members of the library staff are Deputy Registrars, who are able to register patrons to vote. Voter registration is usually available during normal library hours; however, you may wish to call the library at 462-0677 to ensure a Deputy Registrar is on duty before you visit.

The last day to register to vote in the November 2016 election is Tuesday, October 11, 2016. The Hayner Public Library District will offer voter registration all day on Tuesday, October 11, until 8 p.m. at the Downtown Library and 9 p m. at the Alton Square Library.

According to the Madison County Clerk's office, you may register to vote if you are a United States citizen and a resident of your Madison County precinct address for at least 30 days immediately prior to an election.

Patrons who wish to register to vote must furnish two forms of identification, one of which must include your current name and residence address.

Madison County offers Grace Period Registration to voters who miss the registration deadline. Grace Period Registration is offered from the close of registration through Election Day and must be performed at the Madison County Clerk's office in Edwardsville. Voters who participate in Grace Period Registration must also vote at the time of registration

For more information on voter registration, early voting, Grace Period Registration, polling locations, absentee voting, sample ballots, and more, please visit the Madison County Clerk's website at www.madisonvotes.com and click on the Elections link.

Summer Reading Program 2016

Young patrons of Hayner Public Library had a wonderful time at this year's Summer Reading Program, "Read for the Win." The KidsSpace staff kept them busy with craft times, performers, movies, puppet shows, and stories.

The program drew in more than 300 kids over six weeks. Each participant was rewarded each week with a prize and a raffle ticket for one of our three grand prizes. At the end of the program participants were treated to a party held at the Alton High School Commons where they were entertained by Laughing Matter. Each participant also received a free book, snacks, and a certificate for all their hard work.

At the End-of-the-Summer-Reading Party a ticket was drawn for each of the three grand prizes. The winner of the Razor and Helmet was Ashley Stoeckel. The winner of the Kindle Fire was Everett Jumper. The winner of the Cardinal Basket was Aubrie Hancock. We hope to see everyone again next year at our 2017 Summer Reading Program, "Read by Design." Congratulations to our winners!

We would also like to thank our sponsors: Alton High Athletics, Marquette Athletics, Dollar General, and Rachel Brady's Creative Dance Studio.

2016 Teen Summer Reading Program "Read for the Win"

The 2016 Teen Summer Reading Program, "Read for the Win," was another great success! Teens were offered the opportunity to catch up on their reading for pleasure. Participants won great weekly prizes for their diligent reading and attended a weekly fun day at the Riverbender.com Community Center. We would like to congratulate this year's grand prize winner for the most hours of reading, Tristian Turner. We would also like to thank all the participants. We hope to see everyone back for next year's reading program.

An Evening of Classic Elton Benefiting the Lewis & Clark Music Program

November 10, 2016, 7:30 p.m.
Ann Whitney Olin Theatre in The Hatheway Cultural Center
Godfrey campus of Lewis & Clark Community College
Tickets: $20 General Admission

You won't want to miss this outstanding benefit concert featuring Dogs of Society–The Ultimate Elton Rock Tribute to be held at Lewis and Clark Community College. This concert kicks off The Dogs of Society Scholarship at L&C with 50 percent of the night's proceeds directly funding this financial resource for L&C music students to further their studies in music production and performance ensembles. Dogs of Society is thrilled to be a part of this initiative to support music education!

Dogs of Society ROCKS the spot-on sounds of classic '70's Elton, with all the heat of the original vinyl, in an ALL-LIVE rock concert experience. The Dogs deliver a rockin' musical experience more faithful to the spirit of the classic Elton John recordings, rather than a flamboyant imitation. With the broad appeal of Elton John's well-loved catalog of hits, The Dogs believe Elton's songs are the star of their show, from smash hits like "Bennie and the Jets" to "Tiny Dancer" and "Crocodile Rock" to deeper cuts like "Funeral for a Friend," "Madman Across the Water," "Mona Lisas & Mad Hatters" and many, many more.

Dogs of Society has ROCKED crowds as large as 8,000 at arenas, large outdoor shows, city-wide celebrations, tribute concert series and national fundraisers, plus SOLD OUT shows at intimate theatre venues. Featuring a killer lineup of accomplished musicians including John Gore as Elton, Steve Johnston, Louis Michael, Curt Shaw, and Dave Johnson, the seasoned pros of Dogs of Society can often be found playing shows throughout the Midwest. The Dogs' Keyboardist, Louis Michael, is also the Music Coordinator and a Professor of Music at Lewis & Clark.

General admission tickets ($20) can be purchased at Riverbender.com or at the Lewis & Clark Community College Music office, 618-468-4731. In commemoration and recognition of Veteran's Day, veterans may purchase half-price advance tickets (available through Veteran Services at LCCC, 618-468-5500).

The Lewis & Clark Music Department has been a great partner in supporting Hayner's Music Series, and we are happy to help promote this worthy event!

Food for Fines

Yearly, we have held a fine amnesty program, Food for Fines, in October. We will waive current fines on Hayner material if you contribute a nonperishable food item for each fine during the amnesty period.

During the holiday season, many community organizations hold drives to support centers such as the Crisis Food Center, but we often forget about helping those in need at other times of the year. We are holding this amnesty program in October to help people without waiting for the support of "holiday generosity." It may also help make Thanksgiving a happier time for families in need.

From October 1 through October 31, 2016, anyone who has an overdue item can pay his or her fine with a canned food item. Library materials must be returned with food donations, at least one food item per fine, and only Hayner materials are eligible. All food items collected throughout the month will be given to the Crisis Food Center in Alton. Of course, even if you don't have fines, feel free to donate items to help others in our community.

Perhaps you have some Hayner materials that got lost under the couch or behind the DVD player. Now is a great opportunity to return those items to the library and avoid the fines that have accrued. Fine amnesty is a great way to support critically important community organizations such as the Crisis Food Center—and it is also a great opportunity to return "lost" materials to the library so they can be reshelved for circulation. Thank you for your support.

America's Chess Board by James H. Taylor

You may recognize Alton High School Senior James Herschel Taylor from his spot on Season 2 of Genealogy Roadshow. In August 2014, the Hayner Genealogy & Local History Library hosted a production team from PBS while they filmed an episode of their nationally syndicated television show. James, who was 14 at the time of the filming, had been involved in researching his own family's genealogy since he was eight years old. Over the years, through contact with extended family members and his own genealogical research, James had traced his family origins back to Mali. James was picked to tell his story on Genealogy Roadshow from over 1,000 other applicants. The episode aired in early 2015.

James can now add published author to his list of accomplishments. After nine months of research and writing, America's Chess Board came out this August. James is part of the chess club at school and decided to use chess to explain American society. James wanted to write about the relationships of different groups in America and how the history of this country formed the power divisions and shaped the lives of ethnic groups that are here today. He uses the chess pieces—kings, queens, rooks, bishops, knights, and pawns—to represent these groups.

James's parents, James and Berhonda, encouraged him and supported him from the beginning in this endeavor and in his past genealogy research. His publisher and mentor, Millie McGhee-Morris of New Writers in Action, guided him through the editing and publishing process.

James hopes his work inspires others to do research and to be kind to others. His future plans include going to college to study history. He's especially interested in biblical history. James mentioned that the Indiana Jones films first sparked his interest in history.

James will be at the Genealogy & Local History Library at 2 p.m. on October 22 to sign copies of his book. Please see the Special Events section for more information on the book signing.

Wreaths Across America

Wreaths Across America is a grassroots movement begun in 1992 by Maine businessman Morrill Worcester. The organization's mission, "Remember, Honor, Teach," is carried out by coordinating wreath-laying ceremonies on a specified Saturday in December at Arlington National Cemetery and at veterans' cemeteries and other locations in all 50 states and beyond. Through the wreath-laying ceremonies and other coordinated events, the organization spreads its message about the importance of remembering our fallen heroes, honoring those who serve, and teaching our children about the sacrifices made by veterans and their families to preserve our freedoms.

Thanks to local volunteers, this organization and its mission have been active in Alton since 2007. On Saturday, December 17, 2016, our community will participate in the national Wreaths Across America ceremony. The ceremony will start at 11 a.m. in the Alton National Cemetery at Pearl Street and Joesting Avenue. Third- and fourth-grade students from St. Ambrose Catholic School in Godfrey, with the assistance of area veterans, will participate and help lay the wreaths on the veterans' graves.

In 2015, through community financial donations, 560 wreaths were placed on gravesites in our local national cemetery. Every $30 of contributions enables the local organization to purchase three 20-inch live balsam wreaths.

Every dollar you can donate helps ensure a wreath at every veteran's gravesite. Help continue the success of this program by sending a financial donation to Wreaths Across America, PO Box 181, Alton, IL 62002.
For more information, call Margaret Hopkins at 618-474-2005.
More information is also available on the Web site www.wreathsacrossamerica.org.

Support our community in carrying forward the mission "Remember, Honor, Teach." Join the whole country in honoring our veterans, many of whom forfeited their own future Christmas celebrations for us.

MOVIES

It by Stephen King: Nobody writes about growing up better than Stephen King, especially if you are a bit of an outcast. That's what makes It so scary! The book flows from situations that all kids face as they are growing up—scary enough—then puts those same kids in unimaginably menacing situations. Pennywise is one of the scariest clowns ever! —Brenda

Abbot and Costello Meet Frankenstein (Not Rated): Two bungling baggage handlers find themselves face-to-face with Dracula, the Frankenstein monster, and the Wolf Man—with hilarious results. This film is recognized by the American Film Institute and the Library of Congress' National Film Registry. —Mary

Shadow of the Vampire (Rated R): A real vampire is secretly hired to play Dracula in a 1920s film—with terrifying results. A dark and genuinely creepy award-winning film that earned Willem Dafoe an Academy Award nomination. —Mary

Hocus Pocus (Rated PG): Family-friendly Halloween movie about three sister witches who are resurrected in Salem, Massachusetts, on Halloween night. It's up to two teenagers, a young girl, and an immortal cat to put an end to the witches' reign of terror once and for all —Mary & Shannon

It's the Great Pumpkin, Charlie Brown (Not Rated): Classic animated film that follows Charlie Brown, Snoopy, Linus, and the gang on their Halloween night adventures The music alone (provided by the Vince Guaraldi Sextet) is reason enough to watch! —Mary

One of the scariest movies I have ever seen was Misery, based on the book by Stephen King. I couldn't watch the part with Kathy Bates using the sledgehammer; yet I still was compelled to finish it. It really grabbed hold of me. Even the ending was hard to shake off! —Jean

Texas Chainsaw Massacre: I'm not easily scared by movies, but for months after watching this one I had to fall asleep listening to music because I was convinced I heard a chainsaw revving up outside! —Theresa

Wait Until Dark: A cat-and-mouse thriller that will keep you on the edge of your seat until the very end. —Theresa

Michael Jackson's Thriller: Not exactly a movie, but this music video scared me when I was a little kid. I loved the dance sequence (of course) but I could barely watch the werewolf transformation scene at the beginning, and the zombies rising from their graves was terrifying! —Theresa

Practical Magic: Sally and Gillian Owens, born into a magical family, have mostly avoided witchcraft themselves But when Gillian's vicious boyfriend, Jimmy Angelo, dies unexpectedly, the Owens sisters give themselves a crash course in hard magic. Rated: PG-13 —Shannon

The Nightmare Before Christmas: Jack Skellington, the pumpkin king, has become bored with his routine of frightening people in the "real world." He accidentally stumbles on Christmastown, all bright colors and warm spirits; he plots to bring Christmas under his control by kidnapping Santa Claus and taking over the role. Rated: PG —Shannon

Psycho!!! I couldn't take a shower for years. —Jan

BOOKS

Intensity by Dean Koontz: A novel that lives up to its name. It's the only time I can remember holding my breath while reading, because there were parts of this book that were so intense. —Theresa

I have read some of Ruth Rendell books that are pretty scary, psychological thrillers, such as The Water's Lovely. —Jean

The Legend of Sleepy Hollow by Washington Irving: A tale of haunting set in the 1790s countryside of a Dutch settlement (what is now New York) An American classic. —Mary

The Berenstain Bears and the Spooky Old Tree by Stan and Jan Berenstain: Delightfully "scary" children's book that tells the tale of three adventurous little bears who happen upon a "spooky old tree." —Mary

It's been a while since I've read any, but I always loved R. L. Stine teen horror books. One that sticks out in my memory in particular is Beach House Basically, a group of teens are all hanging out at a beach house together and suddenly they all start getting killed one-by-one, and no one knows who the killer is. It's a good level of mild suspense for younger readers, but I feel like I would enjoy reading it now, too, even just for nostalgic reasons. —Morgan

Nonfiction—

Ackroyd, Peter. Alfred Hitchcock
Amen, Daniel. The Brain Warrior's Way: Ignite Your Energy and Focus, Attack Illness and Aging, Transform Pain into Purpose

Hector (Courier)
"As the person who makes deliveries to the Hayner homebound patrons, to me it is rewarding to bring materials to people who otherwise would not be able to benefit from the great resources that the library offers. A lot of them are very lonely and physically ill, but they let me know with a smile that they appreciate the service we're providing. I have been blessed to be able to offer words of encouragement for which they are very grateful. I enjoy what I'm doing and personally don't see this as simply a job but as an opportunity to touch people's lives with kindness."

The Hayner Public Library District

Serving Alton, Godfrey & Foster Township — Winter 2017

A Landmark Year!

This year marks a special anniversary in the life of The Hayner Public Library District—125 years! While the beginnings of The Hayner Public Library District date back to 1852 when the library was known as the Alton Library Association, it wasn't until 1891 when John Hayner funded the construction of a library building in honor of his late wife, Jennie, that the library took its first steps towards becoming what we now know today as The Hayner Public Library District.

Over the years, The Hayner Public Library District has grown by leaps and bounds—including two more locations as well as increasing the collections and services offered to patrons. The original building, located at 401 State Street, is still being used today to house the Genealogy & Local History Library. Two more locations, the Downtown Library at 326 Belle Street, and the Alton Square Library, at Alton Square Mall, were added over time to help meet the demands of a growing population.

Originally the library served only the residents of Alton. By establishing itself as a library district rather than a city library, the collection and services of the library were extended to the residents of Alton, Godfrey, and eventually Foster Township. Today the library covers a service population of nearly 49,000 patrons and houses a collection of more than 242,000 items! As a member of the Illinois Heartland Library System, patrons of The Hayner Public Library District have access to over 10,000,000 items via Interlibrary Loan services.

By the early 1900's, the library was an established part of the community's civic and cultural scene. And that tradition continues today. As was the case with most libraries in the early 20th century, The Hayner Public Library District began with a collection of books. Today, that collection has grown to include not only books but a myriad of other materials and programming.

The Hayner Public Library District strives to offer materials that bring education and enjoyment to the residents of Alton, Godfrey, and Foster Township. We offer brand new bestsellers, audiobooks, large print books, DVDs (which hit our shelves the same day they are released in stores), and music CDs. We also offer kits on a wide range of subjects which are especially wonderful for teachers, students, and homeschooling families. We even check out fishing poles and telescopes!

The Hayner Public Library District also offers digital services to patrons—all conveniently accessible from home 24/7! You can check out e-books and e-audiobooks any time you like using the Cloud Library. You can also order materials, check your account, pay fines, and renew materials all by visiting our website at www.haynerlibrary.org. You can also gain access to dozens of databases, including Consumer Reports and the Testing & Education Reference Center, by visiting our website. The Testing & Education Reference Center allows you to take practice tests for the ACT, SAT, GED, ASVAB, and other school tests as well as career testing for nursing, real estate, firefighting, police, social work, and the postal service. The Testing & Education Reference Center also offers basic computer help, and help creating resumes and cover letters. These databases are free of charge and can be accessed at the library or at home.

And speaking of digital services, have you tried Wowbrary yet? Wowbrary is a free weekly email delivered to your inbox every Saturday morning. It contains a list of every new item added to the Hayner Library collection that week. It's a free and easy way to keep up with everything new at the library! Just visit www.wowbrary.org to sign up.

Have you ever visited the library only to realize you left your library card at home? Install the Keychain app on to your smart phone or other mobile device and you'll always have easy access to your library card.

The Hayner Public Library is also known for providing high quality programming designed for every age group and interest. We offer wonderful musical programs, interesting speakers, crafting programs, eco-friendly gardening programs, book clubs, author readings and book signings, and much, much more. For children we offer story times, a Spanish story time, craft times, special performers, an annual Summer Reading program, Bow-wow Pow-wows (where children learn confidence in their reading abilities by reading to certified therapy dogs), and more. We partner with the Riverbender.com Community Center to bring fun, quality programming to teens.

The library offers valuable services such as a test proctoring, voter registration, and homebound delivery all free of charge.

The Genealogy & Local History Library offers a vast and wonderful collection of local history materials including The Telegraph digital archive (dating back to 1836), local yearbooks, city directories, area cemetery indexes, the Robert K. Graul photo collection, local cookbooks, historical maps, displays, genealogical databases, and much more. The Genealogy & Local History Library also offers friendly staff who are happy to help you research your local history question or your family tree.

The Reference Department is another valuable service offered by The Hayner Public Library District. Our reference librarians are available to help you answer any questions you may have on nearly any topic. The Internet may be able to provide a quick answer—but sometimes its accuracy is questionable. Our reference librarians provide accurate, quality information free of charge.

When John Hayner established the Jennie D. Hayner Memorial Library in memory of his wife Jennie in 1891, he couldn't have imagined how far the library would come and all of the wonderful services and materials that would be offered to the residents of the community. We look forward to the next 125 years and all the exciting developments they will bring.

Great Staff Picks in time for Valentine's Day

BOOKS

The Gallaghers of Ardmore Trilogy (Jewels of the Sun, Tears of the Moon, and Heart of the Sea) by Nora Roberts made me want to pack up and move to Ireland in search of the love of my life! – Lauren

Great Expectations by Charles Dickens is a coming-of-age story of an orphan named Pip that lives with his abusive sister and kind Uncle Joe. He is told to visit Ms. Havisham at her estate to keep her company. She introduces Pip to her daughter Estella with whom he instantly falls in love. The book details his life as a poor boy to man, loves and heartaches, and wealth and poverty. One of Dickens' best novels. – Derek

The Longest Ride by Nicolas Sparks – Marilyn

Pride and Prejudice by Jane Austen: Three words: Hello, Mr. Darcy! – Mary

For a truly unique but no less touching and heartbreaking romance, The Time Traveler's Wife by Audrey Niffenegger is one of my all-time favorite books. They did make a movie based on the book, but it didn't capture the book's unforgettable and moving characters. – Brenda

DVDs

The Age of Adaline: This movie is a modern day fairy tale with a classic Hollywood feel. Blake Lively perfectly embodies that sentiment. Harrison Ford will wreck you emotionally the first time he appears on screen. The overall warmth of this movie, from the narration to the colors to the story itself, will mean you'll think about and watch this movie the whole year around. – Andrew

Eternal Sunshine of the Spotless Mind: Quirky, funny, and heartbreaking. It is one of the best modern romance movies of the last 20 years. – Derek and Theresa

The Holiday: Cameron Diaz and Kate Winslet swap houses, one in Brittan and one in America. Romances develop for both of them. – Stephanie

It's Complicated – Marilyn

Julie & Julia: I admit that I wasn't a huge fan of the book. But, I get a lump in my throat watching Meryl Streep and Stanley Tucci bring the love story of Paul and Julia Child to life. Lovely. – Mary

Pretty Woman: This is one of my all-time favorite movies. One of the reasons is the scene where Edward lends Vivian the $250,000 necklace before the opera. At the very end, he pretends to snap the lid closed which was an unscripted moment the producers kept in. – Penny

Sleepless in Seattle – Marilyn

Something's Gotta Give – Marilyn

True Lies: A lesson in romance to be learned in this action-packed hit: the key ingredient in spicing up a dulled marriage is revealing to your wife that you've been lying to her for 15 years and you're a spy for the government. – Theresa

You've Got Mail – Marilyn

SONGS/ALBUMS

Crush by Dave Matthews Band – Theresa

Embraceable You by Chet Baker recorded in 1957 (but not released until 1995 to so-so reviews): I find this album quiet, romantic, and dreamy. – Mary

It Takes Two (from the musical Into the Woods): A cheery song that reminds us that marriage is a partnership, and, in order for it to be successful, you have to work together. – Theresa

Lucky by Jason Mraz featuring Colbie Caillat – Theresa

My Funny Valentine by Frank Sinatra – Jan

Young People Making History

We had an absolute blast hosting various student groups and young authors at the Genealogy & Local History Library in October 2016. At the beginning of the month, children, parents, and grandparents from Art of Universal Language came to make family trees and learn how to do history research. Art of Universal Language is a community group for children between the ages of 7 – 17 led by Allen Collins. The group operates out of the Deliverance Temple on 6th Street in Alton. It is not officially part of the church but uses the space to instruct children in art, education, integrity, and technology. The children looked at census records and city directory listings of some of their ancestors. Since we have the Alton Telegraph digitized from 1836 – 2012, they were even able to find birth announcements, awards, and other newspaper articles about themselves.

The next week, Genealogy & Local History manager Lacy McDonald joined Seymour Bluffs' author Phyllis Bechtold as a guest speaker at the Alton School District in-service training day at Alton High School. Lacy and Phyllis spoke about Captain Benjamin Godfrey's life and legacy. Phyllis is writing a Seymour Bluffs children's book about Captain Godfrey with Lacy doing all the historical fact-checking and Lexa Browning-Needham's Alton High School graphic communications class working on all the illustrations.

On October 22, one of our favorite local high school students, James Herschel Taylor, had a book signing at the library. He recently published America's Chess Board and donated a copy to Hayner Library (JR 305.8 TAY) so feel free to come read it in the library.

Right before Halloween, we hosted Keegan Bennett's class from Alton Middle School for a seasonally-appropriate project. The students researched prominent Altonians buried at Alton City Cemetery. The Genealogy & Local History staff provided the names, relevant books and newspaper articles, and cemetery maps. The students continued their field trip at the cemetery, visiting the grave of each person they learned about. They researched Jane Watson Basset (1881-1968), Edmund Beall (1848-1920), Dorothy Colonius (1906-1979), Thomas Dimmock (1830-1909), John E. Hayner (1827-1903) & Jennie D. Hayner (1837-1888), Isaac Kelly (1825-1920), Stephen Harriman Long (1784-1864), Elijah Lovejoy (1802-1837), Henry McPike (1825-1910), Lucas Pfeiffenberger (1834-1918), Dr. George Samuels (1884-1970), and Eunice Smith (1875-1955). The students made a beautiful paper wreath for us to say thank you, and it is on display at the Genealogy & Local History Library.

Please get in touch with us if you'd like to bring your group to the library. We love seeing patrons of all ages, and if you're interested in local history, genealogy, art, architecture, or food (we have an extensive cookbook collection, after all), we're happy to plan something special for you.

Alton's Duck Factory of 1910

Alton's history has always been rich in industrialization and open to free enterprise in almost any line of work. Recently, while browsing the Alton Telegraph Newspaper Archive database, I was surprised to find that in January of 1910 the Happy Heine Hunting and Fishing Club opened a duck factory on East Second Street (now East Broadway) in downtown Alton.

What really caught my eye, and quickly my undivided attention, was the startling headline to this front-page article. It read, "Ducks with dislocated necks made good as new." After reading such a headline my curiosity went wild, and without hesitation I decided I just had to get to the bottom of this "quacky" mystery. I needed to find out what tragic experiences were befalling our local waterfowl that would necessitate opening a factory designed to alleviate these calamities.

After a little more newspaper research, I learned this new enterprise was the inspiration of Altonians Henry Tonsor and Henry Joerger. Both men were prominent members of the Happy Heine Hunting and Fishing Club and were avid outdoorsmen. It was apparent that the reporter of this bemusing news story was confident that both men had the doctoral skills required to put these broken birds back on the water.

After reading the entire article, more than one time I might add, I realized that I had been easily deceived by that startling headline. The ducks with broken necks were not the fine-feathered, egg-laying, airborne beauties I had envisioned. They were wooden decoys used for hunting purposes on the islands of the Illinois River. A tidal wave of relief flooded my soul when I realized there had been no waterfowl genocide occurring among our local duck population in the early 1900s.

The Telegraph Newspaper Archive dates back to 1836 and is a great way to learn not only about Alton's history but your family history as well. Maybe you can find that one of your local ancestors was as industrious and conscientious as the members of the Happy Heine Hunting and Fishing Club.

Stay tuned—in an upcoming newsletter I will tell you about the time The Alton Evening Telegraph announced that German submarines had invaded our local lakes and streams.

—Pam Bierman

February is African American History Month

The origins of African American-History Month began in 1926 when historian and author Carter G. Woodson (1875-1950) pioneered the celebration of "Negro History Week." Woodson, a graduate of Berea College, University of Chicago, and Harvard University, was the founder of the Association for the Study of Negro Life and History, now called the Association for the Study of African American Life and History.

The week-long celebration was designated to be held during the second week of February to coincide with the celebrations of the birthdays of Frederick Douglass and Abraham Lincoln. The first month-long celebration of African-American history took place on the campus of Kent State University in 1970 where it had been proposed the previous year, and it gained official recognitıon by the government ın 1976 as part of the United States Bicentennial.

Excerpt from July 15th, 1944, diary entry:
"...in spite of everything I still believe that people are really good at heart. I simply can't build up my hopes on a foundation consisting of confusion, misery, and death. I see the world gradually being turned into a wilderness, I hear the ever approaching thunder, which will destroy us too, I can feel the sufferings of millions and yet, if I look up into the heavens, I think that it will all come right, that this cruelty too will end, and that peace and tranquility will return again."

Volunteer Biography: Marjorie Barban

Marjorie is a volunteer in our Genealogy & Local History Library. She has been volunteering for us since 2008.

Marjorie was born Marjorie Zimmer in Harrisburg, Illinois, a very small southern Illinois town. She grew up with two older brothers. Being the youngest child and only female grandchild, she says she was very spoiled. Her brothers were always in trouble, but she was the Princess of the family. She told me that even as a young child she liked to tell stories and was always talking to anyone who would listen.

The Ohio River flooded their little town in 1937. Their house was filled with water up to the second floor. Her father found them another home that was dry.

Very few girls lived in her neighborhood, so she invented playmates. As a young girl in elementary school she was often seen standing in a corner for talking. Hence, in high school she discovered plays as an outlet. She loved her teachers, and reading and art were her favorite classes.

She told me when she was receiving her high school diploma she heard a teacher say, "Thank goodness this is the last of the Zimmers." She was just sure they meant her brothers.

The children were fortunate that their father was an insurance agent. Her parents were able to send all three to college. Marjorie went to SIU, Carbondale, Illinois. She lived on campus and had many good friends, including the love of her life, Jack Barban.

Jack had just gotten back from the Korean War and was finishing school. She refused to marry him until she finished school. Jack waited patiently for his sweetheart. He found a job as the Alton Sports Editor for The Telegraph, and Marjorie began teaching at West Middle School. Jack later began developing Pride, Inc., with the late Dr. Gordon Moore. The two worked very hard for the community.

Sadly, Jack died in 1994 at the age of sixty-four. Marjorie and Jack had four sons, who have grown up to be very successful men.

After her retirement, Marjorie joined many organizations that helped the Alton community. She has received the Delta Kappa Gamma Achievement Award and the YWCA Women of Distinction Award.

I met Marjorie doing plays at Alton Little Theater. I really enjoyed getting to know her and her exuberant personality. She still enjoys talking as much as she did as a child. You may see her still doing plays but will most likely see her playing a well-known Alton person at Vintage Voices in October.

Marjorie had a terrible accident a couple of years ago. Her car rolled on her as she was getting her mail. She was under the car until a neighborhood dog heard her calls for help and alerted neighbors. Her recuperation was long and tedious, but she has recovered remarkably well.

I always ask for a piece of advice on my questionnaires. Marjorie's advice is to take care of our bodies and brains. Exercise keeps us hale, happy, and healthy so we can be in tune with the world. Marjorie knows what she is talking about; she just turned 80 this year.

Thank you, Marjorie, for all your help and wisdom. The staff and I appreciate you very much.

Join us for our new Social Justice and History Book Club!

We are living in interesting times. So did our ancestors who from the vantages of their eras, made the decisions that created our modern society in all its triumphs and tribulations. As Riverbenders, we recently had the opportunity to examine our place in history through the Jacoby Art Center exhibit "Social Justice: Both Sides of the River" and Alton YWCA Speaker Series presentations from author Debby Irving (Waking Up White, and Finding Myself in the Story of Race) and Dr. Mary Ferguson, YWCA of Metro St. Louis interim Director of Racial Justice. The series continues in the spring with Professor Kimberly Norwood (Ferguson's Fault Lines: The Race Quake That Rocked a Nation), so keep an eye out for more information on Professor Norwood's upcoming talk and other YWCA Speaker Series events.

Now, let's dive deeper into these issues together. The Social Justice and History Book Club, hosted by Reneé Johnson, will explore both fiction and nonfiction titles that help place questions of social justice within their historical contexts. Together, we'll discover the people, places, and events of the past. Additionally, the book club will provide a safe place to wonder aloud, "What next?"

The book club will meet the third Saturday of each month from 11 a.m. – 1 p.m. at the Genealogy & Local History Library. Please see the Special Events section in each newsletter for the announcement of the books we'll read that quarter. Feel free to come to one or all of our book club discussions this year.

New Circulation Policies

We have good news for people who check out DVDs and magazines. Recently, Hayner Public Library approved an increase in the number of DVD checkouts from 5 per card to 10 per card, and magazines went from 5 per card to unlimited per card. The library does ask that a patron doesn't check out all the issues of one magazine. Limits on other types of items remain the same: books are unlimited, CDs are 10 per card, and audios are 10 per card. DVD checkout remains one week and magazines remain two weeks. We hope you will find this change beneficial.

Preparing for and Navigating College: What do I do next?

The Hayner Public Library District is offering another question-and-answer session on what college-bound high school students need to do to prepare for college: What tests do I need to take? How do I apply for scholarships? What can I do to make the transition from high school to a college easier? How soon should I start applying to colleges? What's the difference between a 2-year community college and a 4-year college or university? What sort of long-term goals should I have before choosing a college? I'm in a 2-year college, how do I transition to a 4-year college? All of these questions and more can be answered on your quest to continue your education. It is a tricky field to navigate and having extra information can make a big difference.

Dr. Brad Noble from Southern Illinois University Edwardsville is one of two moderators of this session. Dr. Noble earned a doctorate from Washington University in St. Louis, has won several teaching awards, and has served on many scholarship committees. Since 1996 he has been a member of the faculty in the Department of Electrical and Computer Engineering at SIUE, where he has taught 19 different classes, three of which he developed, and he co-authored a successful patent in 2013. Dr. Noble can also answer general questions about majors, especially in the hard sciences areas. A member of SIUE's Undergraduate Admissions Office will also be on-hand to help with questions and can help fill in the gaps where Dr. Noble's knowledge ends.

This program is for high school students, current college students, and their parents, or anyone else who may have questions about college. Be prepared to take notes! This program will be held Monday, March 20, 6:30–7:30 p.m. in the Multipurpose Room at the Alton Square location. Please call 1-800-613-3163 to reserve your spot.

Simmons Employee Foundation Continues to Support Community

The Hayner Public Library District would like to thank the Simmons Employee Foundation for their generous support in funding the purchase of three automated external defibrillators (AEDs) for the library facilities

Automated external defibrillators (AEDs) are medical devices that analyze the heart's rhythm and can, if necessary, deliver an electrical shock which helps the heart reestablish an effective rhythm. According to the American Red Cross, sudden cardiac arrest is one of the leading causes of death in the United States An AED is the only effective treatment for restoring a regular heart rhythm during sudden cardiac arrest and is an easy-to-operate tool for someone with no medical background.

Thank you, Simmons Employee Foundation, for your generous contribution to our library and your continued support of the community

Did You Know?

There are two safe, easy ways to support The Hayner Public Library District without even writing a check. The first is by obtaining a Schnucks eScrip card and designating The Hayner Public Library District as your charity of choice. Every time you present the card at check-out, the library receives up to 3% of your purchase total. The cards are available at the service desk of any Schnucks store. Instructions for signing up are simple and easy-to-follow. If you already have a card please consider adding The Hayner Public Library District. This can be done online or by calling 800-931-6258

The second way to support the library is through the AmazonSmile foundation. Once you designate Hayner Public Library as your chosen charity, the library will receive a small percentage of your eligible purchases through Amazon.com. You may sign up for AmazonSmile online at smile.amazon.com. Instructions for using the site are available when you register. Once you've made your designation, the process is automatic.
If you have any questions about participating in either program, please call the library's business office at 462-0677 for additional information

Thank you, Friends!!

The Friends of the Library made a wonderful monetary contribution to the Hayner Public Library District. They donate the proceeds from their book sales which are generally held four times throughout the year. They also keep carts in the downtown and mall libraries, selling high-quality and popular books ($2 00 for hardcover and $1.00 for other materials). The donations from the friends are used to fund special projects for the Library District. In 2016, the Friends afforded us the opportunity to upgrade our security cameras in all three libraries as well as installing on-street cameras at our downtown location. You, too, can support the Friend organization by becoming a volunteer for the Friends of the Library. If you are interested in becoming a Friend of the Library, please call Carole Conley at (618) 466-8514. They are always looking for new volunteers to help sort book donations and/or work at the book sales. It's a great group to work with and the perfect volunteer opportunity for anyone who loves books!

Fiction, Non-Fiction, Mystery, Sci-Fi, and Western

Ever wonder why we don't narrow down these genres into comedy, drama, romance, thriller, fantasy, etc.? When you factor in the many, many, many sub-genres that exist, the answer is quite obvious! Are you familiar with these unusual literary genres?

Bildungsroman focuses on the education, development, and coming of age of a young protagonist such as Charlotte Bronte's masterpiece Jane Eyre

Cyberpunk may sound like a genre of music found exclusively in internet chat rooms but it is actually stories of computer hacking and corruptions within large corporations.

The Adventures of Huckleberry Finn is an example of a Picaresque genre in which a novel contains humorous tales of adventure focusing on the antics of knavish-yet-charismatic heroes.

Here is something to ponder: there can be sub-genres of sub-genres! The sub-genre Eco Fiction deals with novels with nature or environmental plots. However, Climate Fiction (AKA Cli-Fi) focuses on climate change storylines.

Have you ever read a novel that was told exclusively through letters, emails, or newspaper articles? If you have then you have read an Epistolary novel.

A fantasy novel with anti-heroes in gritty or grim settings is known as a Grimdark Fantasy. The most popular example of this is George R R. Martin's series A Song of Fire and Ice.

The classical 'whodunit' mystery has the reader guessing who the criminal is. However, in an Inverted Mystery, the criminal is revealed quickly, but the suspense mounts as the detective tries to solve the crime

Ronald Dahl's classic tale Matilda tells the tale of a highly intelligent little girl who discovers she has telekinetic powers. 2011's The Night Circus contains illusionists whose abilities defy explanation. These are two examples of Magical Realism in which abnormal activities occur in realistic settings

The Chronicles of Narnia is an example of Portal Fantasy in which characters travel to a fantasy world through a portal or gateway.

Food for Fido - Help Us Help Them

Do you have Hayner Library materials that are still checked out and are embarrassingly overdue? Do you keep getting notices in the mail and are scared of what your fine is? Breathe a sigh of relief because from April 1 through April 30, if you have an overdue item, you may pay your fine with an item of pet food. This amnesty applies to Hayner materials only. Library materials must be returned with the donation and at least one donation made for each fine

All the donations will go to our furry friends residing at the 5-A's Animal Shelter. The devoted staff in this no-kill shelter relies entirely on donations to provide proper care to the adoptable animals that have been abandoned, neglected, or abused…animals like Nibbles For more information about this worthy organization, call (618) 466-3702, visit their website at www.fiveas org, visit their Facebook page, or pay them a visit at 4530 N. Alby St in Godfrey.

Words, Words, Words!

An avid reader will tell you that one of the foundations of a good book is the choice of words within it. Words can inspire us, they can motivate us, they can make us sound intelligent But, do you know there are words about words? And furthermore, there are words about books and the people who read them Here are ten words that every logophile should know. What is a logophile, you ask? Read on and find out!

1. Amphigory – A nonsense verse or composition: a rigmarole with apparent meaning which proves to be meaningless
2. Bibliomania –An excessive fondness for acquiring and possessing books
3. Bibliophile – A person who loves or collects books
4. Diminutive – A suffix added to a word to mean little, small, or young. Examples: Piglet and Starlet
5. Eponym – A word derived from a proper noun. Example: the word boycott comes from Charles C. Boycott.
6. Logophile – A word lover or a word buff
7. Neologism – A newly coined word. Examples: App, Google, and Tweet.
8. Scrinium – Latin word for a chest for books or papers
9. Sesquipedalian – A word that has many syllables
10. Tsundoku – Japanese word for buying many books and not getting around to reading them

To Protect and Serve

The earliest known policing system was established in Boston during the 1630's. The unit was known as the "night watch" and men were hired part-time without pay. The first full-time paid officer would not be hired until 1712.

Today, all anyone has to do is turn on the news or pick up a newspaper to realize that time, laws, and people have certainly changed within the law enforcement community. Today's police officers do not handle calls like their predecessors did over 100 years ago.

On June 2, 1900, Alton Mayor Anthony Young was contacted by a group of society ladies complaining of smelly street gutters in their neighborhood. With little hesitation, the mayor sent a group of officers to investigate the odor and then, to appease the local ladies, they were to use their constabulary powers to quickly remedy the cause. But foul sewers were not the only malodorous mystery being investigated during that era. The police were also looking into a stinky whodunit right in the middle of their own ranks; each night, for reasons unknown, someone was placing limburger cheese inside the department's kitchen stove. When the stove was used, the concealed cheese would begin to melt, giving off such a powerful stench that the officers would become sick.

In July of 1912, Sara Hawkins went to court and reported that her husband was disturbing her slumber as he rattled dishes at 3 a.m. With the hope of having Mr. Hawkins arrested and removed from their home, she asked Justice Frank Ford to place a peace warrant against him. Mrs. Hawkins admitted that her husband was a virtuous housekeeper, but his early morning efforts at cleaning the dishes greatly disturbed her sleep.

In December of 1916, a new Alton city ordinance was passed prohibiting spitting on grocery store floors. (OMG, was this REALLY a problem? Doesn't everyone just know not to spit inside the grocery store?) City Food Inspector Rose Gillespie vowed to put an end to what she called a disgusting and unsanitary habit. As the Alton Police were trying to keep the floors of the grocery stores spatter-free, the Marshall of East Alton was busy arresting two individuals who were caught stealing hair from the tails of horses at the stockyard. A year later, a wagon driver for Belle Telephone was actually arrested after his horse pulled a small limb off a tree and ate the leaves. Talk about a slow day at the precinct!

Investigating an eerie call in 1925, police decided to hide in a closet to catch a suspected ghost who was being accused of using a rocking chair to scare the nervous homeowner each night as he slept. When the officers heard a rocking noise, they shined a flashlight toward the chair (straight from the closet door!) only to reveal the ghost was actually a family of rats who apparently enjoyed sitting in the chair after the room became quiet and dark. The report did not reveal if the police apprehended, arrested, or disposed of the rats in any manner. Maybe they just ran away. (The rats, not the police!)

In 1928, the Jennie D. Hayner Library Association contacted the police department and asked for assistance in helping locate delinquent books. The police willingly complied. In just a short time, many books were recovered and promptly returned to their shelves. Could Hayner have been the basis for the Seinfeld character Officer Joe Bookman?

During a Saturday night party in the Belle Street neighborhood in 1929, police charged Mrs. Ella Rice with "maintaining a disorderly house" after a drunken brawl ended in gunfire. Mrs. Rice was fined $125 and her son Doran was arrested for shooting toward the twelve booze-infused houseguests, wounding two.

After fireworks were deployed on July 4th, 1934, police had to remove a terrified dog from a house at 811 McKinley Boulevard. Once apprehended, the dog was taken to the police station and put into detention (that must be canine-talk for arrested).

Frogs kept the police "jumping" in the late 1930's and 40's. On a warm Tuesday evening in September 1938, police were dispatched to Lowell School after a teachers' meeting was interrupted by a group of boys throwing toads through the open windows toward the ladies. Instead of taking the boys to the station and putting them into detention (as they did with the dog from the McKinley Boulevard home), officers instead decided to give them a stern lecture on the evilness of their ways. Almost ten years later to the day, Clifford Ussery and Tony Michelon were arrested when police caught them in possession of twelve frogs they had caught in a pond on the Western Military Academy grounds. Since frog-hunting season had ended 3 days earlier, an agent with the Department of Conservation took charge of the long-legged croakers. (Let me interject here. Yes, there is an actual hunting season for this sport; I Googled it!) The two belated frog marauders were fined $25 each. I have to wonder if these partners-in-crime might have been part of the toad-pitching party at Lowell School 10 years earlier.

Police officers are everyday heroes. Whether they are searching for ghosts or gunfire, arresting hooligans and dogs, or lecturing wayward schoolboys and husbands who clean up after themselves, they are just performing the duties of their job. They protect and serve their communities with skill, compassion, and a solid dedication. They do it with little praise and, unfortunately, many times without recognition. Whether they are standing at your car window asking for your license and registration or rushing to the scene of an accident, they are a special kind of person with a special kind of job; a job that requires them to insert themselves directly in the middle of chaotic, dangerous situations with man or beast to provide a perimeter of safety for everyone else (even frogs!). Today, why not say thank you, shake their hand, buy their coffee, or show a warm smile of gratitude? They have earned it.

Pam Bierman

How Interesting!

Our Genealogy and Reference Departments are pros at researching questions asked by patrons. A lot of the time the questions are general, but every so often they get asked to research topics that are particularly interesting. Here are some examples.

Many years ago, I was asked to assist a very special Alton historian with locating the names of Alton area soldiers who served during World War II. This project took several years and eventually expanded to include the Civil War through Vietnam. Of course, we were not able to locate each and every person who wore a military uniform, but our efforts yielded nearly 40 scrapbooks filled with information on thousands of brave men and women who left the Riverbend area to serve their country These scrapbooks were copied and indexed, and are now a part of the Illinois Room collection located in the Genealogy & Local History Library

–Pam B (Genealogy Department)

Years ago when I was researching my husband Mike's family history, I accidently stumbled across an article in the Alton newspaper archives stating that my father-in-law and his first wife had a stillborn child. It was quite touching. They named the girl after both of their mothers and buried her in Upper Alton Cemetery. Mike did not know about this little one. His dad had never told him anything about his first marriage.

–Beth P. (Genealogy Department)

About ten years ago, a man called me about giant "thunder birds" that had been sighted in Illinois in the 20th century. They had a wing span of 10-15 feet across. I found a photo in the Alton Telegraph Archives showing a man standing next to a very large dead bird hanging from a wall, showing its awesome wing span and large size At the time, I was only familiar with the Piasa Bird.

–Sharon S. (Reference Department)

Last year, a patron called to ask for Alton Telegraph articles about the time monkeys had escaped in Alton and crossed the frozen Mississippi River into Missouri. I was skeptical. Several years ago, I was asked a similar question about an escaped lion in the area and it turned out to be a (wild) mountain lion. This time, the real story completely exceeded expectations. In December 1993, two part-Japanese macaque monkeys escaped from their backyard enclosure in Alton. One was captured a month and a half later in Alton The other was caught six months later by the Florissant police department after a four and a half hour chase involving 20 police officers Sadly, the Florissant monkey didn't survive, but the one caught in Alton was sent to a primate sanctuary in Texas to live out the rest of his days

–Lacy M (Genealogy & Local History Manager)

Volunteer Bio – Connie Clayton

Connie has been a volunteer for 7 years. She started volunteering at the downtown library reading shelves and keeping books in order The Genealogy and Local History needed a volunteer and Connie opted to take that positon. She is a huge help. Staffer Pam Bierman had this to say about Connie: "Connie Clayton of Alton has been volunteering in the Genealogy Library for well over 7 years. She is our longest-tenured volunteer. She is an industrious lady who wears a big infectious smile. Connie works on a variety of projects which includes copying scrapbooks and helping us compile research on local history subjects. She has become affectionately known as our "jack-of-all-trades ""

When Connie was growing up, her family moved around a lot because her dad was in the army When she was five, they moved to Alton Her mother and three sisters still live in the surrounding area. She told me as a child she walked to school every day. She and her sisters played outside until it was dark. Connie believes it was a blessing having sisters. They did fight often but were always close. Connie spent most of her grade-school years in split classes She really enjoyed playing with the older kids. She and her sisters all worked as soon as someone would hire them. She taught swimming at the YWCA and worked the front desk. All three sisters were in orchestra or band. They had no time to get in trouble

Now, Connie and her husband Barry do many things together Their favorite is working on their pottery. They have a studio where they throw clay on a potter's wheel. Much of their artwork is displayed at the White Pelican in Grafton and Jeannie Cousley's JMC Studio across from the old post office on Belle St. They show many of their pottery pieces at the Grafton Art show, the Staunton Art Festival, and the Tree House festival in Michael, Ill. Most of the festivals are September through November. They are always looking for more studios and art shows to display their pottery pieces. If you get a chance, stop by one of the studios to see their beautiful work.

Connie has a daughter, Alicia, who was an engineer and now owns and operates the Green Finned Hippy Farm. She has over a hundred chickens. She is extremely busy taking care of those chickens, milking goats, taking care of pigs, and selling produce on open farm day Connie helps her every Friday cleaning 100's of eggs. Alicia also has a son and teaches violin lessons on Saturdays She seems to be a chip off her mother's block!

Connie has worked on many projects for the genealogy department. She feels like all have been great and interesting projects. She enjoyed working on one project about Captain Fluent who lived on the Mississippi River. She has researched information on the YWCA when it was very popular. This summer, she plans on researching articles about the Western Military Academy. She enjoys working on medium to large projects that take a lot of concentration and attention. She feels that the history in Alton is very interesting. Connie especially likes working with the Genealogy staff, and she feels like part of the group little harder because we are coming out of small, jaunty Irish bars There's a lot of enthusiasm and a lot of energy to our show." FitzGerald and Martin McCormack showcase a repertoire ranging from sentimental ballads to blistering honky-tonk. The duo delivers a powerful, riveting sound rivaling that of larger ensembles. They move through a variety of genres but never abandon their Celtic roots They accompany their music with the rhythmic cadence of their dancing shoes. ## Author Fun Facts!

Authors can write amazing stories, but sometimes stories about authors can be just as interesting!

Did You Know?

L. Frank Baum said he came up with the name "OZ" when he saw it on his file cabinet. One cabinet was labeled A-N; the second was O-Z.

According to buzzfeed.com, Jane Austin's Pride and Prejudice was originally titled First Impressions.

Sophia Tolstaya, wife of War and Peace author Leo Tolstoy, transcribed her husband's famous 1,225-page novel seven times by hand before he felt it was fit for publication OUCH!

Shel Silverstein is not only a renowned author, probably best known for his children's book The Giving Tree, but also an accomplished songwriter. He wrote "A Boy Named Sue," made famous by Johnny Cash and many others.

Charles Dickens showed signs of Obsessive Compulsive Disorder He touched things three times for luck, combed his hair a hundred times a day, and could only write after sleeping in a bed facing north because he felt the North Star made him more creative

According to Glamour magazine, Sylvia Plath published her first poem at the age of eight. At the age of twelve, her IQ was recorded at around 160, making her a genius!

Best-selling author Stephen King grew so frustrated while writing his first novel, Carrie, he threw the unfinished manuscript in the trash His wife, Tabitha, salvaged the rough draft and encouraged him to continue writing it.

Dan Brown, author of the Da Vinci Code series, hangs upside down when he has writer's block. He feels it gets the creative juices flowing again

Passport to Your National Parks Stamp Site!

The Genealogy & Local History Library is proud to announce that we are one of the newest Passport to Your National Parks stamp sites! Alton is part of the Abraham Lincoln National Heritage Area (ALNHA) and was named an official Looking for Lincoln community in September. That designation allowed local organizations to become part of the ALNHA's National Park Service passport program.

There are a total of 21 Looking for Lincoln passport sites in Illinois. In addition to Alton, ALNHA communities include Springfield, Bloomington/Normal, Quincy, Charleston, and Danville. Each community can only have one or two passport stamp locations, so we're very lucky to be a designated site. Passport stamps are free to collect and if you don't already have a National Park Service Passport, they are available for sale at the Alton Regional Convention & Visitors Bureau (CVB)

The passport program provides opportunities for visitors to explore the communities where Lincoln lived, worked, and traveled in Illinois. The CVB has always promoted the Alton area's connection to Lincoln and was on board immediately. "Being a passport stamp site is really an added benefit for the region," Alton Regional CVB President and CEO Brett Stawar said. "We have a rich Lincoln heritage in Alton, and bringing in the passport will give visitors a great reason to come walk with us in Mr Lincoln's footsteps. The popularity of the National Park Service's passport program will be another reason to love our destination."

When the staff at CVB contacted Hayner about being the second Alton site, we were very thrilled. The Genealogy & Local History Library made perfect sense as a passport stamp site. The library has many historic books about Abraham Lincoln and generally has Lincoln photographs and artifacts on display. In the mid-1850's Lincoln's law partner, William Herndon was a speaker in the Alton Library Association's lecture series We even have some items reportedly owned by Mary Todd Lincoln at the library. We also have an original letter from Mr. Lincoln to Simeon Ryder dated from 1844

In Alton, you can get your National Parks passport stamped at the Alton Regional Convention & Visitors Bureau (CVB), 200 Piasa Street, or the Hayner Genealogy & Local History Library, 401 State Street. Being a passport site is very exciting for us and we are looking forward to being part of the Lincoln experience. For more information about the program, check out the Looking for Lincoln website http://www.lookingforlincoln.com/Explore/NPSPassportProgram.aspx We hope to see you and your passport at the library soon!

What's Cooking?!

Whether you're looking for a simple & quick meal or something made from scratch, Hayner Library's Cookbook Read 'em and Eat has it all. For only 15 dollars you can find recipes for mouth-watering dinners, desserts that will satisfy any sweet tooth, and helpful hints for around the house such as this resourceful trick for cleaning jewelry:

1T. salt
1T. baking soda
1T. dish detergent
1c. water
1 piece aluminum foil

Heat water in the microwave for 1-2 minutes Cut aluminum foil that roughly covers bottom of a small bowl (like a cereal bowl). Pour hot water into bowl. Place salt, soda, and dishwashing liquid into bowl. Place jewelry on top of foil and let it sit for 5-10 minutes. Rinse jewelry in cool water and dry jewelry completely with a soft cloth Discard solution after use and make a new batch next time According to wire-sculpture com, this works well for gold-filled, brass, German (nickel) silver, and sterling silver.

No Foolin'!

Do you enjoy April Fools' Day pranks? If so, here are some classic jokes that have been pulled throughout history and the world!

In 1878, New York's Daily Graphic newspaper announced that famed inventor Thomas Edison created a food machine!

Big Ben gets a modern change!
Angry calls flooded BBC's overseas news service in 1980 when outraged listeners heard the report that London's iconic Big Ben was going digital! Subsequently, the BBC spent several days apologizing for the April Fools' joke

Technical Expert Kjell Stensson brought incredible news to Sweden's SVT (Sveriges Television) on April 1st, 1962. He reported that viewers could instantly convert their black & white television sets into color by simply pulling a nylon stocking over the screen Stensson went into detail of how the mesh causes light to bend in such a way that it would appear as if the image was suddenly colorized. Many Swedes today still recall their fathers rushing throughout the house looking for a nylon stocking to place over the television sets!

Welcome to Chicago!
The Hollywood Park race track, located a short distance from the Los Angeles Airport, pulled a massive April Fools' prank on airline passengers in 1992, an 85-feet long, 20-feet high prank to be exact! "Welcome to Chicago" was printed on an enormous banner and placed over their Hollywood Park sign giving incoming airline passengers the false sense that they were in Illinois not California.

Did you see that fight?!
While giving a calm, cool, and collected report on BBC's sports show Grandstand, presenter David Lynam was seemingly unaware that a brawl between two employees had broken out behind him. The humor of the situation elevated when Lynam reported the Grandstand staff has a "highly professional team." Of course, it was revealed that the stunt was an April Fools' prank only after Lynam replayed the incident in slow motion with step-by-step sports commentary. The hilarious 1989 clip can be seen on YouTube under the title BBC Grandstand Fight.

An Artful Donation

Marty Benefiel, a member of the wonderful therapy dog group that brings dogs to the library every month for the Bow-wow Pow-wow Reading Program, has donated a Mark Twain sculpture to the Hayner Library. Samuel Langhorne Clemens (November 30, 1835 – April 21, 1910), better known by his pen name Mark Twain, was an American writer, humorist, entrepreneur, publisher, and lecturer. Among his novels are The Adventures of Tom Sawyer (1876) and its sequel, Adventures of Huckleberry Finn (1885), the latter often called "The Great American Novel."

This sculpture was hand-carved by her late husband, Wayne Benefiel, in 2001. The sculpture captures the classic Mark Twain look with the gray curly hair and the distinguishing mustache. As a member of the Belleville Area Holzschnitzers, a wood-carving club, Wayne created several works of art including Native Americans, wildlife, and a large collection of Santa Clauses. In his spare time, he donated his wood-carving talents and creations from his own woodshop located in Brighton, Illinois, to the Boy Scouts of America and to various church activities

His love for the craft spanned over 20+ years. His works are still being enjoyed today by friends and family members who have pieces of artwork in their own homes. Thank you, Marty, so much for your donation which will be displayed and enjoyed by our community.

The Library or a Hamburger?

Just when you think all that personal technology has replaced the need for a trip to the local public library, a new report comes out A three-year study by PEW Research Center shows half of all Americans went to the public library in person while another 30 percent used a library's website over the last year

Mostly it was for the time-honored tradition of checking out a book. The research indicates that our reading habits—especially when you look at our reading habits around books—are still very much centered on print books. The study says the reason there are still more public libraries in the U.S. than McDonald's restaurants is because libraries have kept up and rebranded themselves as technology hubs. Libraries have developed a model for collaboration. For years libraries has set the standard for working together, sharing resources The public library is always looking for ways of enhancing customer service Hayner Library collaborates with 548 libraries in Illinois At least 68 percent of Americans have an active library card, which is slightly more than those who own a smartphone.

It is not hard to find people in the United States who love libraries. It is not hard to find people who want to know if anyone still uses the library. The fact is that free public libraries have never been more popular The economic times have driven individuals and families to their libraries for entertainment and learning Many of our patrons use our computers for school research projects, looking for jobs, and filling out job applications. Americans check out more than 2 billion items each year from their public libraries; the average user takes out more than 7 books a year.

I asked our patrons to write three reasons why they come to Hayner Library. Here are a few of their answers:

- Laptop rental privileges
- Study rooms
- Reference books
- Love to read
- I don't have storage for all the books I want, so I can read them first and then decide whether to buy them
- It is fun to talk and pester the staff
- It is definitely a space saver
- Good for the environment, don't want to cut down more trees
- Allows me to get books and travel all over the world
- Love the library in general
- The library is much better than McDonald's French fries
- Books and movies
- Children's programs
- Musical programs
- Computers
- Using the Telegraph archives
- The history and genealogy library
- Magazines
- Finding new topics and authors to explore

I can understand why we have more public libraries than McDonalds in the United States I am very thankful for our public libraries. But I am most proud of The Hayner Public Library District!

Please Indulge my Reminiscence

As a child growing up, one of the highlights of each week was Friday afternoons when my mother would take me to the library. While we were fortunate to have a library in our school, there was something so special about going to our town's local library. It was an old brick building sitting close to the shore of Long Island Sound. There was one librarian. I will never forget her. She had beautiful white hair, piled in a tight coil on her head and was always so gracious When you walked into the building, you smelled the wonderful scent of books Depending on the tides, that scent mingled with the smell of the salt water of the sea. Magical. I would wander up and down the aisles loading up on titles that captured my adolescent interest. I would never read the fly-leaf… that waited till I got home to discover what I had in store. In the summer, when school was out and I was yet too young to get a job, I would have my best friend, sweet Ellen, come visit. She always brought a book and we would sit in a swing and read all afternoon. Remember Daddy Long Legs, Anne of Green Gables, The Secret Garden, Lord of the Rings, Treasure Island, The Hobbit?

What a gift the library brought to me. As an adult and in each city where I have lived, one of my first acts was to find the closest library and get a library card. That was true when I moved to Alton some 20-odd years ago. I was thrilled with the offerings provided by the Hayner Library. What a jewel!

Today, Hayner continues to be the largest library district in southern Illinois. The services are amazing…free programs of great musical and educational entertainment, e-books, CD's, DVD's, public-use computers, computer classes, free WIFI, gardening and travel programs, health and social interest programs, book clubs, genealogy and local history, magazines, newspapers, story and craft times for kids, teen programs and activities, reference services and a continually evolving/growing collection of fiction and non- fiction print material. You can even check out a telescope for star gazing or a fishing pole for a lazy summer afternoon. Give a gift to yourself and to your family – use the library. Hayner Library cards are free to residents of Alton, Godfrey and Foster Township. Pick up a newsletter or checkout our website at www.haynerlibrary.org to see a more complete view of the programs, events, and services that are available to you. We would love to hear of your own personal library memories and, should you feel so inclined, feel free to share via email at memories@haynerlibrary.org. We would love to hear from you. Please include your contact information (email, phone: home and/or cell).

And Abracadabra, It's Gone!

After two years of considerations, it only took two days to demolish the old Hudson Jewelry Building located next door to the Hayner downtown Belle Street location! Next up will be resurfacing the exterior wall, cleaning-up from the construction, and making minor renovations as needed. We will be working on these projects to bring back the non-print room, and we thank you for your continued patience

5 Good Summer Reads

By Bill Gates

The following article was published on gatesnotes.com, the blog of Bill Gates, on May 22, 2017 (2017 The Gates Notes LLC). Both the Hayner downtown library and the Hayner library at Alton Square Mall have copies of each of these selections for you to check out. We also have the audio version of Hillbilly Elegy available at both locations.

Summer is a great time to escape: to the beach, to the mountains, or to the world of a great book. This year, I found myself drawn even more than usual to books that took me outside (and I don't mean the great outdoors). The books on this year's summer reading list pushed me out of my own experiences, and I learned some things that shed new light on how our experiences shape us and where humanity might be headed.

Some of these books helped me better understand what it's like to grow up outside the mainstream: as a child of mixed race in apartheid South Africa, as a young man trying to escape his impoverished life in rural Appalachia, or as the son of a peanut farmer in Plains, Georgia. I hope you'll find that others make you think deeper about what it means to truly connect with other people and to have purpose in your life. And all of them will transport you somewhere else—whether you're sitting on a beach towel or on your own couch

Born a Crime, by Trevor Noah

As a longtime fan of The Daily Show, I loved reading this memoir about how its host honed his outsider approach to comedy over a lifetime of never quite fitting in. Born to a black South African mother and a white Swiss father in apartheid South Africa, he entered the world as a biracial child in a country where mixed race relationships were forbidden. Much of Noah's story of growing up in South Africa is tragic. Yet, as anyone who watches his nightly monologues knows, his moving stories will often leave you laughing.

The Heart, by Maylis de Kerangal

While you'll find this book in the fiction section at your local bookstore, what de Kerangal has done here in this exploration of grief is closer to poetry than anything else. At its most basic level, she tells the story of a heart transplant: a young man is killed in an accident, and his parents decide to donate his heart. But the plot is secondary to the strength of its words and characters. The book uses beautiful language to connect you deeply with people who may be in the story for only a few minutes For example, de Kerangal goes on for pages about the girlfriend of the surgeon who does the transplant even though you never meet that character. I'm glad Melinda recommended this book to me, and I recently passed it along to a friend who, like me, sticks mostly with nonfiction

Hillbilly Elegy, by J.D. Vance

The disadvantaged world of poor white Appalachia described in this terrific, heartbreaking book is one that I know only vicariously Vance was raised largely by his loving but volatile grandparents, who stepped in after his father abandoned him and his mother showed little interest in parenting her son. Against all odds, he survived his chaotic, impoverished childhood only to land at Yale Law School While the book offers insights into some of the complex cultural and family issues behind poverty, the real magic lies in the story itself and Vance's bravery in telling it.

Homo Deus, by Yuval Noah Harari

I recommended Harari's previous book Sapiens in last summer's reading list, and this provocative follow-up is just as challenging, readable, and thought-provoking. Homo Deus argues that the principles that have organized society will undergo a huge shift in the 21st century, with major consequences for life as we know it. So far, the things that have shaped society—what we measure ourselves by—have been either religious rules about how to live a good life, or more earthly goals like getting rid of sickness, hunger, and war. What would the world be like if we actually achieved those things? I don't agree with everything Harari has to say, but he has written a smart look at what may be ahead for humanity

A Full Life, by Jimmy Carter

Even though the former President has already written more than two dozen books, he somehow managed to save some great anecdotes for this quick, condensed tour of his fascinating life. I loved reading about Carter's improbable rise to the world's highest office. The book will help you understand how growing up in rural Georgia in a house without running water, electricity, or insulation shaped—for better and for worse—his time in the White House. Although most of the stories come from previous decades, A Full Life feels timely in an era when the public's confidence in national political figures and institutions is low

Seymour Bluffs and Benjamin Godfrey

On Saturday, May 20, the Genealogy & Local History Library hosted a book signing of Seymour Bluffs and Benjamin Godfrey. After a year of hard work, the book was fresh off the presses and everyone was excited to take a look. Phyllis Bechtold, author of a series of books featuring Seymour Bluffs the eagle, worked with Hayner's Genealogy & Local History Manager, Lacy McDonald, to write the story. Alton High School Graphic Communications students, under the direction of teacher Lexa Browning-Needham, created the illustrations, Blippar app content, and page layout. Phyllis, Lacy, and Lexa all made it to Hayner for the book signing, along with students Austin Curvey, Jake Edelen, Julianna Fair, Tristan Wuellner, Anna Summers, and Chance Stice. Only Shaw Smeltzer-Baer was unable to come for the signing.

Entrepreneur Benjamin Godfrey came to Alton in the 1830s after making and losing several fortunes at sea. He was a man with a questionable past who wanted to change his ways and make a contribution to society. This book, created and published by the Benjamin Godfrey Legacy Trail, highlights Godfrey's many accomplishments and lasting contributions to the Alton-Godfrey area. It also touches on Godfrey's connections to Elijah P Lovejoy and Abraham Lincoln. The book is available to purchase for $10 from Benjamin Godfrey Legacy Trail committee members Phyllis Bechtold (618) 466-1442 or Zeke Jabush (618) 466-8353. You can also get a copy at many area locations, including the Alton Convention and Visitor's Bureau, Elsah General Store, Godfrey Meat Market, Knotty by Nature in Grafton, and Mississippi Mud Pottery

Seymour Bluffs and Benjamin Godfrey can be checked out in the Alton Square and Downtown branches (call number EB GODFREY) and read anytime in the Genealogy & Local History Library (IR B GODFREY). And if you have a 3rd grader in the Alton School District, he or she will be reading the book as part of their local history curriculum. We hope you enjoy it!

[illegible] Eclipse Party

For the first time since 1918, there will be a full solar eclipse August 21, 2017, from approximately 11:00 a.m. until 1:00 p.m., in the St. Louis metropolitan area. People from all over the world are descending on our area just to be a part of this unusual event. There are even rumors of people renting out 10 feet square portions of their yards for people to set up to view this event in the Carbondale, Illinois area. As we are not in the direct path, the Alton area will just have a 90% partial eclipse, but it will still be a wondrous site to behold. To that end, Hayner Library is partnering with Alton Regional Convention and Visitor's Bureau (CVB) to bring you some activities and ways to view the eclipse safely. One of those ways is a galileoscope (see photo), which uses the library's Orion StarBlast telescopes as the image generator. The galileoscope projects a 2 1/2" image of the sun safely. This was generously donated to the library from the Members of the Astronomical Society of Eastern Missouri with the help of Eddie Agha, staff astronomer at The Nature Institute in Godfrey, IL. The event will take place at the Alton Amphitheater on August 21, 2017, from 11 a.m. – 2 p.m. Some of the events currently scheduled include: live-streaming from NASA's website, food vendors, and the infamous Bubble Bus from 11 a.m - 12 p.m. Please check Hayner Library's website, the CVB's website, or call either Hayner Library, (618) 462-0677, or the CVB, (800) 258-6645, to find out the full details as arrangements are still being made. In the meantime, here are a couple of websites that contain useful information about the eclipse: http://eclipse2017.nasa.gov and https://www.aas.org. We hope to see you there!

Our High School Yearbook Collection Now Available Online!

Want to see a picture of your grandmother at the prom? Check out your dad's 1960s Beatles-inspired mop-top or mom's beehive? Look at old photos of the Marching 100 at Alton High, the Mission Club at Marquette, or the Philatelic Society at Western Military Academy? Now's your chance to see it all from home, from the library, from anywhere you have an internet connection!

Several years ago, we participated in a yearbook digitizing project, and we are thrilled to announce that those yearbooks are now available to view online. With the help of volunteers and staff members, we uploaded all of the years for the Western Military Academy Recall (1923–1971; there was never a 1950 yearbook produced), as well as the Alton High Tatler (1905–1988), and Marquette Catholic High School Explorer (1959–1988, except 1963). We also have more recent years for Alton High and Marquette available to view in the library.

A huge thank you to Bridget Heck, Yearbook Adviser at Alton High School, for letting us borrow copies of the Tatler, and to Bo Jackson for letting us borrow copies of the Recall that we didn't already own.

INSTRUCTIONS:
Go to archive.org and search for a yearbook by title or by title and year. For example, "Alton Tatler" as a search term brings up all issues of the Tatler, but you can search "Alton Tatler 1945" and go straight to that year. Same for the Western Military Recall and Marquette High Explorer.

Anything uploaded by the Hayner Genealogy & Local History Library is available here.
https://archive.org/details/@hayner_genealogy_amp_local_history_library
The page can be organized by title, number of views, and school.

If you'd like to jump to a specific year of a specific school, this is the format (just change the year in the web address):
https://archive.org/details/AltonHS_Tatler_1905
https://archive.org/details/Marquette1959

If you have any questions, please call (618) 462-0677, ext. 2865, or email us at genealogy@haynerlibrary.org. Instructions and links are also available on Hayner's website.

Our Woman of Distinction

I have the privilege to tell you about my friend and co-worker, Mary Cordes. Mary was born and raised in the north Alton area. She grew up on Logan St Her family did practically all their day-to-day business in north Alton· they did their banking, grocery shopping, cleaners, and hardware business and went to church at Elm St Presbyterian. A side note to this, Mary's family shopped at Rain and Rain grocery store and I happened to work there part-time when my children were small. Mary's mom would bring the five girls to Rain and Rain and they would come in like little ducklings following their mother. They were all so sweet.

Mary was the oldest out of five girls plus she has two step-sisters. Having a house full of girls was never dull. Some drama but for the most part Mary says they had a lot of fun playing with each other. When they weren't outside they would be inside playing house, school, or store. When the girls got older, there was something always going on. They played instruments, played sports, and were all involved in school activities They were in girl scouts and were very involved with church activities. Her parents called it organized chaos!

Mary tells stories of her beloved north Alton. She talks of always playing outside. Every day, the neighbors could see the girls outside riding bikes and playing ball with the neighborhood kids. Mary loved the outdoors as a child and still does as she is always working in her yard or painting something. They had a great neighborhood where everyone knew each other. There were a lot of kids to play with and the Paddock's yard was the biggest. Everyone would congregate in their yard for baseball, football, and soccer. Mary's dad built a clubhouse, and they had a swing set and jungle gym so the girls were never bored.

One of Mary's most memorable gifts was a huge box filled with dress-up clothes, purses, shoes, jewelry, and scarves from her grandmother for all the girls. That box kept them entertained for months. Mary also loved her magazines, Highlights, Ranger Rick, National Geographic, and Zoobooks, that they received from their other grandparents Mary attended public schools in Alton. She attended Irving School, Gilson Brown, West Middle School, and Alton High School. She loved school. Mary says she was pretty talkative and was sure she drove her teachers crazy. She loved her 4th grade teacher Mrs. Thomas who would read many different chapter novels out loud to the class Mary looked forward to those times She also loved her history teacher in high school, Mr. Burress. She liked that they discussed current events, and he seemed so interested in what the students had to say. Thank you, Mr. Burress, for giving us our Mary, who is not afraid to share her views. I actually learn a lot from Mary on current events and respect her comments

Mary grew up coming to the State St. Children's library with her parents It was always such a magical place for her. She started working as a page in the library when she was 16 It was her first job. She would shelve books and even began helping at the circulation desk part time while going to school. When she got older, she realized that the library could be a career for her. She graduated from Greenville College and worked full time and eventually became manager of the Alton Square Library. She is currently the Assistant Director for Circulation and Strategic Services

Mary is married to Paul Cordes, who she says is the kindest, sweetest, funniest person she knows and who doesn't have a bad thing to say about anyone.

Mary and Paul love to travel. They have been to many interesting places. While the traveling is fun, Mary thinks planning and mapping out the trip is the best! I say Mary has a little of Tom Sawyer in her blood In fact, her favorite book is the Adventures of Tom Sawyer by Mark Twain. She was drawn to this book as a child by the mystery and by the friendship between Tom and Huck, and the fact it took place on the Mississippi River.

When I asked Mary to name a few people that left a big impression on her, Mary told me everyone in her family has made an impression on her. They are all hard-working, caring people who have always supported each other no matter what has happened. She says they have always made her feel loved and appreciated. She tells me that this is the biggest gift one can give to another. Mary also feels very fortunate to have married into such a wonderful, kind family

Mary's grandmother's friend, Marilyn Bromaghim, was a very important person in Mary's life. Marilyn encouraged her to join different civic organizations and even suggested she apply at the library for her first job. Mary feels that Marilyn was a very generous, smart, strong, and fun- loving woman She feels very privileged to have known her

Mary had a pretty severe injury a couple of years ago that has taught her a lot about patience, perseverance, and the fact it is ok to ask for help The best piece of advice Mary can give is the Golden rule: always treat others as you wish to be treated. It never goes out of style. Mary feels we are all in this world together—so we need to remember to be kind to one another. A quote comes to mind, "Teach by example." Our Mary believes in this quote

Because of her tireless efforts in volunteering, she was one of YWCA's 2017 Women of Distinction recipients.

Thank you, Mary, for being you!

The Hayner Public Library District would like to extend our warmest and sincerest gratitude to Ervin Cable Construction, LLC, for their hard work and generosity. Relocating a private communications cable was an obstacle we faced while reroofing Hayner's Belle Street location. Being a good community neighbor, Ervin Cable Construction, LLC, as supervised by Mr. Darrel Perkinson, provided this service, which can cost up to $400, absolutely free of charge!

Food for Fines

Yearly, we have held a fine amnesty program, Food for Fines, in October. We will waive current fines on Hayner material if you contribute a nonperishable food item for each fine during the amnesty period.

During the holiday season, many community organizations hold drives to support centers such as the Crisis Food Center, but we often forget about helping those in need at other times of the year We are holding this amnesty program in October to help people without waiting for the support of "holiday generosity." It may also help make Thanksgiving a happier time for families in need.

From October 1 through October 31, 2017, anyone who has an overdue item can pay his or her fine with a canned food item Library materials must be returned with food donations, at least one food item per fine, and only Hayner materials are eligible All food items collected throughout the month will be given to the Crisis Food Center in Alton. Of course, even if you don't have fines, feel free to donate items to help others in our community. Perhaps you have some Hayner materials that got lost under the couch or behind the DVD player. Now is a great opportunity to return those items to the library and avoid the fines that have accrued. Fine amnesty is a great way to support critically important community organizations such as the Crisis Food Center—and it is also a great opportunity to return "lost" materials to the library so they can be reshelved for circulation. Thank you for your support.

A Fall Favorite-Vintage Voices

Alton Little Theater will present the 16th Annual Vintage Voices "A New Century 1880-1920" in October with a NEW DATE and TIME format!

Walking tours will be conducted the first two weekends in October in the Alton Cemetery, located at 5th and Vine in Alton. Dates for 2017 are Saturday, October 7th; Sunday, October 8th; Saturday, October 14th and Sunday, October 15th. Walking tours start at 11:30 am and will run continuously every 12 minutes until the last tour leaves at 2:45pm. The cost is $15 for Adults and $10 for Students

An expanded non-walking tour with a wine and cheese reception will be held at 5pm at Alton Little Theater on Friday, October 13th. The cost for the non-walking tour and reception is $20. The Vintage Voices Community Committee has chosen eight sites with ten characters who were influential to Alton's history during the turn of the century Loretta Williams will portray Mary Olive Gillham and Diana Kay will join her as Bertha Whitney - both ladies were inspiring teachers Kerry Miller will portray James M Maupin - a prominent architect with many historic homes still standing in the Alton area. Gail Drillinger will portray Mrs Henry Watson - philanthropist who donated the land for Riverview Park. Adam King will portray Mr William Luecth a WWI veteran while Shawn Williams and Lorenzo Small take on the roles of featured soldiers Capt. Arnold Wilson Cisco and 2nd Lt. George Edward Cisco. Both men were Tuskegee Airmen and highlight a significant (and troubling) piece of American History. David Boase will then take on the role of "Historian" as Andrew Carnegie and enlighten visitors about the history of the Library system. Parker Grassle will be portraying Nick Taneakas, a young drowning victim who reminds us of the powerful forces in Mother Nature and finally John Meehan portrays Richard Galbaly, a glassblower who represented Illinois Glass at an exhibition in Paris, France.

Mark your calendars to enjoy a Fall walk through the beautiful and majestic Alton Cemetery as Alton's rich history comes to life. Tickets for all tours are available online at (altonlittletheater.org). Tickets for the Cemetery tours are available at WBGZ and at the Alton Regional Convention & Visitor's Bureau (200 Piasa Street, Alton) Tickets are always available at the ALT Showplace during posted box office hours.

Please Indulge my Reminiscence

Long before I was employed at Hayner Library, I was a patron; it was one of the many places my family frequented. And, as many might recall, long before the building located on 401 State Street was the Genealogy and Local History Library, it was Hayner's children's library. One day when I was around five years old, I noticed a set of stairs leading downward off to the side behind the circulation desk. Being five years old, I was under the impression that my mother knew every answer to every question on the face of the Earth; therefore, I asked her where the stairs led to. While my mother is smart, she does not know every answer to every question, and she did not know the answer to this one. But not wanting to disappoint, she did what every mother does at one time or another: she thought on her feet and made something up.

"Those stairs lead down to where they make the books, honey."

"Oh." I responded, satisfied with the answer

In 2005, I was lucky enough to be hired at Hayner Library to work part-time as a page where I spent my time shelving books at the Alton Square location. As time progressed, I was promoted to a part-time circulation assistant and kept my fingers crossed for a full-time position. In 2009, this hopeful thinking paid off and I was promoted to full-time status, but there was a catch. My time would have to be split between working the circulation desk and the Tech Services Department...Tech Services? Where is that and what would I be doing? Well, in an odd twist of fate, I discovered the Tech Services Department was on the lower lever of the old children's library. There were a number of tasks to perform, but the main job was processing new material to get them ready for the shelves WOW, my mother wasn't far from the truth! While I still help out at the front desk from time to time, I was permanently moved to the Tech Services Department where I work in an office located down a set of stairs where I "make the books "

Dogs of Society ROCKS the spot-on sounds of classic '70's Elton, with all the heat of the original vinyl, in an ALL-LIVE rock concert experience. Dogs of Society has ROCKED crowds as large as 8,000 at arenas, large outdoor shows, city- wide celebrations, tribute concert series and national fundraisers, plus SOLD OUT shows at intimate theatre venues. Featuring a killer lineup of accomplished musicians including John Gore as Elton, Steve Johnston, Louis Michael, Curt Shaw and Dave Johnson, the seasoned pros of Dogs of Society can often be found playing shows throughout the Midwest. # LIBRARY PERSONNEL

If you are interested in Genealogy and have been to our Genealogy and local History building, I am sure you have noticed a soft-spoken woman with long, wavy blonde hair If you have been lucky enough to have her help you with your genealogy, then you know she can find her way around that department with ease and accuracy She never gets flustered and that is because she absolutely loves what she is doing

Pam stared with Hayner Library in 1998. She was encouraged to apply to the newspaper indexing department by her friend and longtime indexer, Midge Hallett. Pam worked with Midge for many years indexing the newspaper and entering data into the computer. She also helped with processing books and magazines and worked as the Overdue Coordinator until she was moved to the newly-created Genealogy and Local History department. She was instrumental in working with our then-manager, Cathie Lamere, in getting the new department up and running.

One of many things that Pam loves about her job is the local history, and her favorite part is researching. She tells me that she could spend all day reading old newspapers. She also enjoys taking care of the property files. When the department began collecting property information, they only had about 300 sheets, which were donated by the Alton Area Landmarks Association, and most were about historical homes. They now have almost 3,000 listings which include homes and old and new businesses.

Lacy McDonald is our new Genealogy and Local History manager, and I asked her to tell me a little about working with Pam.

She says:
"Pam is an amazing asset to the Genealogy & Local History Library. She is in charge of the approximately 3,000 local property files and knows more about area buildings and houses than anyone else in the library. She also does a great job planning projects for our volunteers and keeping up with their schedule. She is a fantastic researcher and writer and is always happy to help patrons with their genealogy and local history questions. Pam is a really great colleague as well. She's one of the most reliable people I know and has a great sense of humor. I couldn't be happier that Pam is part of my staff!"

Pam grew up on a farm in Shipman, IL. Pam lived on the farm with her parents, Hudie and Wanda Walker, and three brothers and four sisters. Her parents taught her how to raise everything from tomatoes to chickens. She enjoyed playing softball and tennis with her friends. Pam also loved the outdoors, including target shooting and riding horses. Her love of horses began when Pam was nine years old and her father bought her first pony. It was a little Shetland pony with a fiery attitude that had been a circus pony. When she got older, her dad gave her a Palomino show horse. To this day, she still enjoys riding horses. Pam says she considers herself a country gal with deep southern roots. She still would rather be doing outside activities

Pam's most memorable teacher was her history teacher, Gladys Butler. Pam remembers how wonderful and patient Ms. Butler was with the class She says it was Ms Butler's enthusiastic teaching skills that gave Pam her affection for history. After high school, Pam took some classes at Lewis and Clark Community College, but Pam felt a need to strike out on her own and try out her independence So, she moved to Tacoma, Washington and lived there for a while After returning home, she married and started a family.

She has a daughter and a son and four precious grandchildren Pam has since remarried a special guy. She tells me he puts up with her long hours as Pam also manages a 24- unit housing complex. After working at the library for eight hours, she sometimes needs to take care of things at the complex But her husband is very helpful and supportive of her.

I asked Pam to name three people in her life that left a big impression on her. She told me her father was her number one guy! Pam said he was the most kind, generous, and level-headed and unbiased person in the world. Her second person is her brother, Gary. She tells me that Gary is her hero He is one of the hardest-working people she knows. And lastly is her 17- year old black Labrador retriever, Jinx Pam says she gives 100% of her energy to every task she does Jinx knows how to love without conditions and she gives the greatest doggie-hugs after a long, hard day. Pam feels like a lot more people could learn from Jinx.

My last question for Pam is to offer a piece of advice for living in today's world Pam says to not be judgmental of others

Good advice, Pam, and I know she follows this piece of advice.

Reference librarian Sharon Schaefer will work at the Hayner Downtown Library on Mondays and Wednesdays from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. and Tuesdays and Thursdays from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Reference services will continue to be offered at the Alton Square Mall library Monday through Saturday. With reference services offered at both library locations, patrons will now have more assistance with computers, finding information, learning how to use Hayner subscription databases, and test proctoring.

The reference department provides many valuable services, including:

- Reference staff can acquire books for patrons from all over the country via our interlibrary loan service.
- Reference assistance is available in finding books for research papers.
- Assistance is available for navigating Hayner's online resources located on the Hayner website.
- You can get computer help with your research needs, filling out an application, setting up a Microsoft Word document, and general searching of the Internet.
- Subscription database instruction is available through the reference department. Hayner Library subscribes to research databases enabling you to find up-to-date, full-text articles on many topics for your research papers. There are also general use databases available such as Auto Repair Reference Center and Consumer Reports.
- Help is available with searching the online newspaper archives.
- Test proctoring is available by appointment.

Whether we are researching answers or assisting you in locating books to read for pleasure, the reference staff is ready to help. Or you may contact our reference department by phone (618-433-2864) or in person at the Hayner libraries.

Another New Service

The Hayner Public Library District is happy to announce that we are now providing "almost overdue" notices to patrons who are signed up to receive text and/or email notifications from the library. The "almost overdue" notice is automatically generated three days before library items are due and is sent via text and/or email (patrons can choose their preferred method of contact).

We are also providing text and/or email notifications thirty days before your library card expires.

Please note: The "almost overdue" notices are generated by the SHARE network, an automated consortia of the Illinois Heartland Library System; "SHARE Notifications" will appear as the sender of the "almost overdue" text and/or email notification.

Patrons who wish to receive notices from the library via text and/or email may ask for assistance at the Circulation Desk of any library location. We currently offer text and email notifications for:

- Almost overdue items
- Overdue notices
- Hold notices (to alert you when items you have ordered are ready for pick-up)
- Library card expiration

Patrons may also choose to opt-out of the "almost overdue" notifications; please ask for assistance at the Circulation Desk if you would like to stop receiving these notifications.

You can manage your library account, including the online renewal of library materials, at www.haynerlibrary.org.

We hope that you find these notifications helpful—and an easy way to help eliminate overdue fines!

Therapy Dogs anxious to participate in the Hayner Children's Christmas party

Who let the dogs out?

Bonding at the Bow-wow Pow-wow

For over 15 years, The Hayner Public Library District has been sponsoring the Bow-wow Pow-wow in the Alton Square Mall Library the second Saturday of every month from 10 a.m. until 11 a.m. Hayner was one of the first libraries in the state to start such a program. Certified therapy dogs are brought by their handlers to the library and afford children an opportunity to read to the dogs a story or book of their choice. This activity has shown remarkable results in improving children's reading skills and confidence as they are reading to a non-judgmental and happy tail wagging audience. Children are also welcome to just visit with the dogs and develop socializing skills with these wonderful animals. All the dogs have been certified by Therapy Dogs International and are bonded and insured. Their handlers make such generous use of their own time to voluntarily bring the dogs to the library. The dogs also visit schools, hospitals, extended care facilities, and other events. There is no registration required but the child must be accompanied by a parent or guardian. Please join us for this fun and heartwarming event and don't forget your camera!

Welcome Back, LaAris!

Does the new manager of our Downtown location look familiar? If you're a longtime patron of Hayner Library she probably will! LaAris Crumer worked as a Page (a book shelver) at Hayner Library from 2008 to 2012. After attending Northern Illinois University, LaAris moved back to Alton and worked at the Wood River Public Library, first as a clerk and then as their Circulation Manager. However, fond memories of her time at Hayner Library prompted LaAris to apply for the Downtown Library Manager position when it opened up in the fall. Welcome back, LaAris!

A message from our new Manager:

"I would like to thank the patrons for welcoming me with open arms. It has been great reconnecting and getting to know so many amazing people. I would also like to let everyone know that I am still patiently awaiting my acceptance letter to Hogwarts. Go, Hufflepuffs!!

-LaAris Crumer

Scam Phone Calls

A library patron in our region recently experienced a situation in which a scammer, claiming to be a library staff member, called their home and began demanding credit card payment for overdue library fees. The patron correctly guessed it was a scam and wisely called the library and the police.

It is important to note that this did not happen to a patron of The Hayner Public Library District. But as a precaution, we would like to take this opportunity to remind patrons that The Hayner Public Library District will never call you in an attempt to solicit credit card payments over the phone. We only accept payments at the library or via our secure online ePay system, which must be accessed through your online library account.

The Hayner Public Library District does call, text, and email patrons for notification of overdue materials and on-hold items.

We would strongly encourage you to contact the police and the library should you experience a scam phone call of this nature.

The Hayner Public Library District now has the Social Security Express desktop icon installed on all public computers in the District. Social Security Express allows users to access specific portions of the Social Security Administration's website to conduct business and obtain forms. Social Security Express allows users to more easily navigate the Social Security website by using icons for the Social Security Administration's most frequently requested information.

Patrons can access the Social Security Express desktop icon by logging on to any public computer at Hayner Library. Patrons must log on to the library's public computers using a valid library card; a guest account may be issued to patrons who have a current valid driver's license or state ID card. You may also access Social Security Express from home at https://www.ssa.gov/ssaexpress/intro.html.

Garden with Seeds

Now is the time of year when we start to think of spring; it's a time for new beginnings. And what better way to begin anew than planning a garden? A garden is a place for new possibilities and all it takes is a little inspiration, seeds, and enthusiasm!

You can find inspiration from Hayner's wonderful collection of gardening books and magazines. Stop by the library to get your gardening books and pick up a list of gardening articles that are full of fresh ideas to help you along the way.

All that is needed to start a plant is contained within the seed. Treat the seed with care and a new plant will emerge. It is a rewarding experience to start plants from seed and see them develop. Not only will you feel satisfied with growing your own plants, starting from seed is a much cheaper alternative to buying plants and allows you to experiment with different flavors, colors, shapes and varieties. You can also grow in quantities to plant more of them!

Hayner Library offers a variety of free gardening classes to help nurture your gardening interests. Our classes cover pollinator habitats, invasive plants, soils, and herb gardening. We offer hands-on-classes to sow your own herb seeds and heirloom tomato seeds. Be sure to come to our Seed Swap, co-sponsored by the Sierra Club, and take home a variety of seeds to start on your own. Look for these classes in the "Special Events" section of the newsletter and sign up soon.

Let Hayner Library help you get started with your garden this spring! Gardening kits, gardening books and magazines, growing guides, books lists, gardening classes – it's all right here at the library! Stop by the grow lights at Hayner Library at Alton Square to see our display. And let your enthusiasm do the rest!

Tips for Starting Seeds Indoors:

- Use a seed-starting mix
- Provide bottom heat of approximately 75°. The top of your refrigerator might work for this
- Cover the seed tray in a sunny location or under grow lights. Keep lights 3-4 inches above plants as they grow.
- Sow seed indoors for 8 to 10 weeks before the last killing frost (around April 25).

National Genealogy Day is March 10th

Many of us are so busy with our day-to-day lives that we don't have much time to think about the past or our ancestors who lived and died so many years ago. However, in recent years, the genealogy bug has taken a firm grip on many family historians and more people have started to pursue their ancestral lines. Unfortunately, if you don't know where to start or what's available it can quickly become an overwhelming experience. With a handful of guidance and a bucket of patience, finding interesting facts about distant relatives and how they fit into your genetic puzzle can be quite fascinating. Of course, there are no guarantees that all of your discoveries will be pleasant ones involving heroes and royalty. Even the most polished families find their share of skeletons when someone goes digging around in their ancestors' closets! Just ask any politician!

Aren't you just a little bit curious about the people who share your family tree? If so, Genealogy Day is the perfect day to begin the journey to uncover your roots. This special day, set aside for genealogists and family historians, began in 2013 in celebration of the 200th anniversary of Christ Church in Limerick, Ireland. The tradition has been carried over into many other countries, including the United States. It is a special day to celebrate who YOU are!

Here are some fun and interesting tidbits about Genealogy research:

The family tree of Confucius, one of the most influential educators in Chinese history, has been maintained for over 2,500 years, making it a Guinness World Record.

Former U.S. President Franklin Delano Roosevelt had a pretty impressive family tree. By blood or marriage, he had ties to 11 other past presidents.

If an ancestor is listed on a census record as a snob, or snobscat, it doesn't mean they had a haughty attitude; it is a reference to their occupation. This was a person who repaired shoes!

An old death certificate that lists "dry bellyache" as the cause of death is actually telling you that the person died of lead poisoning.

Cemetery research can be interesting as well as entertaining. Headstones can help locate birth and death dates of our ancestors, but the epitaphs can also give us insight about their personal lives. For example, the inscription on Sir Winston Churchill's tombstone reads: "I am ready to meet my Maker. Whether my Maker is prepared for the great ordeal of meeting me is another matter."

According to the Social Security Administration, James and Mary were the most popular given names for male and female babies born during the last 100 years. The Census Bureau lists Smith, Johnson, and Williams as the most common surnames in the United States.

About 35 million Americans are related to one or more of the 102 pilgrims who sailed to America on the Mayflower in 1620. George W. Bush, Clint Eastwood, Marilyn Monroe, and Julia Child are descendants of Mayflower voyagers. Are you?

According to certain Native American ancestry, I was born in the Month of the Green Corn Moon. But since I am not of Native American decent, my birthday is appropriately recorded as being in the month of August.

The first recorded "genealogy" (Adam to Abraham, and beyond) can be found in the Bible.

The single largest collection of original source material for researching families is held by the Family History Library, owned and operated by The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints in Salt Lake City, Utah.

County GenWebs are free online sites that are maintained by volunteers who publish a variety of family research information regarding the people who lived in a particular county. This can include newspaper articles, county histories, photographs, cemetery internments, birth, death and marriage indexes, lists of veterans, and so much more!

DNA research is now readily available to anyone! Services such as Ancestry.com, 23andMe and Family Tree use a small sample of DNA to outline the ethnic profile of the participant. Your results can also link you to undiscovered relatives from all over the world. This service has become an important tool for adoptees.

If you would like to start the exciting journey of tracing your ancestry but don't know where to start, you can begin right here at the Hayner Genealogy & Local History Library, 401 State Street, Alton, Ill. But you don't have to wait for March 10, because here at the library, "Every day is a Genealogy Day!"

Meet Jake Albert

Jake is part of our great Circulation staff. Jake works at the Alton Square library assisting patrons and checking out their materials. If you have questions about computers or gaming devices he is the guy to see!

Jake was born in St. Louis and lived in Collinsville until his family moved to Alton when he was five. Some of his favorite memories of being young are rollerblading, riding bikes, playing street hockey, and swimming during the summers. He loved meeting friends at Dave's Movies and More. It was just a few blocks away from his home and he would meet his friends there to play video games.

Jake's mom and dad, Lynn and Mike, are both from Jerseyville. His mom worked as the playground helper and after-school program assistant at Saints Peter and Paul School; she worked there a few more years after her children graduated. His dad works for RS Used Oil in Granite City. The company recycles and transports oil. Jake has two sisters, Katie and Ashley. Katie is two years younger than Jake and is a nurse at OSF Saint Anthony's Health Center in Alton; she is married and expecting their first child in March. Ashley is six years younger and works at Alton-Wood River Sportsmen's Club in Godfrey. Jake's memories of his sisters are the usual childhood shenanigans and arguments. Christmas and Easter were special times for him and his sisters. Their goal was to see how early they could wake up everyone in the household. Summer family trips consisted of Six Flags, Cardinal games, and a trip to Florida to see his grandparents.

I asked Jake what his favorite subject in school was and he tells me it was English, especially diagraming sentences.

Jake grew up off of State Street by West Elementary school. He had many fun times with friends on football game nights. Halloween was an exceptional time for Jake and his family. Jake's home was known as the "Halloween house". His mom decorated inside and out. He remembers ghosts, witches, spiders, blood, cobwebs, vampires, coffins, and gravestones. His mom doesn't go all out like she used to but their house is still fondly known as the "Halloween house" by most of the neighbors.

Jake attended Saints Peter and Paul School in Alton. He attended Marquette Catholic High School for two years and finished his high school years at Alton High School. He graduated from Lewis and Clark Community College with an associate degree in Computer Networking. After graduation Jake mowed lawns and worked at Kmart during the Christmas season. He then began working as a Page at the Children's Library in December 2005. Jake now works full time at the Circulation Desk at the Alton Square library

Jake was also a part of the "big move" to our current Alton Square library location from the library's previous location on the upper level of the mall.

Mary Cordes, Assistant Director of Circulation Services, told me that Jake is a wonderful library assistant. She tells me he is reliable, friendly, and unflappable. Jake has a great sense of humor and everyone, his co-workers and patrons alike, enjoy visiting with him. She says that we are very fortunate to have Jake at our library. I can't agree more!

I asked Jake if there was a special teacher who stood out in his mind and, with a wink, said, "Any teacher who might read this!" He did tell me that his mom, dad, and Uncle Jack have left a big impression on his life.

Jake has some great hobbies. He enjoys tech-related video games and computers. He loves the St. Louis Blues hockey team and the television show The Walking Dead. He also likes to go to thrift shops and yard sales. Jake has been selling on eBay for about 13 years; he mostly sells video games or tech-related items.

I always like to end my interviews by asking the question, "What is your best piece of advice for living in today's world?" Jake answered, "Learn how to work a smartphone and computer. And, most importantly, get a sense of humor and stop being offended by every little thing someone says!"

We are very happy to have Jake in our Hayner family.

Don't Quit Your Day Job...

Most acclaimed authors held other jobs before finding fame as a writer—and many have used their previous work experiences as inspiration for their stories.

- Margaret Atwood's frustrating experience working in a coffee shop was the motivation for her essay Ka-Ching.
- Before penning the young adult classic The Catcher in the Rye, J.D. Salinger was an entertainment director on a Swedish luxury liner.
- After practicing dentistry for nine years, Zane Grey closed his office to focus on his writing career.
- In 1961, Harper Lee won the Pulitzer Prize for Fiction for her acclaimed novel To Kill a Mockingbird. Who would have guessed that, just a few years earlier, she was taking reservations at Eastern Airlines?
- John Green's experiences as a chaplain at a children's hospital encouraged him to write his sixth novel, The Fault in our Stars, which tells the story of two terminally ill teenagers.
- Sir Arthur Conan Doyle may have more in common with Dr. Watson than Sherlock Holmes; the acclaimed author of the popular detective series was a physician and surgeon before he was a writer.

I Now Pronounce You A Writing Team!

These couples produced more than just children; their offspring include mysteries, historical fiction, children's books, and of course, romance novels!

Stan and Jan Berenstain: The creators of the long-running Berenstain Bears children's books were married for 59 years before Stan's unfortunate death in 2005. In 2012, the couple's son, Mike Berenstain, continued the series after his mother's death.

Nicci French: This pseudonym is a combination of Nicci Gerrard and Sean French, who have been married 28 years. The couple have written several psychological thrillers, including the suspenseful Frieda Klein series.

Faye and Jonathan Kellerman: Writing is all in the family for the Kellermans! Not only are Faye and Jonathan Kellerman best-selling authors, but their son, Jesse, is also an award-winning writer. In addition, Faye co-wrote the book Prism with their daughter Aliza.

Lars Kepler: This Swedish couple has three children and six books in their nail-biting Detective Inspector Joona Linna series.

Judith Michael: The bestselling romance novelists Judith Barnard and Michael Fain have been writing together since 1979—the same year they were married.

It All Adds Up

In April 2017, Hayner Library introduced a You Just Saved... message on the bottom of all patron due date slips. The You Just Saved... message helps to remind patrons of the value of library services by displaying how much it would cost to purchase the items that were just checked out. The You Just Saved .. message also includes the total value of your year-to-date transactions and the "lifetime" value of all transactions since the feature was implemented.

Theresa McDonald (Hayner Library Assistant) was amazed to find that she saved $11,562.75 just by using the library! In fact, in just one year, Hayner Library patrons have checked out over $6 million worth of library materials! We hope you have enjoyed watching your savings grow with each visit to the library.

Marilyn Stewart Biography

Marilyn Stewart has been working for The Hayner Public Library District since 2010. In 2009, before becoming a library employee, Marilyn volunteered at the Downtown Library. As a volunteer, she was very organized and kept our books in order.

Marilyn began her career in retail at Venture and was eventually promoted to Human Resources Assistant. With that experience and a little more education, she was hired as Director of Human Resources at St. Elizabeth Medical Center in Granite City. She later worked at Saint Anthony's Health Center in Alton as Manager, Human Resources and Business Operations.

I have known Marilyn for many years. She was a dear friend of my cousin Mary Ann. Marilyn and I helped Mary Ann get ready for her wedding and we became fast friends. As happens in life, we grew apart with marriages, work and families. But the pendulum always swings back—and Marilyn came to the library to volunteer. I was sorry to see her leave as a volunteer but, when a position opened up within the library, I was happy that she would be joining us as a staff member.

Marilyn has fond memories of growing up in the Milton area before it was incorporated by Alton. Marilyn adored her parents. Her dad was self-employed and very entrepreneurial. His first business was C.L. Gissler Shoe Repair and Dry Cleaning, which he ran for 26 years. Marilyn had a brother who was 10 years older. Marilyn, her brother, and her mom all worked at the shop. She feels that this is where she got her business acumen. Since her brother was older and left home when she was young, she felt like an only child. There was very little that she did without. Her dad would say, "It's not a matter of needing it but a matter of wanting it."

She said her dad was a very generous person. He was the middle of three children, he had an older sister and a younger brother who was killed in WWII. Her dad had a 160 acre farm between White Hall and Winchester, Illinois, 80 acres in Scott County, and 80 acres in Greene County. He would take weekend trips to the farm. Marilyn and her mother really didn't like the farm—there was no running water nor any indoor plumbing or electricity. There were no modern conveniences like the girls knew and loved at home; it was not a fun outing for them. Her Dad had quite a sense of humor. One time while visiting the farm, Marilyn asked her dad where to hang her coat. He got out a hammer and nail and hammered into the wall. He told her to hang her coat on the nail. While visiting the farm her dad would often fry up squirrel and ask if she wanted the brain. She would laugh. She still loves fried squirrel.

When her dad retired from the shoe repair business he purchased a Red & White grocery store in Alsey, IL. If you blink once you might miss this little town. Marilyn told me this grocery store was right out of Green Acres. There was a potbelly stove in the store and all the townsfolk gathered around for their daily social gathering.

Marilyn's mom was the third of nine children and lived on a farm north of Brighton. She worked very hard taking care of Marilyn and her brother. She says her mom was the best mom and took great care of her children. Marilyn attended grade school in Alton and graduated from Alton Senior High School and Monticello College in Godfrey. She then attended SIUE and graduated from McKendree College.

While at Monticello she met Tom, her husband of 45 years. I asked Marilyn what made Tom so special and unique. She told me he is the most kind and generous person she knows. And, oh yes, he adores her! What she didn't say, but I know from other conversations, is that Tom is an excellent cook and does 99% of the cooking!

Marilyn is an avid mystery reader. She and Tom have always used Hayner Library for all their reading materials. She also loves to fish and travel with Tom. She loves to spend time relaxing with her knitting.

Marilyn is the Business Operations and Human Resources Assistant at the library, a position she has held since she began working here. She says working at the library has been very enjoyable because of her fun and unique coworkers.

I always ask the people I write about if they have a piece of advice for living into today's world. She said she has two pieces of advice. The first, from personal experience, is to always use sunscreen and wear a hat. The second and most important piece of advice is not to take yourself too seriously. She says others may not remember what you said or what you did but they will always remember how you made them feel! Marilyn makes working at Hayner Library enjoyable and she is always ready to help her coworkers. She too is very unique!

Famous Former Librarians

It's always the quiet ones! After he became known as the world's greatest lover, Giacomo Casanova worked for 13 years cataloging and organizing the books in Count Waldstein's castle in Dux, Bohemia.

Former first lady Laura Bush is also a former librarian! After earning a Master of Science degree in Library Science from the University of Texas at Austin, she worked as a school librarian in Houston and Austin.

Perhaps J. Edgar Hoover became the director of the FBI to track down lost library books! While employed at the Library of Congress, Hoover mastered their classification system and used those skills for the FBI's files.

Perhaps Beverly Cleary got tired of shelving the same old children's books and decided to write a few of her own. Before penning over 40 children's books, including the treasured Ramona Quimby series, Cleary worked for a children's library in Yakima, Washington and as the post librarian at the U.S. Army Hospital in Oakland, California.

Like many writers, Lewis Carroll was an avid reader. So it's only natural that he worked in a library before he wrote Alice's Adventures in Wonderland.

The Results Are In!

In our last newsletter, we conducted a patron poll asking you which type of cookbook you are most likely to check out. It appears that you lead busy lives—because a majority of voters said that cookbooks for quick-and-easy meals are the most popular!

Don't Be Scared of Friday, April 13!

Many stories involve misfortunes occurring on Friday the 13th. But there's no need to fret! Take into consideration these good events that have taken place on various Friday the 13ths before you hide in the safety of your home this year!

- Finland has used this allegedly unlucky day to do some good! In 1995 they introduced National Accident Day, which educates citizens on automotive safety and hazards in the workplace.
- Apollo 11 might not have made it to the moon in 1969 if not for the British Interplanetary Society. These space enthusiasts assembled in October 1933 to educate the public on the wonders of the galaxy and the possibility of space exploration. Thanks to the efforts from societies like these NASA has been able to do many things, including finding evidence of water on the moon, which was reported to the public on a Friday the 13th in 2009
- Heavy metal music is an adrenaline rush of sound for some and a headache for others. So the fact that the first heavy metal album was released in on a Friday the 13th in 1970 could be considered a good or bad thing.
- Weird Al Yankovic fans rejoice! The first U.S. patent for an accordion was granted to Anthony Faas on Friday, January 13, 1854.
- The Super Mario Brothers Nintendo game was released on Friday, September 13, 1985, in Japan.
- The film industry hasn't been the same since Friday, July 13, 1923, when the Hollywoodland sign was officially dedicated in Los Angeles. It was in 1949, while being repaired, that "land" was dropped from the original sign—and an icon was born!

Food for Fido

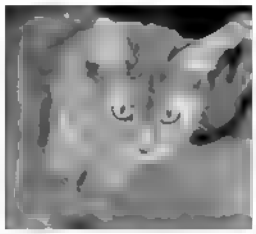
April is Prevention of Animal Cruelty Month, and in commemoration of this, Hayner Library at Alton Square Mall and Hayner Downtown Library will collect pet food and supplies that will be given to the Alton Area 5 A's Animal Shelter. This no-kill shelter is completely dependent upon donations and is run by a dedicated staff who work tirelessly to provide care for an overwhelming number of unwanted animals. From April 1 through April 30, if you have an overdue item, you may pay your fine with an item of pet food. This amnesty applies to Hayner materials only. Library materials must be returned with the donation and at least one donation made for each fine.



Please help our friends at the 5 A's—they work so hard to care for the sadly constant stream of unwanted, neglected, or abused animals brought to the shelter. The shelter is located at 4530 N. Alby Road, Godfrey, and can be reached at 466-3702. Stop by and visit this wonderful facility, perhaps find a new BFF (Best Friend Forever). And, of course, volunteers are ALWAYS welcome.

Super Hero Story Time at Hayner Library in the Alton Square Mall

Patrons Benefit from High Speed Internet

In October 2017, patrons using the public computers at the all Hayner Library locations began to notice a significant increase in the speed of the network—all thanks to the installation of a new Internet fiber connection The installation, which began in late October and took three months to complete, required extensive network upgrades at the Hayner Library in Alton Square Mall as well as both downtown locations.

The Assistant Director of Information Technology at Hayner Library was able to secure funding for this project through the E-rate program administered by the Universal Service Administrative Company under the direction of the Federal Communications Commission. The E-rate program provides discounts to assist most schools and libraries in the United States to obtain affordable telecommunications and Internet access

The installation of the new 50Mb Internet connection now allows patrons to access the Internet at significantly higher speeds. It also allows library staff to access the Polaris circulation software without delays in service or a constant need to restart the program— issues that had previously been a problem due to a lack of bandwidth available at the libraries

The Hayner Public Library District is committed to providing patrons with free access to technology. There are a combined 50 public computers available for patron use at all three Hayner Library locations Patrons may access the public computers during regular library hours; patrons can register for computer use using either a library card or current non-expired driver's license or state ID card.

Genealogy & Local History Audio Tour Updated!

Have you ever wondered why our library district is named after Jennie D. Hayner? Did you know that we almost lost our entire collection to the Quincy Public Library in 1865? Want to learn the history behind the beautiful oil paintings in the Genealogy & Local History Library, some of which we've owned for over 100 years? Come listen to our audio tour!

We have ten handsets loaded with the audio tour and historic photographs. The handsets are easy to use, with adjustable volume and a printed instruction sheet.

The tour includes sections on Hayner Library history, the Hayner family, the original building, our most important works of art, and stories related to the local history displays. Our current displays are Hayner Library History, the Haskell Playhouse, Alton Railroads, Elijah Lovejoy, Western Military Academy, artist Agnes Millen Richmond, Monticello Seminary, Illinois Glass Company, and historic Alton postcards.

A few interesting facts from the tour·

In 1867, Ralph Waldo Emerson, whose brother William was practicing medicine in Alton at the time, gave a very well-attended and -received lecture titled "American Culture" to benefit the library.

Alton native Agnes Millen Richmond's paintings were featured at the 1915 World's Fair Panama–Pacific International Exposition in San Francisco.

Elijah Lovejoy's son Edward (1836-1891) worked in the newspaper business for a time, where he wrote articles defending the rights of Japanese Americans and attacking the denial of civil rights when a school district refused to integrate African Americans.

There was an intense football rivalry between Alton High School and Western Military Academy. They first played against each other in 1904. Alton was winning 6-0 when the game ended early due to lightning. The next weekend, a fight broke out between the Alton High players and Western cadets. When Western officials were unable to stop the fight, the cadet corps was locked up in their quarters for the remainder of the afternoon. The two teams didn't meet on the football field again until 1907.

Lifespan Linked to Reading Habits

According to a study conducted by researchers at Yale University School of Public Health, reading as little as 30 minutes each day may be linked to longer life The researchers gathered data from 3,635 people over the age of 50 who had participated in a national Health and Retirement Study Participants answered questions about their reading habits, and the Yale team compared this information to their physical health over a 12 year follow-up period. In short, the results showed that the more a person reads, the more likely they are to live a longer life Overall, readers lived about two years longer than non-readers!

Note: This program will be held in the Benjamin Godfrey Chapel on the campus of Lewis & Clark Community College, 5800 Godfrey Road, Godfrey, IL

Switchback returns! Two of our favorite performers on the circuit! "A successful show for us is like an amusement ride—it's a rush," says Brian FitzGerald of the renowned musical duo Switchback. "Our Irish is a little more aggressive, and it's coming at you a little harder because we are coming out of small, jaunty Irish bars. There's a lot of enthusiasm and a lot of energy to our show." FitzGerald and Martin McCormack showcase a repertoire ranging from sentimental ballads to blistering honky-tonk. The duo delivers a powerful, riveting sound rivaling that of larger ensembles. They move through a variety of genres but never abandon their Celtic roots. They accompany their music with the rhythmic cadence of their dancing shoes. Don't miss your chance to see and hear these amazing performers!

This program is jointly presented by The Hayner Public Library District and the Music Department of Lewis & Clark Community College

Benjamin Godfrey Book Receives International Award!

Our very own Seymour Bluffs and Benjamin Godfrey book has received an international award! The book was entered as a Group Project in the Industrial Arts/Technology Prepress division of the Gutenberg Awards and took second place. Local author Phyllis Bechtold and Genealogy & Local History Library Manager Lacy McDonald wrote and edited Seymour Bluffs and Benjamin Godfrey last year, and Lexa Browning-Needham's Alton High School Graphic Communications students created the illustrations, Blippar app content, and page layout. The Gutenberg Awards are sponsored by the Graphic Communications Education Association and entries are scrutinized for page layout and design difficulty, the use of graphics, typography, difficulty, and presentation. Austin Curvey, Jake Edelen, Julianna Fair, Shaw Smeltzer-Baer, Anna Summers, Chance Stice and Tristan Wuellner were extremely dedicated, and spent time in and out of the classroom working on the project. This award celebrates the time and energy they put into the book.

Seymour Bluffs and Benjamin Godfrey can be checked out in the Alton Square and Downtown libraries (call number: EB GODFREY) and read anytime in the Genealogy & Local History Library (IR B GODFREY). Come check out the students' award winning work!

Two in One

Do you know that these authors are the same person?

- Romance novelist Jayne Anne Krentz also writes under the names Jayne Castle and Amanda Quick.
- Ruth Rendell is the author of the best-selling Chief Inspector Wexford series. She also writes stand-alone psychological crime novels under the pseudonym Barbara Vine.
- Acclaimed romance novelist Nora Roberts also writes romantic suspense books under the name J.D. Robb.
- The name Agatha Christie immediately brings to mind mystery novels—which is probably why she wrote romantic fiction under the name Mary Westmacott.
- Alice Addertongue, Anthony Afterwit, the Busy-Body, Caelia Shortface, Martha Careful, and Silence Dogood are just a few of the pseudonyms used by Benjamin Franklin.

Now, What are You Going to Do With Your Life?!?

The next stage in your life will be an adventure that can be exciting but also very stressful. Attending college, job hunting and living on your own is a lot to manage! Here are a few tips to help ease your transition.

College Life

• Toto, I have a feeling we're not in high school anymore! – Unlike your high school teachers, your college professors are not going to hound you about homework or remind you over and over about upcoming tests. Sounds like a dream come true, huh? Well, miss a few assignments and flunk a few tests, and that dream will become a nightmare! Get organized and take responsibility for your own schoolwork.

• Take care of yourself – Living away from your parents in a dorm or starter apartment can be just as overwhelming as it is exciting. Your education, finances, social life, schedule, as well as your physical and mental health, will be your own responsibility. Don't give up the moment you feel stressed for the first time; give yourself time to adjust to your new life, and seek help from family, friends or professionals, if needed.

Job Application Tips

• Your first impression does not happen at an interview. It begins when you pick up the job application. Remember to dress nicely, be well-groomed, bring your own pen, and be polite.

• If possible, take the application home so you can take your time, print neatly, and double check your information.

• Try to fill in as much information as possible. Write "N/A" in areas that don't apply to you rather than leaving a section blank.

Resume Tips

• Stick to the more traditional Times New Roman font with a 9-12 point font size.

• You may think you don't have enough experience to list on a resume but you can always list your academic achievements such as a high GPA, any academic awards, or that you've taken a specialty course related to the job for which you are applying.

• Remember to proofread. Then, go back and proofread again. And when you think your resume looks good, have somebody else proofread it!

Job Interviews

• Arrive a few minutes early. Never be late.
—Bernadette, Executive Director, The Hayner Public Library District

• One of the biggest things I look for is a candidate who has done his or her homework. It's important to do research on the organization to which you are applying and be able to demonstrate that you understand the value of that organization.
—Lacy, Manager, Genealogy & Local History Library

• A follow-up thank you note is always appreciated, and may even be the deciding factor if I have multiple qualified candidates.
—Sue, Assistant Director, Human Resources

• Turn off your cell phone. Turn it off completely; even the vibrate setting can be distracting.
—Mary, Assistant Director, Circulation and Strategic Services

Be sure to visit any Hayner Library location for more information about preparing for college and employment. Our libraries are equipped with study rooms, computers, resume templates, and book topics covering resumes, employment opportunities, career outlook statistics, college reviews, financial aid, study guides and more! Also be sure to visit the Online Resources section of our website (www.haynerlibrary.org) for more information pertaining to education and employment. Good luck!

Please Indulge My Reminiscence

Growing up (and long before I was employed at Hayner Library), my family and I were frequent visitors to the children's library which, at that time, was located in the Hayner Library building at 401 State Street, Alton. During one particular visit, I noticed a set of stairs behind the Circulation Desk leading downward into the unknown. Being five years old at the time, I was under the impression that my mother knew the answer to every question on the face of the Earth—so naturally I asked her where the stairs led. While my mother is smart, it turns out she does not know the answer to every question, and she did not know the answer to this one. But, not wanting to disappoint me, she did what every mother does at one time or another—she thought on her feet and made something up! She told me that the stairs led to the area where they made the books!

In 2005, I was lucky enough to be hired by The Hayner Public Library District; I worked part-time as a Page at the Alton Square Library where I spent my time shelving books and keeping the materials in order.

As time progressed, I was promoted to a part-time Library Assistant in the Circulation department. I kept my fingers crossed for a full-time position.

In 2009, I was promoted to full-time status—but there was a catch. My time would have to be split between working in the Circulation department as well as the Technical Services department. The Technical Services department is housed in the lower level of the former children's library. There are a number of tasks to perform, but my main job is processing new materials in order to make them ready for the shelves. Wow! My mother wasn't far off in her description!

While I periodically help at the circulation desk when needed, I eventually moved exclusively to the Technical Services department where I "make the books."

We would love to hear your own personal library memories. You may email your memories to memories@haynerlibrary.org. Please include your name and contact information (email and telephone number).

Benjamin Franklin, Librarian

Being a founding member of one of the first lending libraries in the nation can get lost in Benjamin Franklin's list of accomplishments. However, Franklin's involvement in the development of libraries in the United States is quite interesting.

In the 1730s books were rare and highly expensive and public libraries, as we know them today, did not exist. This problem was especially troublesome to the members of the Junto Club, a philosophical group who would meet to discuss a wide range of important issues of the day. As intellectual as their group was, they had only a few books amongst them to which they could refer when they needed to settle debates or enrich their knowledge. Therefore, on July 1, 1731, the Junto Club outlined an idea to form a subscription library, which would eventually be called The Library Company, in which the 50 members would invest 40 shillings each towards the purchase of new books. The members agreed to give another 10 shillings each year thereafter towards the purchase of additional books. Franklin initiated the expansion of The Library Company collection by offering memberships to the locals of Philadelphia who might otherwise not have access to books. The idea spread like wildfire when visitors to Philadelphia became impressed by the intelligence and sophistication of the locals. And the rest, as they say, is history.

History Comes to Hayner

The Hayner Public Library District is thrilled to announce that the Elijah P. Lovejoy printing press is coming to the Genealogy & Local History Library. We would like to thank The Telegraph and Hearst Communications for their very generous donation of this extraordinary artifact. The press will be on permanent display in the library, just up the hill from the location of the Godfrey & Gilman warehouse, where it was originally stored and where Lovejoy made his last stand fighting for the freedom of the press. A reception and dedication will be held at the Genealogy & Local History Library in autumn 2018. All are invited. Please be on the lookout for more information in our next newsletter.

We are so honored to be the new home for such an important part of local and national history.

Take A Hike!

Hayner Library is introducing a new program designed to get families active, enjoy the outdoors, and read a good book—all at once! We are participating in StoryWalk®, a program created by Anne Ferguson of Montpelier, VT and developed in collaboration with the Vermont Bicycle & Pedestrian Coalition and the Kellogg Hubbard Library.

The StoryWalk® program consists of laminated pages from a children's book attached to wooden stakes, which are installed along a walking path. The books will be changed out periodically so that families can enjoy the program from spring until fall. StoryWalk® is a terrific way for families to engage in literacy and the great outdoors all at once!

Our first StoryWalk® site will be installed at The Nature Institute, 2213 S. Levis Lane, Godfrey, Illinois. We hope to have other sites installed in Alton and Godfrey this summer.

Please be sure to visit our website for more information about StoryWalk®, including the kickoff date for this exciting program.

Looking for a New Author?

In the article, "Writers to Watch Spring 2018: Anticipated Debuts", Publishers Weekly highlighted some of the best new contemporary fiction authors making their debut this year. The following titles are available at Hayner Library.

Peach by Emma Glass

"Glass' prose is capable of breathtaking deftness . . . the clipped sentences and obsessive repetitions provide a terrifying window into a freshly traumatized psyche With paragraphs that read like poems, this is a memorably crafted entry into the canon of revenge narratives." –Kirkus Reviews

There There by Tommy Orange

"There There is an urgent, invigorating, absolutely vital book by a novelist with more raw virtuosic talent than any young writer I've come across in a long, long time. Maybe ever. Tommy Orange is a stylist with substance, a showboater with a deeply moral compass. I want to call him heir to Gertrude Stein by way of George Saunders, but he is even more original than that. This book will make your heart swell." –Claire Vaye Watkins

Parking Lot Attendant by Nafkote Tamirat

"Tamirat's wonderful debut novel weaves growing pains, immigrant troubles, and moments of biting humor. . . .[a] riveting coming-of-age story full of murky motives, deep emotion, and memorable characters." –Publishers Weekly

Bring Out the Dog by Will Mackin

"Unforgettable . . . It is the language as much as the experience that drives the action, creating taut, almost terrifying suspense Mackin's masterful prose is both poetic and aggressive." –Publishers Weekly

Enjoy Local and Community History!

Do you know any of the interesting facts surrounding your local community, neighborhood, or the town where you grew up? Local history holds the details and stories that help reveal how societal changes impacted the lives of ordinary people within a community Since 1837, Alton has had its fair share of interesting events and colorful characters that helped shape the temperament and forge the personality of this old river town

Here are some interesting local history facts about our community·

The town of Alton, Illinois was founded by Rufus Easton Easton had many titles during his life He was an attorney, a United States Congressman and the first appointed postmaster of St. Louis. Although he never lived on Alton soil, he developed the town in the year 1818 It was not incorporated as a city until 1837, three years after his death He named many of the streets after family members, but the town itself was named for his eldest son, Alton Easton.

In 1833, the first penitentiary in the State of Illinois was built and opened in Alton. It was closed in 1860 but reopened during the Civil War to be used for Confederate prisoners. A somber remnant of stone still stands on William Street as a poignant reminder of one of the most dreadful tragedies in Alton history.

For many years, the Owens-Illinois Glass Works that sat in the 1600 block of East Broadway was the largest glass company in the world. The first item produced was an ashtray but the company quickly grew into a distinguished bottle manufacturing plant recognized around the world. After many successful years of leading the world in the glass manufacturing industry, as well as providing employment to thousands of area families, it closed its doors in 1993.

James Earl Ray, the man convicted of murdering Dr Martin Luther King, Jr in 1968, was born on West Ninth Street in Alton. However, his family ties run much deeper than just being born here. Although his family moved to Missouri while Ray was a 6-year-old student at St. Mary's Catholic School, he eventually came back to live with his grandmother in her rooming house on Broadway while his brothers and sisters went to live at the Catholic Children s Home on State Street When his mother died in 1961, she was buried in a Godfrey cemetery under the last name of Ryan

The first Alton Memorial Day Parade, known then as Decoration Day, was held on Saturday, May 30, 1868 The evening edition of the Alton Daily Telegraph said it was a "very imposing and appropriate demonstration" Alton's parade has been considered to be the oldest most consecutive running parade in the United States.

Abraham Lincoln was a frequent visitor to Alton In 1842 he came to Alton from Springfield after being challenged to a brawl with James Shields who was the Illinois State Auditor at the time The sword duel was to take place on an island in the Mississippi River as dueling on Illinois grounds was illegal After boating from the Alton shore to the small island in the river both parties reconsidered their argument and agreed to a truce, sending both men back to the Alton riverbank unscathed.

When not on display, the mummified corpse of a local fisherman William "Deaf Bill" Lee was kept inside the closet of a local funeral home for eight decades In 1996, the Burke Funeral Home decided to lay Bill to rest in proper fashion The body was dressed in a fine suit, laid inside an open casket for a final exhibition and a complete and sincere funeral was held for the deaf fisherman who used to walk among the streets of Alton Over 350 people were in attendance for the occasion Eighty-one years after his death, Deaf Bill was finally laid to rest in the Immaculate Conception Cemetery in West Alton.

World War II Air Force pilot Paul Warfield Tibbetts Jr dropped the atomic bomb on Hiroshima, Japan on August 6, 1945. It was the historic event that ultimately ended the war Tibbetts was a 1933 graduate of Western Military Academy Although he was born in Quincy, Illinois and grew up in Miami, Florida he had been a student at the Alton military school on Seminary Street for five years before his extraordinary military service began.

The Lovejoy monument that stands in the Alton Cemetery towers a total of 110 feet toward the sky Erected in 1897, the bronze sculpture was made by the American Bronze Company of Chicago and the granite was a product of the stone quarries of Vermont. The 17-foot winged statue at the top is called Victory.

In 1867, the Chicago & Alton and the Big Four railroads built a substantial depot in downtown Alton. The two-story building included a hotel and restaurant but the unique feature about this imposing structure was that it was built in the shape of a locomotive. It was such a fine example of architecture that the Alton Telegraph called it the ornament of the city. The depot was razed in 1956 with plans of building a new hose house for the fire department. This was a plan that never happened; a parking lot was formed on the site instead.

Humbert Road is named for Dr. Frederick Humbert, a German immigrant who came to the United States in 1833 and set up a successful medical practice in the Alton and Upper Alton areas. The doctor was a beloved physician and a highly respected surgeon for over 56 years. His palatial home sat on the site of the Alton Middle School on College Avenue.

During the building of Alton's first lock and dam along the edge of Riverfront Park, bones were unearthed by the construction of the cofferdam. The bones were thought to be those of smallpox victims who had been buried on an island during the Civil War. The island was appropriately known as Smallpox Island.

The beautiful Benjamin Godfrey Memorial Chapel that sits on the campus of Lewis and Clark Community College was picked up and moved with flawless effort from its original location in 1991. It initially sat across the road facing the college. The entire move was made with such efficiency that a glass of water sitting on a beam was unaffected during the four-hour ride across Godfrey Road.

In 1901, the world-renowned Anheuser Busch Company of St. Louis built and maintained a factory at 100 Alby Street. The company stayed at that location for nearly 30 years.

The mighty Mississippi River has always been an integral part of Alton's history for many reasons such as floods, fishing and barge freight. But on September 8, 1937, the great river surprised everyone when it handed over a five-foot, 84-pound bull shark to local fishermen "Dudge" Collins and Herbert Cope.

Older Altonians may remember the tricky curve and the shallow lanes of the first Clark Bridge, but who remembers the toll booth that was placed right in the middle of the chaos? Maneuvering across the bridge without scraping the sidewalls or snipping the bumpers of oncoming traffic was complicated enough without a toll booth in the hub of it all! To the delight of travelers, the precariously placed toll booth was removed in April 1958.

This is just a small sampling of Alton's interesting past. There are many other characters, countless more events, and various other milestones resting in the dusty old memories of this wonderful city.

If you would like to know more about the bold multi-colored blanket of local history that stretches over this community, just read through the society pages of an old Alton Evening Telegraph newspaper (available at all Hayner locations), drive through one of the historical districts, walk through one of the cemeteries, or visit the larger-than-life statues at Lincoln-Douglas Square.

Discover more history at the Hayner Geneaology & Local History Library, 401 State Street, Alton. Library staff is always available to help you with your research.

The Hidden Treasures of the National Archives at Spanish Lake

By George Fuller

Wednesday evenings and Saturdays, I work at the Hayner Genealogy & Local History Library, but my full-time job is at the National Archives in Spanish Lake, MO. I process the deceased veterans claim files for World War I. I often tell my Hayner co-workers stories of the treasures I've found while processing these files at the archives.

Processing, in this sense, means taking the files from their old non-archival boxes and inspecting them for damage and mold. I confirm that the files contain only one veteran's information and remove any misfiles. I then place the file in a new archival box, label the box, and re-shelve it in the designated archive space. There are millions of claim files, and this year I was tasked with rehousing 3500 cubic feet, which translates to over seventy thousand files. This work can be very tedious, but occasionally I stumble across something very interesting. I tell people that I think of each file box as being like a box of Cracker Jack, with a surprise inside each one. Most files are rather run-of-the-mill, with claims and documentation, as well as official correspondence; but some are little treasure troves

In one file, I came across a newspaper article about the gang wars of New York. It was included in the veteran's file because he was one of the featured gangsters. He had served honorably for two years in WWI, and then shortly after returning home he "bumped off" the local dock gang/mob boss in order to control the docks. The newspaper described him (positively) as a fighter and a drinker who was quick with a pistol and took no lip from anyone. Being from New York, I can attest we do sort of love our mob stories, but this article was truly a glowing homage to the man

When I think of the men and women who served, I am struck by the amazing array of first-generation immigrants who chose to serve in the U.S. Armed Forces. They came from all over the world, including countries we would end up fighting against in WWII. Often in the files I will find correspondence in the native language of the person, from their families or from official agencies in their country of birth, complete with wax seals.

One file that stands out is the file of a Japanese man who quit his family tailoring business to join the U.S. Navy; he served honorably and was discharged. The curious thing about this man was that he served in the Navy under a Chinese alias. When he returned to Japan after being discharged, he lived in different locations under three other assumed names. The file does not detail why he assumed these identities; it would appear the focus of the investigation was on what name he assumed and when he assumed it. The file contained a collection of photos and correspondence in Japanese, from his brother and authorities in Japan. The correspondence and photos are beautiful artifacts, but do not solve the mystery of his identities.

There was also the Irishman who joined the U.S. Navy to escape his wife and several children back home in Ireland. His file contained photos and correspondence from his wife, who was trying to track him down and make him own up to his responsibilities. She included photos of herself as well as all the children. The Armed Forces were very good about connecting runaway fathers to their abandoned families, and this was no exception. Back he went to Ireland.

When the claim files were no longer in daily use, they were sent to wooden warehouses for storage. As time passed, those warehouses developed leaky roofs, had insect activity, and sometimes even caught fire; I find evidence of this in and on the boxes. I often find signs of the maintenance team's efforts to solve those issues as well: nails, bolts, nuts, wire, conduit pieces, roofing stone, lots of dust, and mold. I have also found pens and pencils of record center employees who lost them in the files long ago.

Part of my processing work is to remove metal fasteners because they are a source of damage to old records; when they rust they speed the deterioration of the paper. Though they are a danger and I must remove them, I enjoy the variety of fasteners that people employed when compiling these files—every imaginable configuration of paper clip (some truly ornate ones), straight pins, T-pins, flat pins with a triangular head, and more. I have collected hundreds. Though some are a rusty mess, others are as shiny and new as the day they were placed in the files

The postage stamps on the correspondence, often decorated with beautiful artwork, are like time capsules themselves. I see stamps dated from the 1910s to the 1960s, originating from all over the world. Some of the correspondence, postage stamps, and official seals and stamps come from countries that no longer exist: the Kingdom of Italy, several grand duchies that have been absorbed into Germany, and many small countries that were absorbed by the Soviet Union and are today located within a former satellite country. I discovered places that I never knew existed, that I was never taught about in Social Studies class, and never saw on a globe or world map

To me these files are time capsules. When a researcher comes to view the file, they are often seeking information about the veteran—but I wonder, do they appreciate the little treasures I find as well? I'd like to coin a term, peripheral history, and define it as the things we do not focus our intent upon. The researchers come with a specific intent, but do they ever take in the peripheral history?

Keep Your Child's Mind Strong All Summer Long

Your child's education doesn't need to be put on hold during the summer months. Here are a few ways to keep their intellect growing during summer vacation.

Set a good example
Children look to their parents for guidance—so set a good example by picking up a book yourself

Let them decide
While it may seem obvious, one of the fundamentals of recreational reading is choosing a book you enjoy! Children are given assigned reading throughout their school year which might not interest them; it may also sour the idea of reading for fun. During the summer let them pick the books they wish to read. These books might not be the most educational, but they will excite your child!

Excuse me, where are your books about...
The library's card catalog can be searched by subject. Keep an ear open for what your child is interested in. Whether it's unicorns, baseball players, Barbie dolls, or painting, just about anything can be searched! And the friendly staff of Hayner Library will be happy to point you in the direction of the books your child might enjoy

E-books
Nearly any place you visit during the summer is going to have a long line. Turn your wait-time into reading time by downloading an e-book! Ask one of our librarians for more details

Visit your local library!
No, this isn't just a ploy to get you to visit Hayner Library! The library offers a wide selection of programs available throughout the summer including our annual Summer Reading Program for kids and teens. Stop by for some (free) fun and leave with some books! For more information about summer programing, look for the Special Events at Hayner section of this newsletter and the Events Calendar on our website

Patience is a Virtue... Along With the Fast-Forward Button

When the screen fades to black and the credits begin to roll, you might think that the movie is over. However, these films prove that sometimes it's worth waiting until after all credits have run in order to view an extra scene!

Ferris Bueller's Day Off: Throughout the movie, Ferris Bueller breaks the fourth wall by talking directly to the audience, so it should be no surprise that he has one final message.

Planes, Trains and Automobiles: At the beginning of the movie, Neal Page is in a rush to catch his flight due to the indecisiveness of a high-level executive during a business meeting. Ever wonder how this executive spent his Thanksgiving holiday? Stay tuned after the credits to find out!

Airplane: Another minor plot point that is revisited after the credits is what happened to the passenger who gets into Ted Striker's cab at the beginning of the film

The Disaster Artist: After the credits there is a party scene that takes place featuring the main character, Tommy Wiseau, and a strange man. At first glance, you might wonder about the significance of the scene. However, the strange man is actually played by someone who had a key role in the film's production. Need a hint? Just listen to his voice.

Napoleon Dynamite: Stay tuned after the credits for a special scene that takes place months later!

New Graphic Novels Available in Teen Space at the Alton Square Mall Library

Author Fun Facts

Authors write amazing stories—but sometimes the stories about authors can be just as interesting!

- L. Frank Baum stated that he came up with the name "Oz" when he saw it on his file cabinet One cabinet was labeled A-N and the second cabinet was labeled O-Z.
- Jane Austen's Pride and Prejudice was originally entitled First Impressions.
- Charles Dickens exhibited symptoms of mild obsessive-compulsive disorder. He touched things three times for luck, combed his hair one hundred times a day, and could only write after sleeping in a bed facing north because he felt the North Star made him more creative.
- Sylvia Plath's first poem, entitled "Poem", was published in the Boston Herald when she was only eight years old. At the age of twelve her IQ was recorded at 160
- Is has been reported that Sophia Tolstaya, wife of War and Peace author Leo Tolstoy, copied and edited her husband's famous 1,225 page novel seven times (by hand!) before he felt it was fit for publication.
- Shel Silverstein is not only a renowned author, penning many classic children's works such as A Light in the Attic, Where the Sidewalk Ends, and The Giving Tree, but also an accomplished songwriter. He wrote the classic country song "A Boy Named Sue," which was made famous by Johnny Cash!
- Best-selling author Stephen King grew so frustrated while writing his first novel, Carrie, that he threw the unfinished manuscript in the trash. His wife, Tabitha, salvaged the rough draft and encouraged him to continue writing it.
- Dan Brown, author of The Da Vinci Code, has stated that he hangs upside down when he has writer's block. He feels it gets the creative juices flowing again

Hayner Library Offers Books, Movies, CDs and...Fishing Poles?

A Patron's Reminiscence

In 2005, my family and I moved to Alton for an employment opportunity. My girls were four and two years old at the time. I was still enrolled in college with two years left to finish. How fortunate for me that a library was nearby where I could do my reading, research, and notes for class. Meanwhile, my ladies could occupy themselves with interactive materials and begin their lifelong interest of books.

In December 2007, the long and nontraditional route of a college bachelor's degree was complete and I was now ready to go forward with a graduate degree. However, fate had a different plan for the postgraduate and family; our youngest daughter was diagnosed with Acute Lymphoblastic Leukemia on January 2, 2008. After long stints at Cardinal Glennon and intense chemotherapy treatments for the next two and a half years, she was left less than able to run around at the parks. Because of the immune deficits related to the treatment of most cancers, we tried to limit excessive contact with others when possible. The most appropriate and safe place for a family outing was Hayner Library. Hours were spent picking out movies, memorizing jokes and riddles, and reading Shel Silverstein, Dr. Seuss and Warrior Cats. Throughout the next few years, as my ladies were getting older, it was Mario Cart competitions, 3D printer classes, and other entertaining events offered at the library. In 2012, there was another turn of events as we gained custody of my five-year-old niece. Enrolled in school for the first time and eager to learn all she could, it was straight to Hayner Library. The year we had with her, watching her learn to read and then excel to an honors reading level was so dear to me. She is now in the fifth grade and back with her mother frequenting the libraries in Texas.

In 2014, I again revisited completing a graduate degree program. I needed a quiet place to obtain research articles, the use of a printer when mine was out of ink, and the use of a computer when mine was bogged down by endless game downloads. With the support and convenience of Hayner Library, I was able to complete my master's degree in May 2017.

I still frequent the library to keep myself abreast of the most up-to-date articles regarding research or new and upcoming ideas in my field. Other times, I just come to sit and recall life's events, engage in people watching, or occupy the afternoon writing an article about my time spent at Hayner Library.

Since You Asked: Veterans Share Their Memories

Hayner Library recently acquired a copy of the book Since You Asked: Veterans Share Their Memories, a Veterans Heritage Project book. The book was graciously donated by Kathleen Botterbush, who is also a contributor to the project. The mission of the Veterans Heritage Project is to connect students with veterans in order to honor veterans, preserve America's heritage, and develop future leaders. The book contains student-conducted interviews of veterans in an effort to preserve their stories for future generations. Kathleen contributed three veteran interviews to the book—and also shares a wonderful story of how her involvement with the Veterans Heritage Project has inspired her to pursue a career as an orthopedic surgeon and prosthetist for the Veterans Health Administration. Kathleen will be attending St. Louis University in the fall and will be majoring in biomedical engineering. We wish Kathleen all the best as she prepares for college. We thank her for her contribution to this book and we thank all of our veterans for their service to our country.

Since You Asked: Veterans Share Their Memories (IR 940 53773 SIN) can be found in the Illinois Room collection at the Hayner Genealogy & Local History Library.

Kids Summer Reading Program 2018

Young patrons of Hayner Library had a wonderful time at this year's Summer Reading Program, "Reading Takes You Everywhere." The KidsSpace staff kept children busy with craft times, performers, movies, puppet shows, and stories.

The program drew in more than 500 children over six weeks. Participants were rewarded each week with a prize and a raffle ticket for one of our three grand prizes. At the end of the program, participants were treated to a party held at the Alton High School Commons where they were entertained by Celia and Friends. Each participant also received a free book, snacks, and a certificate for all their hard work.

At the End-of-the-Summer-Reading Party, a ticket was drawn for each of the three grand prizes. The winner of the STEM robot was Liam N. The winner of the karaoke machine was Tayla B. The winner of the magnetic building blocks kit was Owyn T. Tickets were also drawn for artwork created by Jennifer Grassle of Cheerful Canvas. Winners for the artwork include Genesis S., Vivienne C., Clare C., Kaylie S., Isaac S., Penny L., Emily M., Juniper P., and Claire H. We hope to see everyone again next year at our 2019 Summer Reading Program, "It's Showtime at Your Library." Congratulations to all our winners!

We would also like to thank our sponsors: Alton High School, Dollar General, Riverbender.com Community Center, St. Louis Cardinals, Cheerful Canvas, and Gateway Grizzles.

2018 Teen Summer Reading Program: "Reading Takes You Everywhere"

Please Join Us for an Open House to Celebrate the Elijah P. Lovejoy Press Dedication

Sunday, November 4, 2–4 p.m.
Genealogy & Local History Library, 401 State Street, Alton.

The Genealogy & Local History Library will host a dedication of the Elijah P. Lovejoy printing press. Please come help us celebrate! The Telegraph and Hearst Communications donated the press to Hayner earlier this year and it will be on permanent display in the library. Light refreshments will be served and local actor John Meehan will portray Elijah Lovejoy in a brief presentation. The press came out of the Mississippi River in 1915 and has been on display in several locations since. We are very honored to be the new home of the Elijah P. Lovejoy Printing Press!

Elijah P. Lovejoy Printing Press: A History
"Lovejoy's tragic death for freedom in every sense marked his sad ending as the most important single event that ever happened in the new world."—Abraham Lincoln

Reverend Elijah P. Lovejoy was assassinated on November 7, 1837 at the Godfrey & Gilman warehouse and his press was smashed and thrown into the river. Lovejoy was an abolitionist, fiercely opposed to slavery, and published anti-slavery views in his newspaper, the Alton Observer. He became the first martyr to the Freedom of the Press. His final printing press was lost to the Mississippi River for three-quarters of a century.

On July 13, 1915, Doug Sparks of Sparks Mill discovered a piece of iron embedded in soil deep in the Mississippi River. Sparks and others speculated that it was a piece of Elijah Lovejoy's printing press. The next day, the cast iron frame, which weighed close to half a ton, was lifted from the excavation site at the corner of the Sparks Milling Company. Experts quickly confirmed that the bell-shaped object was a piece of an old hand press. Research by the firm of C.B. Cottrell & Sons determined that the object was a Smith hand printing press (also called an Acorn press), which meant that "unquestionably the frame is that of the Lovejoy printing press."

Sparks Milling Company had a bronze tablet created to hang from the press frame and placed the frame on a granite base in front of their office building on William Street. In September of 1915, Lovejoy's niece, named only as "Miss Lovejoy" in the paper, came from Jackrabbit, Arizona, to see the printing press frame. In October 1919, Lovejoy's nephew (and namesake) Elijah P. Lovejoy, son of Owen Lovejoy, visited Alton and viewed the press as well.

In 1937, to celebrate Alton's centennial (and to mark the Lovejoy centennial), the press was moved to the Alton Evening Telegraph office. Another item on display was a rock from Lovejoy's home in Albion, Maine. This rock is now housed at Hayner Library as well. The Lovejoy Press stayed at The Telegraph building for eighty years, where it could be viewed in the newspaper's foyer.

When The Telegraph newspaper moved to its new location earlier this year, Publisher Jim Shrader coordinated donating the Lovejoy Press to Hayner Library. It is truly an honor to have the press here and we are very grateful to The Telegraph and Hearst Communications. The Genealogy & Local History Library has a museum display on Lovejoy, many books about his life, and digitized copies of Lovejoy's newspaper, the Alton Observer. We are also a National Park Service passport location for the Abraham Lincoln National Heritage Area, so visitors interested in Lincoln's legacy will get a chance to see the press as well. John E. Hayner, the donor of the Jennie D. Hayner Library Building, who funded and built the Library as a memorial to his late wife, would be so proud to have the press at his library. Hayner was an ardent anti-slavery man and was interested for many years in the project of building a monument in memory of Elijah P. Lovejoy. Hayner was Treasurer of the Lovejoy Monument Association. The monument was dedicated on November 7, 1897, the sixtieth anniversary of Lovejoy's death. John Hayner died several years later and lies at rest in the shadow of that very monument.

Since its removal from the Mississippi River in 1915, the press has always resided in locations that are easily accessible. A piece of history this important deserves to be shared. The press will be placed on a granite slab in the foyer of the Genealogy & Local History Library and we invite everyone to come to the dedication on Sunday, November 4, 2018, from 2 to 4 p.m.

Wreaths Across America

Wreaths Across America is a grassroots movement begun in 1992 by Maine businessman Morrill Worcester. The organization's mission, "Remember, Honor, Teach," is carried out by coordinating wreath-laying ceremonies on a specified Saturday in December at Arlington National Cemetery and at veterans' cemeteries and other locations in all 50 states and beyond. Through the wreath-laying ceremonies and other coordinated events, the organization spreads its message about the importance of remembering our fallen heroes, honoring those who serve, and teaching our children about the sacrifices made by veterans and their families to preserve our freedoms.

Thanks to local volunteers, this organization and its mission have been active in Alton since 2007. On Saturday, December 15, 2018, our community will participate in the national Wreaths Across America ceremony. The ceremony will start at 11 a.m. in the Alton National Cemetery at Pearl Street and Joesting Avenue. Third grade students from West Elementary School in Alton, with the assistance of area veterans, will participate and help lay the wreaths on the veterans' graves.

In 2017, through community financial donations, 560 wreaths were placed on gravesites in our local national cemetery. Every dollar you can donate helps ensure a wreath at a veteran's gravesite. Help continue the success of this program by sending a financial donation to Wreaths Across America, P.O. Box 181, Alton, IL 62002. Each $30 of contributions enables the local organization to purchase three 20-inch live balsam wreaths.

For the third year, the local WAA effort will continue to offer a limited number of wreaths for families or friends to honor their veteran loved one at other local cemeteries. Wreath reservations must be received by Friday, November 23, 2018, by calling Margaret Hopkins at 618-570-8804.

Support our community in carrying forward the mission "Remember, Honor, Teach." Join the whole country in honoring our veterans, many of whom forfeited their own future Christmas celebrations for us. For more information, call Margaret Hopkins at 618-570-8804. Additional information is also available on the website www.wreathsacrossamerica.org.

Genealogy & Local History Library Holiday Open House Celebrates Illinois Statehood

401 State Street, Alton, Illinois 62002

Happy birthday, Illinois! This year's Genealogy & Local History Library Holiday Open House will celebrate the 200th anniversary of Illinois statehood. Join us for a special airing of the first episode of the "Illinois Turns 200" podcast amidst holiday decorations, family activities and more. Some of the panelists from the podcast will be "live and in person" to answer your questions and elaborate on the stories of Illinois.

Illinois entered the Union as the twenty-first state on December 3, 1818, and takes its name from the Illinois Confederation—a group of Algonquian-speaking tribes native to the area. An Algonquian word, "Illinois" means "tribe of superior men."

In August 2018, the Illinois Humanities Council kicked off a series of podcasts (pre-recorded radio shows) about Illinois history. The podcast, titled "Illinois Turns 200", looks at the past, present, and potential futures of seven Illinois communities that arose along rivers, railroads, and significant roads and tells their stories through live interviews, dramatic readings, archival material, and musical performances. Some of the research for the episode on Alton was done in the Genealogy & Local History Library, so we're very excited to hear which stories are included in the final recording.

With Deepest Sympathy

Harold L. Meisenheimer (1927-2018)

We call that person who has lost his father, an orphan; and a widower that man who has lost his wife. But that man who has known the immense unhappiness of losing a friend, by what name do we call him? Here every language is silent and holds its peace in impotence.

– Joseph Roux

There are no words to describe the sorrow of losing someone of whom we don't want to let go. There isn't a book or an author inside the walls of any library that can accurately tell us how we should react to, or recover from, the grief and sorrow of loss. It is a private journey.

I lost a remarkable friend on July 3, 2018. The sadness of his passing is as heavy as the weight of a wool coat in the summer heat. Throughout the course of my day, memories of our friendship tap me on the shoulder and I feel the sadness return. I watch the door for him to come inside, but he doesn't. I missed him yesterday, I still miss him today, and I will miss him for the rest of my tomorrows. It is what it is.

My friend possessed a modest, jovial soul. He was strong-spirited yet kind and gentle. Humility was an easy feat for him. He had an amazing knack for remembering history in extreme detail and he enjoyed sharing his knowledge without boasting.

His friendship was a genuine gift with no conditions attached. Once you got to know him he was simply your friend. He was someone on whom you could count and trust.

He cared deeply about family, he respected his fellow man and his presence in this world undoubtedly made it a better place. His life was a testament to his personal beliefs and unique talents. He maintained a strong but humble character.

The Hayner Public Library District was fortunate to have my friend as a loyal patron for many years. He was an ardent reader who used the library regularly to check out the newest western fiction books. But, to our great fortune, books were not his only reason for visiting the library. He would also stop by just to say hello, share a funny story, or to our delight, hand-deliver special treats, oftentimes sweet and homemade or fresh from the garden. We will always be grateful for his friendship and his various abilities that helped to enhance our library and our lives.

Entering his name as an author into the card catalog, ninety-nine records appear. Ninety-nine unique projects of his own handiwork, donated to Hayner Library with the purpose of preserving the history of the Alton area and the people who live here. Saying he had a passion for preserving history is an extreme understatement. This man was a walking history museum!

Hayner Library wasn't the only recipient of his contributions. The local newspaper interviewed and highlighted his life and his charitable endeavors many times during the last two decades. The Madison County Historical Society in Edwardsville also maintains a large collection of his projects. It seems as though many people around our community knew my friend too.

Over the past 15 years, I had the opportunity to spend countless hours working on special local history projects with my friend. There was never a dull moment. He made my job fun. Never one to avoid hard work or responsibility, he was honest, industrious and always willing to do whatever needed to be done. He was invaluable.

My friend was Harold L. Meisenheimer and there are no words in any language that can accurately describe the sorrow of losing such a dear person.

Harold was born and raised in Alton and he was proud to be a lifelong resident of this community. As a local boy, he worked at being loyal to his hometown roots. He attended Alton public schools, he was a faithful member of the Church of Christ and he retired from Owens-Illinois Glass Works after many years working in the maintenance department. But things changed for Harold in 1946 when he decided to leave the comforts of his beloved city, say goodbye to his family and friends and head into the great unknown to serve his country as a soldier in the United States Air Force. He told me once that he enjoyed his military career but he didn't much enjoy being away from home. According to Harold, it turned out okay because he said he came back with the prettiest gal in the whole state of Alabama on his arm. In 1949, Harold and his new bride, Alvie Sharp, settled into a home on the same street where he grew up and together they shared life for the next 69 years.

Harold had other interests besides history and reading. He also enjoyed wood working, collecting coins and gardening. During the winter holidays, he stayed busy making and sharing his homemade fudge recipes. He was also quite fond of Alvie's cats, although he wasn't open to admitting that very often!

On July 3, at approximately 10 p.m., Mr. Harold Meisenheimer passed away at Alton Memorial Hospital. He was 90 years old, but still an active library supporter. At the time of his departure, Harold was in the middle of three history projects for the Hayner Genealogy & Local History Library. I went to visit my dear friend on what (I didn't know at the time) would be his last day in this world. His parting words to me regarding his current situation were ones I will never forget. When I asked the customary question, "How are you doing?", my wonderful friend lifted his hands, looked me in the eyes and said, "Well, Pam, it is what it is." He didn't complain. He just accepted all things, including life and death, for "what it is."

Harold left this world while the Alton fireworks were lighting up the sky above his hometown. I wondered if this was a grand goodbye or the proper fanfare for a man who lit up every room he entered. I think both.

It has been said that history repeats itself. I am not sure this is true, because as long as there is life, history will never give us another Harold Meisenheimer. He was one-of-a-kind.

The Hayner Public Library District extends heartfelt sympathy to the family of Harold Meisenheimer. We will always be grateful for his friendship as well as the numerous contributions he so generously bestowed to our library. He will be missed.

Alton Little Theater's Vintage Voices 2018: "The Lasting Legacy"

Vintage Voices, now in its seventeenth year, will continue its tradition of guided gentle walking tours in the Alton Cemetery on October 6, 7, 13, and 14, from noon until 3 p.m. Tours will leave from the main gate of the cemetery (at Vine & 5th Streets) every 15 minutes. Each tour includes eight stops and eleven actor/docents who portray notable persons from Alton's rich history.

The characters and themes of this year's tours were carefully selected by Alton Little Theater Director Lee Cox. They represent the pride she feels in being a "hometown" girl who has come to appreciate her community, even more than before, through her work with Vintage Voices over the last six years. Knowing that this may be the last year her schedule allows her to coordinate the project, Lee wanted to leave a lasting impression of inspiration for the many loyal visitors who attend the fall fundraiser each year. Lee and others will bring to "life" some entertaining characters and will commemorate of some of Alton's finest (and saddest) hours in the hopes of inspiring us all to pick up the mantle of responsibility for making our community a better place for all.

The Legacy of Strong Women (Sophie Demuth and Mother Jones) will be portrayed by Loretta Williams; the Legacy of Gentle Strength (and commemoration of Robert Wadlow) will be portrayed by Nick Trapp and Kerry Miller (as Charles Goulding); The Legacy of Love and Literacy, celebrating the Haskell and Hayner families, will be portrayed by Nadja Kapetanovich and Diana Kay; The Legacy of Philanthropy will commemorate Dr. Gordon Moore, portrayed by Brant McCance; The Legacy of Life Lessons, remembering Elijah P. Lovejoy, will feature Lief Anderson as Edward Lovejoy and Lorian Warford as Anson B. Platt; The Legacy of Hometown Pride will commemorate Illinois statehood and Alton's history through the eyes of Don Alonzo Spaulding, portrayed by Michael Cox; The Legacy of Arts and Culture will feature an homage to Alton Little Theater founder Dorothy Colonius, portrayed by Pat Kulish; and The Legacy of Tolerance and Inclusion will celebrate the YWCA's 100th birthday, as seen through the eyes of Mary White Ovington, portrayed by Gail Drillinger.

The cost of adult tours is $15; students under 18 may attend for $10. Tickets will be available at the Alton Visitor's Center by September 1 and at the main gate of the Alton Cemetery at least 30 minutes before the tours begin

A non-walking brunch, catered by My Just Desserts, will be held at the Alton Little Theater Showplace on Saturday, October 13, 2018, at 10 a.m. Tickets for the brunch and presentation are $25 and may be purchased through the Alton Little Theater box office (462-3205) and through the Alton Little Theater website (www.altonlittletheater.org)

Just in Time for the Holidays

Looking for a new recipe for Thanksgiving? Looking for the perfect holiday gift? Look no further than Hayner Library! Hayner's original cookbook, Read' Em and Eat, is being sold for only $10! The cookbooks can be purchased at any Hayner Library location.

Food for Fines

Yearly, we have held a fine amnesty program, Food for Fines, in October. We will waive current fines on Hayner material if you contribute a nonperishable food item for each fine during the amnesty period.

During the holiday season, many community organizations hold drives to support centers such as the Crisis Food Center, but we often forget about helping those in need at other times of the year. We are holding this amnesty program in October to help people without waiting for the support of "holiday generosity." It may also help make Thanksgiving a happier time for families in need.

From October 1 through October 31, 2017, anyone who has an overdue item can pay his or her fine with a canned food item. Library materials must be returned with food donations, at least one food item per fine, and only Hayner materials are eligible. All food items collected throughout the month will be given to the Crisis Food Center in Alton. Of course, even if you don't have fines, feel free to donate items to help others in our community.

Perhaps you have some Hayner materials that got lost under the couch or behind the DVD player. Now is a great opportunity to return those items to the library and avoid the fines that have accrued. Fine amnesty is a great way to support critically important community organizations such as the Crisis Food Center—and it is also a great opportunity to return "lost" materials to the library so they can be reshelved for circulation. Thank you for your support.

Please Note!

Crisis Food Center is seeking volunteers to help sort food donations, pack bags, assist clients in selecting food, and load the items into their vehicles. They are also seeking volunteers to work in the clothing store. If you are looking for a great opportunity to volunteer in the community, this is it. Volunteers are needed Monday through Friday from 8:30 a.m. to noon and 1 p.m. to 3 p.m.

Volunteer applications may be obtained by visiting Crisis Food Center, 21 E. 6th Street, Alton, Monday through Friday, between 11 a.m. and 1 p.m. For questions, please contact Executive Director Nick Kessinger at 618-462-8201, Monday through Friday, from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. You may also visit their website at www.crisisfoodcenter.org. Crisis Food Center is a non-profit 501(c)(3) organization.

StoryWalk® Program

Hayner Library's newest program is bringing literacy to the great outdoors. The StoryWalk® program allows families the opportunity to read a story while visiting the inclusive playground at Gordon Moore Park and Hellrung Park, both in Alton.

StoryWalk® consists of taking laminated pages from a children's book and attaching them to core boards which are then posted at different intervals around the parks. Families begin with the first board and then move around the parks, going board-to-board, to read the rest of the story.

The program is designed to allow families to move around, enjoy the wonderful parks that the city has to offer, and most importantly for the library, to help improve literacy skills and a foster a love of reading. We hope this community program encourages families to visit the library and take home more books to read together.

The first story, Click, Clack, Moo: Cows That Type by Doreen Cronin (author) and Betsy Lewin (illustrator), was posted in August. The second story, Amazing Grace by Mary Hoffman (author) and Caroline Binch (illustrator), was posted in September. October's book will be The Little Old Lady Who Was Not Afraid of Anything by Linda D. Williams (author) and Megan Lloyd (illustrator).

If the program proves to be successful, the library will create more permanent StoryWalk® structures, spread out in greater distances, beginning in the spring.

Families are encouraged to send feedback to the library via email at outdoorstories@haynerlibrary.org or by visiting any Hayner Library location. The StoryWalk® program was created by Anne Ferguson of Montpelier, VT and developed in collaboration with the Kellogg-Hubbard Library.

Patron Profile: John Hentrich

John Hentrich is founder and Director of Riverbender.com and Riverbender.com Community Center. John has been a wonderful partner to The Hayner Public Library District since 2010, when he graciously allowed the library to begin using the Riverbender.com Community Center for our teen library programming. He even allowed the library to create a teen library room inside the center! John also allows library staff to hold our annual Staff Development Day training in the building as well.

John kindly agreed to answer some questions for the library's quarterly newsletter. I was curious as to how and when he came up with his great idea for the Riverbender.com website. While living and working in Chicago, John originally created an internet website for buying and selling cars. In fact, I could fill an entire article solely about John's love of cars! Six years after creating his automotive website, he sold it to AutoTrader.com and moved back to Alton. It was with this money, and his newfound freedom, that he was able to start the Riverbender.com website in 2005.

The goal of Riverbender.com is to build a website that helps the community prosper through affordable communication and advertising while shedding a positive spotlight on our region. The new site would allow people to advertise their business, be an avenue to sell products, become a place to congratulate others, and report success stories. "We want our community to shine. We want to attract new families to move here and existing families to stay. After all, Alton is a great community in which to raise a family and grow old together," said John.

The local economy is always a factor for the Riverbender.com website and business. According to John, "Our type of website and business gets better as the community and its economics get stronger."

In 2010, John launched the Riverbender.com Community Center, a nonprofit organization that invests in the area's youth. At the time of the community center's founding, Riverbender.com's customer base had grown to approximately 200. It was to this group that John turned for help in funding the project. Nearly every customer he talked with shared his vision; they were happy to help out with donations to get the project off the ground. John is extremely grateful to all the small business owners and private individuals who helped make his dream a reality! "The generosity of small business owners and private individuals is why we have been able to provide this service to thousands of kids over the last eight years," said John. The Riverbender.com Community Center receives no federal, state, or local money and no other organizations provide funding for its day-to-day operations.

Some of the original businesses and individuals who helped with the launch of the center still volunteer and serve on the Board of Directors. The community center has survived as a result of very committed volunteers who believe in the goal of "providing teens a safe and fun alternative to at-risk behaviors and negative peer pressure." Volunteers chaperone and mentor the youth on Friday nights and at all other events such as dances and lock-ins. They also help with fundraisers, policies, and overall direction. I asked John what he found to be the most challenging responsibility for him and others at the Riverbender.com Community Center. He said there is always a need for new volunteers, community supporters, and youth. Long-term volunteers grow tired, businesses who donate to the center sometimes struggle to make ends meet, and his best customers, the teens, grow up and no longer come to fun nights at the Riverbender.com Community Center. He told me it takes a huge amount of effort to sustain the service to the community.

I asked John what he would most like to tell the community about the Riverbender.com Community Center. His answer was, "Get involved! Participation alone makes all the difference in how we succeed as a community. Everyone can do something!"

Thank you, John, for coming back to Alton to do something good for your community!

A Very Grand Gesture

Lovejoy Press Yoke Donated to Hayner Library

By David Blanchette
From The Telegraph, Monday, November 5, 2018
Reprinted with permission

ALTON — An original piece of the most significant event in Alton's history has a new permanent home at the Hayner Public Library's Genealogy and Local History Library at 401 State St.

The yoke, or main framework, of the printing press that was thrown into the Mississippi River the night that Elijah P. Lovejoy was murdered by an angry mob on Nov. 7, 1837 can now be seen in the lobby of the Genealogical and Local History Library following a dedication ceremony on Sunday attended by approximately 100 people.

The half-ton, acorn-shaped, black metal artifact had been displayed for more than 80 years in the lobby of The Telegraph Building at 111 E. Broadway. The newspaper's new owners, Hearst Corporation, donated the yoke to the library after the paper's offices moved to a new building.

"What better match for the Lovejoy press is there than a library, where we promote freedom of speech and freedom of information," said The Hayner Public Library District Executive Director Bernadette Duvernoy. "This is a very grand gesture from The Telegraph and the Hearst Corporation."

The Lovejoy press yoke has only been in three locations since its 1915 discovery by personnel from the Sparks Milling Company – at the milling company, now the site of Ardent Mills; The Telegraph; and Hayner Library.

Elijah P. Lovejoy reenactor John Meehan speaks during Sunday's dedication ceremony while former Telegraph publisher Jim Shrader looks on

"It's what the press stands for more than the physical piece itself," said Lacy McDonald, the Genealogy and Local History Manager for Hayner Public Library. "Lovejoy's murder was looked upon as the first death of the Civil War and it motivated a lot of Abolitionists to really fight for the cause. Elijah Lovejoy's brother Owen was a U.S. Senator from Illinois who helped write the 13th Amendment, which abolished slavery. Abraham Lincoln also talked about Lovejoy when he was formulating his views on slavery."

"1837 was also the year Alton was incorporated, so our entire identity as a city is wrapped up in the Lovejoy story," McDonald said.

The decision to move the historical artifact to Hayner Library came after a suggestion by Steve Cousley, publisher of The Telegraph from 1970 to 1986, when he realized there was no realistic plan for the the yoke when the newspaper moved to its new offices.

"This press was too close to the door and to the dumpster, so I had to do something about it," Cousley said. "It gives me a great deal of satisfaction to see it rescued. I had a lot of help from a lot of people. I tried to be low-key but it's hard to do sometimes, especially with something as important as this."

One of the people instrumental in the events leading to Sunday's dedication was Jim Shrader, the recently retired publisher of The Telegraph, whom Cousley first contacted about the possibility of moving it to Hayner Library.

Shrader said Mike St. Peters from Abbott Machine Company offered to move the press piece out of the newspaper offices and store it until Hayner was ready for it, then installed the yoke in the Hayner lobby, all at no cost to the library

"I can think of no better place for it. This is something that needs to be taught to folks," Shrader said. "This press yoke is a monument to the martyr Elijah Parish Lovejoy, to the First Amendment, to the Abolitionist movement, and to the racial freedom that we enjoy today that never would have been imagined in 1837."

"This Presbyterian minister who had a fourth press shipped to him in Alton, Illinois had no idea how long his memory would live," Shrader said. The 1830s iron hand press was called an acorn press because of the shape of the supporting cast iron frame, or yoke, which is what remains today of Lovejoy's press, according to research performed by McDonald When these presses were made in the 1830s it was immediately before the printing revolution of the mid 19th century during which all facets of the printing operation became mechanized.

Printing during Lovejoy's day was a very labor-intensive process Ink was made by hand every morning by mixing carbon and boiled linseed oil. Printing plates containing the words intended for publication were made by hand, composed of thousands of individual pieces of metal type and arranged on a metal plate The ink was applied to the type, the strong pull of a horizontal lever "pressed" paper onto the inked type, the printed piece of paper was removed, and the process repeated. Two trained operators could perform these steps every 15 seconds for ten to twelve hours a day.

Elijah Parish Lovejoy was born in Maine in 1802, moved to St Louis in 1826, became a Presbyterian minister, and in the 1830s began publication of The St. Louis Observer, a religious newspaper that advocated the abolition of slavery. Lovejoy's anti-slavery editorials enraged slavery supporters who then destroyed his printing presses, so Lovejoy decided in 1836 to move from the slave state of Missouri to the free state of Illinois

Lovejoy continued to publish vehement antislavery sentiments in his Alton Observer despite threats from pro-slavery factions in Alton. When pressured to leave the city, the Presbyterian minister replied, "You may hang me… You may burn me at the stake, tar and feather me, or throw me into the Mississippi, but you cannot disgrace me. I and I alone can disgrace myself; and the deepest of all disgrace would be, at a time like this to deny my Master by forsaking his cause."

Abbott Machine Company management and staff who volunteered their time and efforts to move the Lovejoy Press from The Telegraph building on Broadway to its new home at the Hayner Genealogy & Local History Library

Lovejoy was killed the evening of Nov. 7, 1837 when a mob attacked a warehouse where the publisher and his supporters were guarding a new printing press for the Observer. After Lovejoy was shot to death the mob broke his press into pieces and threw it out the warehouse window into the Mississippi River. It was the fourth Lovejoy printing press destroyed during his brief publication career.

Join Us for Our Historic Preservation Series

Reimagining Places of the Past: Historic Preservation Lecture Series, Part 1
Lucy Semple Ames and the Principia Campus
Saturday, January 26, 10 a.m.

The first of these lectures concerns Lucy Semple Ames, whose country estate is now the Principia College campus. The daughter of James Semple (founder of Elsah), Lucy was an astute businesswoman as well as a society leader and suffragette, and her four children also led interesting lives. The talk will be given by Esley Hamilton, who retired as preservation historian for the St. Louis County Parks and Recreation Department in 2015, after 38 years of service. As preservation historian, Esley added eight districts and 30 individual properties to the National Register of Historic Places and gave countless speeches about the importance of historic homes and towns. Seating is limited.

Reimagining Places of the Past: Historic Preservation Lecture Series, Part 2
Paint It Right! – Historic Houses
Saturday, February 23, 10 a.m.

To be presented at the Genealogy & Local History Library at 401 State Street, Alton.
Bob Yapp, President of Preservation Resources Inc. and founder of the Belvedere School for Hands-On Preservation, will describe how to get a 15 to 20 year, cost-effective paint job for your historic house. Replacement siding can seem like a really great way to make your house look better and avoid the hassles of painting, but with Bob's tips, you can hire a contractor to paint your house twice in 30 to 40 years, never lift a finger, and pay less than installing plastic siding that will last approximately 18 to 20 years. This presentation will include a question-and-answer session, props, and handouts. Seating is limited. Register at 1-800-613-3163.

The History of Black History Month

Black History Month has been officially celebrated in the United States every year since 1976 Other countries such as Canada and the United Kingdom recognize this American tradition as well. The history behind this properly respected celebration is actually a riveting story intertwined around the life of a man named Dr. Carter G. Woodson that began ninety-three years ago.

Dr. Woodson was a noted scholar of African American history. Born in 1875 to former slaves and a brother to eight siblings, he started life with humble beginnings His parents, James and Anne (Riddle) Woodson, had overcome mountains of challenging circumstances to gain their freedom, purchase land and start a family in New Canton, Virginia. But even as free landowners, life was hard for the couple. Racial tension and cultural differences created strains while raising their family in late nineteenth century America.

At a young age, Carter exhibited an ambitious character with a natural ability for learning. During his grade school years he oftentimes had to miss months of class in order to work various jobs on the family farm. Despite being away from school for long periods, his grades stayed steady and he never gave up his ultimate goal of receiving a strong education. This would become his personal tool in educating the world on the history of the African American people.

Continuous obligations to his family kept him from entering high school until the age of twenty, but even then he did it skillfully enough to finish the curriculum in half the time Carter had no plans of ending his formal education at the high school level. He had always known the value of education and he put a high price on that belief. He began his college career by first earning a Bachelor of Literature degree from Berea College in Kentucky and then, while traveling and working abroad, he studied for a short period at Sorbonne University in Paris.

Woodson earned a master's degree from the University of Chicago in 1908 and in 1912 he earned his doctorate in history from Harvard University, becoming just the second African American (after W.E B. Du Bois) to earn a Ph D. from the prestigious institution. During his collegiate studies, Woodson held several positions in academia. He served as principal of the high school from which he had graduated, was the dean of Howard University, and also worked for the U.S. government as a school superintendent in the Philippines Even while receiving his own education, educating others was a high priority to Carter Woodson.

By 1915, Woodson had become extremely frustrated with the education system's underrepresentation, or more disturbingly in some cases, exclusion, of African Americans in history. Proclaiming, "If a race has no history, it has no worthwhile tradition, it becomes a negligible factor in the thought of the world, and it stands in danger of being exterminated," he began what would become a lifelong mission to ensure African Americans were given their rightful place within the education system, and ultimately in history. It was in this same year that he published his first book (one of many he would write) entitled The Education of the Negro Prior to 1861 and co-founded the Association for the Study of Negro Life and History (ASNLH). Dr Woodson wanted the world to know and to acknowledge that African Americans had played major parts in our nation's history. He wanted this information taught in schools and documented in written works This was his purpose in life and he was amazingly successful in making both happen.

In 1926, Dr. Woodson established 'Negro History Week'. He chose the second week in February so that it would coincide with the birthdays of President Abraham Lincoln and renowned abolitionist Frederick Douglass. Negro History Week became the foundation for the month-long celebration we now recognize as Black History Month.

Woodson's monumental efforts to educate and to document the history of his race earned him the well-deserved and distinguished title of The Father of Black History. Carter probably never realized that his passion for history actually made history itself!

Dr Carter Woodson passed away on April 3, 1950. He was laid to rest in the Lincoln Memorial Cemetery in Suitland, Maryland. He never married and had no children yet his legacy lives on in many ways and particularly so every February

No matter how you chose to celebrate Black History, don't forget to give honor to the remarkable man who made this month happen, Dr. Carter G Woodson

Theresa McDonald Biography

When I interview biography subjects for the newsletter, I usually have them fill out a questionnaire. The questionnaire acts as a primer and helps me to dig a little deeper with other questions later. This month, I am writing about Theresa McDonald who works in the library's Technical Service department. This young woman is very bright, creative, fun and quirky. Quirky, when used to describe this young woman, is meant to be a loving compliment. Let me give you an example. My first question posed to Theresa was, "Where were you born?" Theresa's answer was, "In a hospital." I thought to myself, "Oh, Lord, how am I going to bring her down to my way of thinking?"

Guess what? I am not bringing her down to my way of thinking—I am going up to her level! Here it goes!

I asked her to tell me a little about growing up. She told me she got taller. The street on which she grew up was the perfect combination of Winnipeg during hockey season and a rustic 1950s sheep farm. The neighborhood children were reminiscent of the Lollipop Guild from The Wizard of Oz and she is still haunted by their singing! She has an older brother and sister. She tells me she is legally bound not to talk about the crimes, I mean the mischief, the McDonald children got into.

She attended Mark Twain Elementary and Lovejoy Elementary, East Middle School and Alton High School. Her parents wanted to keep life interesting so they had her attend high school first and then work her way down. In fifth grade she made her acting debut as Elf Number Four in the school Christmas play. Despite glowing reviews, she declined offers to star on Broadway in order to remain humble.

After high school, she thought she wanted to be a daycare teacher. She enrolled in early childhood education classes for a semester but realized it wasn't what she wanted to spend her life doing. She decided to take some time off from school in order to contemplate her future. It was during this time that she became an employee at Hayner Library, starting as a Page. Library Pages shelve books and keep library materials in order. After working at the library for a little while, Theresa was promoted to the Circulation department. In 2010, she moved into the Technical Service department. Patrons may still see her roaming around the library filling in for other departments when the need arises.

Theresa says she will never forget "the big move" when the Alton Square Library moved from the upper level of the Alton Square Mall into its current location on the lower level. Theresa said that the move involved many hours of hard work boxing up books, audiobooks, CDs, and DVDs and making sure everything was kept in order so that unpacking and re-shelving would be easier in the new library. She says it was tense, hectic and exhausting work but she proudly looks back and says, "I was a part of the big move!"

One of the most important people in Theresa's life was her grandfather William Daniels. He was a large John Wayne-type of guy, was very generous and had a big heart! Theresa will also be forever grateful for her friend Shannon W. who is always there for her! Theresa has always loved her imaginary friend Guido, whom she admires for his honesty, even when he told her she was too weird for him and promptly disappeared from her life.

Theresa is very imaginative. She loves to create things and she does it in many ways. She sews, cooks, builds things and loves to write. Her biggest accomplishment was making a couch out of discarded VHS tapes!

I asked Theresa what her favorite book is and why. You won't be surprised. Her favorite book is Alice's Adventures in Wonderland. She feels it is as if Lewis Carroll traveled through time and crawled inside her mind and said, "Hmm, this place is a wonderland."

She feels terribly indebted to friends and family who have helped her through some rough patches. One of Theresa's favorite inspirational quotes is from Carole King, "You've got to get up every morning with a smile on your face and show the world all the love in your heart."

Theresa McDonald is very kind, bright and has a heart big enough to share with us all.

I would like to end this fun and quirky article with a quote from Alice's Adventures in Wonderland.

"And the moral of that is—'Be what you would seem to be'—or, if you'd like it put more simply—'Never imagine yourself not to be otherwise than what it might appear to others that what you were or might have been was not otherwise than what you had been would have appeared to them to be otherwise.'" —Chapter 9, "The Mock Turtle's Story"

Attention, Fellow Insomniacs

Since middle school, I've had difficulty turning my brain off at night in order to get a good night's sleep. Over the years, I've tried many things that I thought might help: breathing exercises, over-the-counter sleep aids, playing mind games, scenting my pillow with lavender, etc. The remedies had mixed results, but recently, I've accidently stumbled upon a method that has, so far, worked perfectly.

A while ago, I checked out a thirty-seven disc audiobook (yikes!) with a two-week checkout period. I decided to listen to some of the discs at night while trying to get to sleep. On the first night, a miracle occurred! As I focused my mind on the book's plot, no other thoughts invaded, allowing me to drift off to sleep. It's hard to believe that there have been times when I have lost an entire night's sleep and nowadays I'm asleep even before the third track starts!

–Theresa McDonald

Hmm, This Voice Sounds Familiar

Have you ever listened to an audiobook and thought to yourself, "I know I've heard the narrator's voice before." That might be because some of Hollywood's most famous stars also narrate audiobooks!

Benedict Cumberbatch—Sherlock Holmes. The Rediscovered Railway Mysteries and Other Stories by John Taylor

Claire Danes—The Handmaid's Tale by Margaret Atwood and The Snow Queen by Michael Cunningham

Johnny Depp—A Life by Keith Richards.

Meryl Streep—The One and Only Shrek! by William Steig and Rabbit Ears: Stories by Beatrix Potter by Beatrix Potter

Library Crawl

Congratulations to the winners of our inaugural Library Crawl 2019! The winners had a lot of fun visiting other participating libraries in the Illinois Heartland Library System and getting their Library Crawl 2019 passport stamped. One of our participants, Sally Bland, visited all 26 libraries on the Crawl—and said it was the most fun she's had in a long time!

The Library Crawl was a great way for patrons within the Illinois Heartland Library System to visit other libraries—and to experience the wide array of library programming, collections, and services available in our state.

We had so much fun visiting with patrons from other libraries who came to Hayner Library to get their passport stamped. We can't wait to participate in next year's Library Crawl.

Each winner received a gift certificate to an Alton restaurant: My Just Desserts, Morrison's Irish Pub, and Old Bakery Beer Company. We would also like to thank Morrison's Irish Pub for their generous donation of a gift certificate.

It's spring fever. That is what the name of it is. And when you've got it, you want – oh, you don't quite know what it is you do want, but it just fairly makes your heart ache, you want it so!

—Mark Twain

Spring is finally here! It's time to shake off winter and head outside to enjoy the warmer days. Hayner Library has everything you need to enhance your enjoyment of the great outdoors. We offer gardening kits, fishing poles, and telescopes, all of which can be checked out for free with a library card.

Meet the Pups

Did you happen to admire the pictures of the cute dogs in the Alton Square Library display window last month? Well then meet the dogs in person at one of our Bow-wow Pow-wow programs! These canines are professionally-trained therapy dogs and they enjoy meeting new people, especially kids.

Just like all of Hayner Library's programs, Bow-wow Pow-wow is absolutely free. No registration is needed for this program. Tails begin wagging at 10 a.m. on the second Saturday of every month at the Alton Square Library. Be sure to bring the whole family—it's a doggone good time!

Food for Fido

Help us Help Them

Do you have Hayner Library materials that are still checked out and are embarrassingly overdue? Do you keep getting notices in the mail and are scared of what your fine is? Then breathe a sigh of relief. From April 1 through April 30, if you have an overdue item, you may pay your fine with an item of pet food. This amnesty applies to Hayner materials only Library materials must be returned with the donation and at least one donation made for each fine.

All the donations will go to our furry friends residing at the 5A's Animal Shelter. The devoted staff of this no-kill shelter relies entirely on donations to provide proper care to the adoptable animals that have been abandoned, neglected, or abused…animals like Melissa and Karma (pictured below ) For more information about this worthy organization, call (618) 466-3702, visit their website at www.fiveas org, visit their Facebook page, or pay them a visit at 4530 N. Alby St., Godfrey, IL.

Have a Reference Librarian in Your Own Home!

We all know that the Internet is a great tool for performing quick searches and obtaining basic information. But the online world can be a bit scary when you need reliable, credible and timely information. In years past, patrons would call the Reference department of their public library to obtain information; they knew that the librarians would use up-to-date reference works and cite their sources when answering questions. Libraries still provide this wonderful one-on-one service, but what should you do when the library is closed and you need information? Before you turn to Google, try a research database!

What is a research database? A research database is a searchable collection of information, including journals, newspapers, magazines, reports, maps, newsletters and more Unlike some information found on the Internet, the information contained in research databases has a scholarly and/or peer-reviewed filter and authority and trustworthiness are virtually guaranteed Research databases are focused by subject, eliminating irrelevant information. Research databases are also equipped to make research easier—users have the ability to save, print and email articles, and there's even a citation format tool for students (MLA, APA, AMA, etc.).

Hayner Library offers several research databases, which are available 24/7 on the library's website. All you need is a Hayner Library card to use these FREE resources from the comfort of your own home. Our databases cover a wide range of topics, including:

- AutoMate: Auto repair and maintenance information. Includes diagnostic manuals, diagrams, labor times, recall information, repair information, etc
- NoveList Plus: Readers' advisory database for fiction. Includes recommendations and reviews, what-to-read-next information, read-alike information, etc.
- NoveList Plus K-8 Readers' advisory database for children's fiction Includes recommendations and reviews, what-to-read-next information, read-alike information, etc.
- Primary Search: A full-text database providing popular children's magazines, easy-to-read encyclopedic entries and a vast image collection. Students can learn about a variety of topics
- MasterFILE Premier: This database provides full-text magazines, reference books and primary source documents It also includes an extensive image collection containing photos, maps and flags
- Consumer Health Complete: Supports the information needs of patients and fosters an overall understanding of health-related topics. This resource provides content covering all key areas of health and wellness, from mainstream medicine to the many perspectives of complementary and holistic medicine
- ConsumerReports.org: Digital archive of Consumer Reports magazine. Includes product reviews, tests, etc.

To access the databases from home or your mobile device, visit www haynerlibrary org and click on the Online Resources link at the top of the page. You will need a valid Hayner Library card to access the databases from home. The databases are also available for use on any Hayner Library computer during normal library hours.

A Civil War Muster Roll Journeys North

Jean Shimunek, Hayner Reference Librarian:

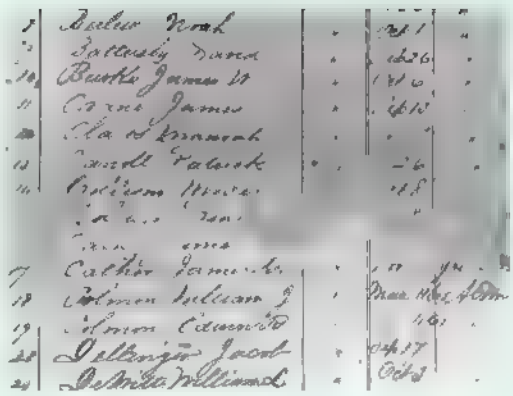
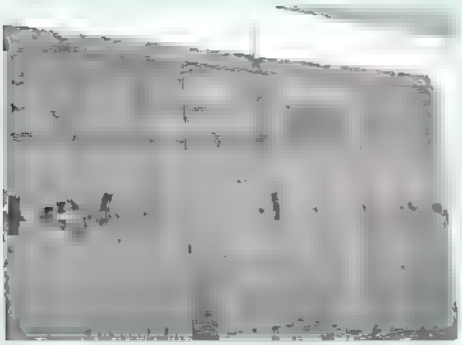
While cleaning out our mother's house, my sisters and I came across a document tucked away in one of her drawers. It was rolled up in a cardboard cylinder and could easily have been tossed out. Thank goodness we saved it!



As it turned out, the document was a long-missing muster roll (a handwritten list of names of prisoners) from the Alton Penitentiary, dated April 30–June 30, 1865. We actually did not know the real historical value, just that it was from the Civil War and that it had to do with my mother's grandfather, Charles H. Bartlett, and his two year service as clerk at the Alton Penitentiary.



Charles H. Bartlett migrated with his family by canal boat from Boston and in 1858 settled on a farm located near Scarritt's Prairie in Godfrey (originally known as Monticello). He was a farmer who was a former member of The Bach Society of Boston and the Literary Guild of St. Louis. An incident during his service as clerk at the Alton Penitentiary became part of family lore. When he was out exercising the prisoners, a wagonload of parched corn came down the hill traveling towards the river. The starving prisoners eyed the corn as it started to pass by. Understanding their dire need to eat, he compassionately turned his back so they could get handfuls of the corn.

Soon after I discovered the muster roll, I called Hayner Genealogy & Local History Manager Lacy McDonald. She was ecstatic and knew exactly where the muster roll would be best preserved.

Lacy McDonald, Hayner Genealogy & Local History Manager:

Alton was an extremely important city during the Civil War, and when Jean called to tell me that she had found an original muster roll, I was shocked. The 144th Illinois Infantry Regiment was organized at Alton, Illinois, and was mustered into Federal service on October 21, 1864. The regiment served in garrisons in the Saint Louis, Missouri area and at the Alton Penitentiary and was mustered out of service at the end of the war, on July 14, 1865. At the end of the war, the muster rolls were supposed to go the state of Illinois, but for some reason the 144th Illinois Infantry Regiment's rolls never made it. Some of their muster rolls have been found here and there, like Jean's family's, but most have been missing for the last 150 or so years, so Jean's discovery is a big deal for the state. I emailed the director of the Illinois State Archives, Dave Joens, and he immediately got back in touch to say that they would love to have the roll and that he would come down from Springfield personally to pick it up. Dave and his colleague Cathy Popovitch arrived a week later. Neither Dave nor Cathy had ever been to Alton before (though Dave mentioned how fondly their boss, Secretary of State Jesse White, talks about Alton, his hometown), and they both enjoyed the visit to the library and lunch at My Just Desserts.

After the muster roll made it to the Archives it needed some TLC. Staff humidified it, flattened it, and gave it a light cleaning. They removed the tape to prevent future deterioration and solidified the gaps with heat-set tissue (mending tape). They then placed it in a large acid free folder which was placed in a temperature and humidity controlled vault for storage. The muster roll will be scanned and a digital copy will be added to the Hayner collection.

I cannot stress enough how important this muster roll is to future researchers. Dave told Jean and me that the Archives possessed the enlistment muster roll for the 144th and the muster out muster roll for the 144th, but did not have an active duty muster roll until Jean's family's generous gift. This greatly helps their collection and, considering this is for the Alton prison, Dave believes these muster rolls will be utilized by researchers in the future. Thanks to the instinct by Jean's mother, Alice Bartlett Marsh, to save this document, a little piece of history is preserved for future generations. It always amazes me what treasures can be found tucked away in attics, closets, and drawers.

A Little Digging Required: A Beginner's Guide to Uncovering Your Family's Roots

Filling in the empty boxes on your family tree diagram can be an intimidating project, especially if you have limited knowledge of the past generations in your family. Luckily, Hayner Library has an entire Genealogy & Local History Library dedicated to helping you along your ancestral journey.
And knowing your grandparents' information might just be enough!

Knowing just a grandparent's name will allow you to perform a basic newspaper archive search. The newspaper archive search may reveal an obituary or wedding announcement, which may reveal a great-grandparent's name (along with other family members' names).

Once your great-grandparents' names are found, the library offers resources such as Ancestry.com and fold3.com, which will allow you to look into past census and military records in the hopes of uncovering more information on their families. And just like that, an impossible project is underway!

But why limit yourself to finding only names and dates when a wealth of other information is waiting to be found? With the resources available at the Hayner Genealogy & Local History Library, you might be able to uncover details about your ancestors such as passport records, family businesses, church membership records, and more. And if your family lived locally, you might even be able to find pictures of the house in which they lived!

Still need a little help getting started? No problem! One of our knowledgeable staff members is more than willing to assist you any time the Genealogy & Local History Library is open. You can even make an appointment for one-on-one assistance by calling 462-0677, option 3. We look forward to helping you find out more about your family's history!

Who is Mother Goose?

Most children will hear a Mother Goose nursery rhyme well before they are aware of other narrative rhymes, such as the classic children's book The Cat in the Hat. But is the fabled mother of children's rhymes a real person?

The answer is a bit tricky, as variants of the name "Mother Goose" have appeared in numerous places throughout history.

According to Boston legend, the "real" Mother Goose might have been one of the city's dearly departed residents. According to legend, in 1719, a prominent Boston printer by the name of Thomas Fleet published a book entitled Songs for the Nursery; or, Mother Goose's Melodies for Children. The book was a compilation of silly songs and nursery rhymes his mother-in-law, Elizabeth Foster Goose, would sing throughout the day while tending to her grandchildren. The songs and rhymes were those she invented in her younger days.

However, literary historians point to the existence of various French texts, some as far back as the tenth century, when discussing the origin of Mother Goose. King Robert II of France (A.D. 972-1031) had a wife who told tales to entertain children. And texts, dating as early as 1626, show the French terms "mere l'oye" or "mere oye" (Mother Goose) being used.

In 1697, French author Charles Perrault published a popular collection of rhymes and stories subtitled Les Contes de ma Mère l'Oie (Tales of My Mother Goose). In 1729, British writer and translator Robert Samber translated Perrault's collection into English under the title Histories or Tales of Past Times, Told by Mother Goose. Samber's collection was republished in 1786 and gained popularity in the United States.

While the identity of the "real" Mother Goose may be up for debate, one thing is certain: the popularity of the rhymes endure.

All locations of The Hayner Public Library District will be closed Friday, April 5, 2019, for our annual staff in-service and training day.

Adult Winter Reading

The adult winter reading program was a great success. Over 50 patrons signed up to participate in the program—along with a chance to win an Amazon Echo. This year's winners were Darlene Watts and Danelle St. Peters.

Please join us in June for our summer reading program, when our theme will be "It's Showtime at Your Library."

Alton ABC

From concept through illustration, design, and binding, a small group of Alton High School students and their teacher, Mrs. Lexa Browning-Needham, have collaborated with our own Reneé B. Johnson of the Hayner Genealogy & Local History Library to publish Alton ABC. The rhyming alphabet picture book is designed to delight and inform, acknowledging the present and the history of our area. Please join us in celebrating these students during the Alton ABC book signing and reading Saturday, May 18, 2019, from 11 a.m.–12 p.m., at the Genealogy & Local History Library, 401 State Street, Alton. No registration required.

All Town, USA Anniversary Celebration

Saturday, May 11, 10 a.m.–12 p.m.

Genealogy & Local History Library, 401 State Street, Alton

Join us for the one year anniversary of the release of All Town, USA! Have coffee and cookies with some of the people interviewed in the podcast as we join together to celebrate what we love about Alton. No registration required.

New Philadelphia

Book review by George Fuller, Hayner Genealogy & Local History Library

New Philadelphia is the greatest social experiment you've never heard of. Bought, planned, and founded by a self-freed slave, New Philadelphia became an integrated community and active stop along the Underground Railroad. Author Gerald A. McWorter (also known as Abdul Alkalimat) descended from "Free" Frank McWorter, founder of New Philadelphia. McWorter is a professor emeritus of information sciences and African American studies at the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign. Co-author Kate Williams-McWorter, wife of Gerald, is an associate professor of information sciences, also at the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign.

The book covers the entire timeline for New Philadelphia and also provides biographical information about Frank McWorter and his family. The six chapters of the book cover each phase in the life of the town of New Philadelphia. The first chapter introduces the place that New Philadelphia holds in United States history. We are then given the quite marvelous and compelling McWorter family history. Chapters three through six cover the life cycle of New Philadelphia from its purchase and founding to its decline, and then to its re-emergence via historical research and archaeology.

Having no prior knowledge of New Philadelphia, I found the history quite inspiring. This is not the first book written about New Philadelphia; however, I would suggest it as a starting point for anyone with an interest. The tale of Frank McWorter and his lifelong quest to buy the freedom of his entire family out of slavery is in itself a story that stands alone. He had a tireless sense of duty to his family—beginning with his wife, then himself, then his children and eventually even grandchildren. Frank freed them all. Frank set the precedent, and his family, and eventually the community he founded, followed suit in the mission to free those enslaved.

Gerald and Kate have collected information compiled by the New Philadelphia Association and created a thorough narrative that brings New Philadelphia to life. Utilizing information that has been preserved by the founding families, oral histories that have been handed down generation to generation, newspaper clippings, court documents, and now archaeology, the McWorter's have made the facts and artifacts of New Philadelphia available to the reader in the quotations and wealth of photos within the book.

Grandpa's Passel of Piglets and Grandma's Roses, a Love Story

My grandmother loved roses. All over her yard she grew big colorful bushes full of blooms She embroidered their images on napkins and pillowcases. Her walls held photographs and paintings of these magnificent flowers. The centerpiece of her old rugged farmhouse table always held a cumbersome bouquet of red and yellow blooms enveloped in haphazard greenery. She even kept rose water on the sink in her bathroom so she could smell like her beloved flora. I always believed the roses were an obsession, but in our family, it was considered taboo to talk about such indiscretions, so I never questioned the eccentrics of her hobby. Up until a few weeks ago, I just always accepted that grandma loved roses and everything associated with them But one afternoon, not too long ago, the reason for her obsession became clear

A few weeks ago while doing some genealogy research, I came across an old newspaper article about my grandfather when he was a young lad growing up along the bluegrass hills of Kentucky. The passage wasn't much more than just a few lines informing the citizens of Calloway County that little Clarence Walker of Murray, Kentucky, was raising a passel of piglets to sell at the annual Pig Day Roundup being held at the county fairgrounds I thought about this for a moment before I realized that I had no idea what a passel of piglets were I am not a youngster myself anymore, so I was a little disappointed that I did not know more history about grandpa's smelly little hog-hobby involving some kind of passel of piglets. So, I Googled it. There it was. Not only a definition, but some really cute images of pint-sized baby pigs in a wide range of colors!

According to the Merriam-Webster Dictionary, my grandpa Clarence was raising a "large quantity or a group" of piglets to take to market when he was only 12 years old Grandma loved her roses, but grandpa's obsession was swine!

It should be of no surprise when I reveal that my grandpa was a hog farmer. Obviously his hobby as a young boy grew with him and became a passion in his adult life. No doubt the fostering of those passels of piglets gave him the knowledge and desire he needed to choose it as his occupation.

During my grandparents' marriage, grandma refused to go anywhere near the hogs or their messy little mud pens and grandpa wouldn't even consider trimming her rose bushes. It was obvious that they had come to an understanding about each other's obsessions.

The mystery of my grandparents' fascinations has finally come to fruition I believe grandma used those roses to help her see right past the sight of passels of muddy piglets and the smell of putrid slop buckets Roses brought beauty and sweet aroma into the malodorous little farm she happily shared with grandpa. Roses and pigs were their passions, not their madness

Genealogy isn't just about adding names and dates to a family chart. It is also about the addition of stories which will allow us to bring out the personalities of the folks we call family..

Do you know what your grandparents' passions were? Visit our Geneology & Local History Library and let us help you start your family history research today

How to Protect Yourself from Fake News

As the presidential election cycle begins to pick up speed, we will likely hear the term "fake news" used increasingly by political commentators across all forms of media. But what does the term really mean and why should we care about it?

Fake news is false information spread with the deliberate attempt to mislead, especially for financial or political gain. The information may be invented, manipulated, or presented out of context or with a deliberate ideological slant. While misinformation is not new, technological advances have made fake news much easier to create and disseminate than ever before. And creators now have the knowledge and tools to make their content even more believable and persuasive.

So how can we protect ourselves from fake news?

1. Read beyond the headline: Headlines are often exaggerated or falsified to attract clicks. Make sure you've read (and evaluated) the whole story.
2. Check the date: Old stories may be recirculated to confuse readers about current events.
3. Examine the source: Fake news sources may attempt to mimic authentic sources by making small changes to a trusted web address or name. Misspellings and incorrect grammar are also often signs of an unreliable source. Always ask yourself these questions: What is the mission or purpose of the site presenting the story? Is the author real and credible?
4. Evaluate the evidence: A trustworthy author should provide links or references to supporting sources, such as legitimate experts in the field. Additionally, those experts should be represented fairly. Remember that a story isn't automatically fake news just because it contradicts our current beliefs. Draw your conclusions from evidence that holds up under objective and repeated scrutiny.
5. Read laterally: How do other news sources present the story? Are there multiple experts on this topic? Do they agree? Be sure to consider their credentials. Reading laterally is a great way to avoid echo chambers (when our beliefs are reinforced by viewpoints repeated inside closed groups of like-minded individuals) and filter bubbles (when website algorithms isolate us by only presenting information they predict we want to see).
6. Consult a fact-checking website: Fact-checking sites (such as Politifact.com, Factcheck.org, Snopes.com, and TruthOrFiction.com) often provide evidence and sources for their evaluations of a topic. Review these sources yourself to evaluate the original story.
7. Recognize your biases: We all have biases as a result of our life experiences and cultures. Creators of fake news work hard to manipulate our biases and emotions to their advantage. Consider how your beliefs could affect your judgement.
8. Don't perpetuate the problem: Take your time when evaluating a news story—resist pressure to quickly share stories or information that you have not first examined for accuracy and intent.

Highlights of the Hayner Art Collection – River Landscape by Frederick Oakes Sylvester

Welcome to the first installment of a series on some of our most treasured artwork. We invite you to come into the Genealogy & Local History Library to see this and other beautiful works in person.

Frederick Oakes Sylvester was born in North Bridgewater, Massachusetts, on October 8, 1869 He studied at the Massachusetts Normal School in Boston before becoming an instructor in the Art Department at Newcomb College in New Orleans. At Newcomb, Sylvester further developed his interest in the Arts & Crafts movement and created works in metal and tooled leather. He left Newcomb College and moved to St. Louis in 1892 for a teaching position at Central High School. The next year he accepted the position of Art Director for The Principia, a Christian Scientist school in St. Louis In 1902 he bought a cottage, Oak Ledge, in Elsah, Ill., and spent summers teaching and painting there.

Sylvester's work divides broadly into two periods briefly separated by a summer painting trip taken to Italy and other parts of Europe in 1906. The first period focused on the St. Louis riverfront, specifically the Eads Bridge and surrounding area. By 1904 the number of oils depicting the bridge as subject grew to over one hundred.

In his second period, Sylvester shifted his river theme from Eads to Elsah From this time on his paintings depicted nature untouched instead of urban accomplishments. Poems accompanied many of his paintings

Sylvester's work did win him some acclaim while he was still alive. In 1904, he won a bronze medal at the St. Louis World's Fair and a silver medallion at the Portland Exposition. In 1906, he was awarded the Fine Arts Building of Chicago Prize by the Society of Western Artists, and in 1909 and 1910 he served as president of the St. Louis Artists' Guild. Articles on him appeared regularly in the St. Louis newspapers, and his work was discussed and illustrated in Harper's Weekly and in Scribner's Magazine

Sylvester continued to work at both Central High School and The Principia until his declining health forced him to take a leave of absence in 1913. He died on March 2, 1915, in St. Louis, and his ashes were strewn on the river he loved.

Affectionately referred to as the "Poet Painter of the Mississippi," Sylvester is best known for his serene, majestic views of that river William H. Gerdts, in his three-volume Art Across America, calls Sylvester, "the finest professional to work in southern Illinois." You can see more of Sylvester's work at The Principia in Elsah and at the St. Louis Mercantile Library at the University of Missouri–St. Louis

Word Magic

Anagrams are words, phrases or names formed by rearranging the letters of another word or phrase. By using your creativity and imagination, it's possible to create some very clever anagrams. Here are a few examples

Anyone can tell you that you need to be silent in order to listen

Show me a freshman dormitory and I'll show you a dirty room

Vacation time is when I'm not active

To see a place that is far away, use a telescope

Voices rant on while having an intense conversation

Lights, Camera, READ!

Hayner Library is Interested in Your Home, Business or Property!

The Alton Area Landmarks Association is best known for their considerable efforts at saving buildings from a wrecking ball and restoring old structures to serve a purpose. Their mission helps to keep the heart of history beating inside the architectural walls of Alton.

Many years ago, Hayner Library received a unique donation from the Alton Area Landmarks Association. The association donated information on 300 Alton properties, to be archived in specially selected file cabinets at our library. This gift became the foundation for what is now known as the Property Files Collection. After receiving this donation, the staff of the Genealogy & Local History Library began adding additional property information to the files, including information on historic homes, buildings, businesses and landmarks. The collection has grown to thousands of addresses on hundreds of streets in the Alton and Godfrey area. File information about a particular address may include a short history, photographs, newspaper clippings about events or people associated with the property and lists of owners

We also have title abstracts for a few of the addresses in our collection. A title abstract is a history of ownership for a piece of property. Information in an abstract can include references to deeds, mortgages, wills, marriages, probate records and other legal proceedings that can affect property ownership. One of the abstracts in our collection even includes information about an adoption! As you can see, these documents can hold a gold mine of information for the genealogist in your family, or local historians.

The Hayner Genealogy & Local History Library would like to supplement the Property Files Collection with more title abstracts. We are asking anyone in the Alton, Godfrey and Fosterburg area who is fortunate enough to have a title for their property to donate a copy to the library.

If you are willing to donate a copy of your abstract, the staff at the Genealogy & Local History Library will be happy to make copies of your paperwork and process it into the Property Files Collection, which is housed at our 401 State Street location

Placing a copy of your abstract in the library's collection assures that your paperwork is archived and preserved in a central location. We also encourage you to include photos of your property in addition to the abstract. And of course, all abstracts and photos will be copied by our staff at absolutely no cost to you!

If you would like to archive a copy of your property abstract at the library, please call the Hayner Genealogy & Local History Library at (618) 462-0677, ext. 2865, or just bring it down during normal business hours

Don't have an abstract, but are still curious about the Property Files Collection? Then come visit us and let us show you how to look for information about your home or business.

Babysit with Confidence

Babysitting can be a good way to earn extra spending money for the summer but it can be stressful for amateurs. Here are a few pieces of advice to aid you in being the best babysitter you can be:

1. Ask questions: Every family is different therefore every job will be different. Before meeting the parents for the first time, prepare a list of questions covering their child's routine and what they expect from you
2. Have an emergency contact sheet: Inside the front cover of the book The What to Expect: Baby-Sitter's Handbook, you will find a reproducible contact page which will allow you to list all the emergency phone numbers you might need, as well as spots for medical information about the child for whom you are caring
3. Be a good role model: Remember that the child you are caring for is looking up to you both physically and figuratively. Be a positive influence for the impressionable youngster you are babysitting!

Don't forget, Hayner Library has a wide variety of babysitting guides available for you to check out.

Switchback

Note: This program will be held in the Benjamin Godfrey Chapel on the campus of Lewis & Clark Community College, 5800 Godfrey Road, Godfrey, Ill.

Sunday, July 21, 2:00 p.m.

Switchback returns! Two of our favorite performers on the circuit! "A successful show for us is like an amusement ride—it's a rush," says Brian FitzGerald of the renowned musical duo Switchback. "Our Irish is a little more aggressive, and it's coming at you a little harder because we are coming out of small, jaunty Irish bars. There's a lot of enthusiasm and a lot of energy to our show."

FitzGerald and Martin McCormack showcase a repertoire ranging from sentimental ballads to blistering honky-tonk. The duo delivers a powerful, riveting sound rivaling that of larger ensembles. They move through a variety of genres but never abandon their Celtic roots. They accompany their music with the rhythmic cadence of their dancing shoes. Don't miss your chance to see and hear these amazing performers! This program is jointly presented by The Hayner Public Library District and the Music Department of Lewis & Clark Community College. Please register at 1-800-613-3163.

Research Tips from the Genealogy & Local History Library: Death Records

One of the first things you might learn about an ancestor may be when he or she died. Maybe you read the obituary in the newspaper. Or you know the relative who clips newspaper articles about everyone in the family! Now you want to find your ancestor's death record

The cause of death stated on a death record can alert you to potential inherited health issues. Or it may reflect the lack of antibiotics during the time your ancestor lived; for example, your ancestor may have contracted tuberculosis and died. Perhaps epidemics were sweeping the area where your ancestor lived; cholera claimed many lives in the mid-1800s in Missouri and Illinois. Or there may be evidence of a violent death: e g. a gunshot wound!

Death records may also record your ancestor's birth date and the names of his or her parents. This information was given by the family informant, who told the clerk what he or she knew. Usually a family informant was a sibling, spouse or child of the person who died.

Where do you look for death records? Before you spend money at the county courthouse or state archive, look for an index of your ancestor's death record. Online indexes list the names of family members included in the record as well as birth and death information. Once you find the indexed information, look for a digital image of the actual record. This shows the rest of the information, such as the name of the family informant, the cause of death, the name of the funeral home and the cemetery where the person is buried.

Genealogical research websites such as Ancestry.com and FamilySearch.org have indexes of birth, marriage and death records for many states, countries and time periods. Many state archives have placed indexes and/or images of their death records online. Hayner Genealogy & Local History Library staff can help you find the websites that you need.

Your ancestor may have lived before counties were recording all deaths. For example, death records of all citizens were not required in Illinois until 1916

If there is no government death record, look for a record of your ancestor's death in his or her local church records. Among our library church records is Saints Peter & Paul Church Alton, Illinois, Names of Deceased 1856-1872. The library collection also contains funeral programs from St. James Baptist Church, Alton, and other local churches, which include life stories.

The local newspaper may highlight births, marriages, family businesses and obituaries of your ancestors. You can read newspapers from Alton and other cities at the Genealogy & Local History Library. Funeral home records can be full of family information. The Genealogy & Local History Library collection contains the records of Burke's Funeral Home in Alton covering the years 1970-1995. Cemetery records can also be a gold mine of information. The Genealogy & Local History Library has burial listings and CDs of tombstone photos of cemeteries in Madison and other counties. Burial records on FindaGrave com may lead you to information about parents, siblings, spouses and children

Staff at the Hayner Genealogy & Local History Library are happy to help you search all the genealogy records on the library shelves and online!

Sharing the Memories

Yearbooks are an amazing genealogy and local history resource. We are very lucky that our patrons are generous in donating yearbooks to us. We keep multiple copies of yearbooks on the shelves of the Genealogy & Local History Library, but when we have extras, we try our best to find homes for them. Hayner Genealogy & Local History Library Manager, Lacy McDonald, has mailed several boxes of duplicate copies of yearbooks to the Midwest Genealogy Center in Independence, Missouri, a nationally recognized destination for family historians. Thank you, everyone, for helping us to share Alton's history with the whole Midwest. Don't forget, you can access digital copies of the Alton High Tatler, Marquette High Explorer, and Western Military Academy Recall at https://archive.org/details/@hayner_genealogy_amp_local_history_library

Please keep donating yearbooks! We love them!

Thank You, BJC Healthcare!

In March, The Hayner Public Library District received a generous donation from BJC Healthcare to commemorate their twenty-fifth anniversary

Through this donation, additional test preparation books were added to the library's collection for high school students taking ACT, SAT, subject tests and Advance Placement exams. Many of these books have already been checked out by students!

The donation also allowed the library to purchase ten Book Buddy bags, filled with books and activities, aimed at students grades K–5, to help them avoid the summer learning slide and complement school work. In addition, ten Big Book kits and activity sets for storytelling are also available for patrons wanting to use in them in story times, storytelling, or for preschool classes.

The funds were also used for display and work tables in the children's area at the Downtown Library. Noise cancelling headphones were also purchased with the funds; the headphones will aid patrons who need quiet to focus. Lastly, a wireless amplifier, similar to those used by classroom teachers, was procured for use in enhancing library programming.

The Hayner Public Library District is one of 13 St. Louis area organizations selected for the BJC Healthcare grant. Employees were asked to nominate an organization near and dear to their heart. The Hayner Public Library District was nominated by Hayner patron Tom Morrissey, who works in BJC Shared Services. Tom's mother, Jody Morrissey, served on The Hayner Public Library District Board for 12 years and was involved in many library activities throughout her life

Thank you, BJC Healthcare and Tom Morrissey!

Alton ABC is B-A-C-K

During the previous school year, a small group of Alton High School students and their teacher, Mrs. Lexa Browning-Needham, collaborated with our own Reneé B. Johnson of the Genealogy & Local History Library to publish Alton ABC. The rhyming alphabet picture book is designed to delight and inform, acknowledging the present and the history of our area. Two hundred copies were printed and bound (by the students themselves!) and donated to schools and day care centers all over the area. We quickly found there was a demand for more books, so we're pleased to announce that there will be a second printing in time for the holidays! The hardbound books cost $20 each and the proceeds will be split between Hayner Library and the Alton School District. Alton ABC will be available at the Genealogy & Local History Library in December—make sure to check our website and Facebook page for more details.

Genealogy & Local History Library Holiday Open House

Saturday, December 7, 2019, 10:00 a.m.–12 p.m., 401 State Street, Alton, Illinois

Come to the Genealogy & Local History Library Holiday Open House on December 7, from 10 a.m.–12 p.m. to enjoy the decorations and create family history crafts to take home. Staff members will help you think about ways to connect with your family history at holiday gatherings. The Alton ABC picture book will be available for purchase for $20. Stop by to enjoy the warmth of the fireplaces, the beauty of the building, and the music of our very own player piano!

Vintage Voices 2019: "Keeping History Alive"

Vintage Voices, now in its eighteenth year, will continue its tradition of guided walking tours in the Alton Cemetery on the first two weekends in October: 5, 6, 12, 13 from noon until 2:45 p.m. Tours will leave from the main gate of the cemetery (at Vine & 5th Streets) every 15 minutes.

The characters and themes of this year's tours were carefully selected by the Vintage Voices steering committee

The Rev. Levi A. Abbott (1824-1919) was a professor at Shurtleff College and was very active in the Piasa Lodge of the Masonic order He was their oldest living member at the age of 95 and was present when the new lodge at the foot of State Street was dedicated in 1919. He died just a few days later. Tom Harris will portray Rev. Abbott.

H. W. Chamberlain (1845-1929) was a local druggist who will tell the story of morphine and cocaine addiction in the early 1900s. Jeff Pruett will portray Chamberlain the first weekend and John Meehan will portray him the second weekend.

Debbie Schuneman and Margaret Hopkins will portray Bessie Garber and her sister Margaret Carter, two flappers who were arrested at an Upper Alton dance hall for "scant clothes and dancing styles." They will tell their story at the gravesite of their attorney, William P. Boynton (1878-1951).

Sean Williams will portray Isaac H. Kelly (1825-1920), a former slave who was freed in 1840 and arrived in Alton to become an influential member of the community. He was as one of three founding members of the Prince Hall Free and Accepted Masons of Illinois, served 40 years as deacon of the Union Baptist Church, was a conductor of the underground railroad, and longtime trustee of the Lovejoy Memorial.

Lief Anderson will take on the role of Lt. John Robinson (1831-1865), who was killed in the Civil War. He will tell the story of the National Cemeteries

Mary Lind Threde (1860-1908), a woman who set her son's fiancé on fire, will be portrayed by Kathy Reimer the first weekend and Missy Chapman the second weekend. The crime was so surprising and horrendous that it made papers all over the United States.

Hattie Pitchford Watson (1869-1899), a woman who came to Alton only to be murdered, along with her paramour, by her jealous boss in 1899, will be portrayed by Ann Westbrook the first weekend and Claudia Herndon the second weekend

Jean Heil will portray Anna Wilkinson (1883-1967), a suffragette who ran for mayor in 1929. She will tell the story of the 19th Amendment to the U.S. Constitution, which granted American women the right to vote.

Tickets are $15 for adults and $10 for students ages 6-18. Tickets can be purchased online at vintagevoices.brownpapertickets com or vintagevoicesnonwalking.brownpapertickets.com, at the Alton Visitors Center, or at the main gate of the Alton Cemetery at least 30 minutes before the tours begin

A non-walking tour presentation will be held at the Jacoby Arts Center on Sunday, October 13, 2019

Investigation Discovery Television Show Filmed at Hayner Library

In March of this year, television producers from the Investigation Discovery network contacted Genealogy & Local History Manager Lacy McDonald regarding research for their television show Twisted Sisters, which was filming in Alton. The show featured the Beck twins, Mary and Dorothea. The sisters were born in 1939 and lived together in a house on Highland Avenue until Dorothea murdered Mary in 1995, when they were 68 years old.

The Genealogy & Local History staff helped find yearbook photos, church directory photos, newspaper articles, and other research materials for the production team. Lacy even discovered Mary and Dorothea's recipes in a church cookbook—she knew they attended Evangelical Church of Christ in Godfrey and went through every page of the church's cookbook to see if they'd submitted recipes. She got lucky and found Mary's "Layered Spinach Salad" recipe and Dorothea's "Rocky Road Candy" recipe. The recipe pages were shown on the show.

Several interviews were conducted at the Genealogy & Local History Library and the producers and director raved about the beauty of the building. Their camerawork and editing really highlighted the interior and exterior of the library. And we were in good company—former State Senator Bill Haine, Chief of Police Jake Simmons, and other respected and recognizable locals made appearances as well.

The episode, entitled "Dead Ringers," aired Monday, August 19, 2019 Streaming of the program is "locked" on the Investigation Discovery website; however, if you have cable, you can use your cable company's online account feature for viewing The show should also be available via your cable service's On Demand feature.

Bookish Fears

We all know someone who is afraid of snakes, heights, or spiders. But have you ever met someone who shrieked at the sight of a book? Here are a few reading- and book-related phobias·

We bet you'll never run into a bibliophobe roaming the stacks at Hayner Library Bibliophobes are individuals who are afraid of books

The fear of running out of things to read is called abibliophobia. One sure way to alleviate this fear would be to sign-up for a Hayner Library card!

Alogotransiphobes would also do well to have a library card. Alogotransiphobia is the fear being stuck on public transportation without something to read.

The invention of e-books finally gave Papyrophobes the chance to read without having to face that which they fear· paper.

Isn't it ironic that the fear of long words is called Hippopotomonstrosesquippedaliophobia?

A Special Picture Book Edition

Genealogy research is immigration research. Almost all of us in the United States are descended from relatively recent immigrants, with the notable exceptions of American Indians, whose ancestors had been here for thousands of years, and descendants of enslaved peoples, who were forcibly brought here rather than emigrated. In the quest to figure out who we are, and who are ancestors were, we search for their stories of coming to America. We are extremely excited to share with you a selection of picture books about immigration now available to read in the Genealogy & Local History Library The books are currently displayed on the coffee table in front of the fireplace. The Hayner Genealogy & Local History Library is a place for all people, from all places, and of all ages, and we hope you will enjoy these beautiful new books and that you'll bring the children in your lives here to share the stories of our country

Staff Profile: Shannon French

If you have visited any of our library buildings over the last twenty years, you have more than likely been greeted by the sweet and smiling face of Library Assistant Shannon French. Shannon has worked at Hayner Library since August 1999 and has worn many hats over the years. She has shelved library materials as a Page, was a Library Assistant in our former Alton Square library location, has worked as a Library Assistant at our Downtown library, and has worked in our children's department at our current Alton Square library. Shannon was also instrumental in partnering with the Riverbender.com Community Center to provide library programming for area teens, a program she now supervises.

Shannon was raised in a household with both parents and her brother. She and her brother rode bikes and played outside until dark with the other neighborhood children. If there were any shenanigans going on, you could be sure that Shannon and her brother were involved! One of Shannon's favorite childhood memories was the time her grandparents built her a dollhouse, a special gift she still treasures.

Shannon attended Alton public schools. One of her favorite teachers, Mrs. Stacy Phelps, encouraged Shannon to step up and shine. Shannon loved playing flute and was a member of the Alton High School band.

Shannon began working part time for the library while in high school. She had many interests but couldn't decide if she wanted to be a nurse, a probation officer, or a massage therapist. Instead she decided to work full time for the library. We are so happy she stayed!

Seven years ago, Shannon married Richard French. Not only does Shannon work for Hayner Library, but most weekends you can also find her working alongside Richard, who owns a lawn service. Shannon says he is the best copilot she could ask for as they navigate this crazy ride called life.

I asked Shannon to name three people who have touched her life. She said that her mother taught her to be reliable and loyal. She also said that both of her grandmothers were wonderful cooks and bakers who passed along their joy of cooking. The third person was a dear friend who lost her young life to cancer.

We talked about life being too short and pieces of advice we could share. Shannon's advice is to not look back because you're not going that way—and that life happens when you are busy making other plans.

Thank you, Shannon, for being so reliable and loyal to Hayner Library—we appreciate all your hard work. –Stephanie Munson

Sesame Street Turns 50

Sesame Street, the beloved children's educational television series, turns 50 this year. Here are a few fun facts about the show:

- According to the book Sesame Street Unpaved: Scripts, Stories, Secrets and Songs by David Borgenicht, Sesame Street character Count von Count was born on October 9, 1,830,653 B.C.
- Oscar the Grouch was originally orange! After the first season ended, Muppets creator and puppeteer Jim Henson decided to change Oscar's fur from orange to green. The show did offer an explanation to viewers when the second season began—apparently, while on vacation, Oscar went to Swamp Mushy Muddy and came back green.
- Standing 8 feet 2 inches, Big Bird is the tallest of all the Muppets. While impressive, he's still shorter than Alton native Robert Wadlow!
- An early version of Cookie Monster first appeared in a 1966 commercial for cheese crackers

For more interesting Sesame Street stories, facts, and history, be sure to check out the following titles from Hayner Library:

Sunday, November 3, 2:00 p.m.

"A successful show for us is like an amusement ride—it's a rush," says Brian FitzGerald of the renowned musical duo Switchback. "Our Irish is a little more aggressive, and it's coming at you a little harder because we are coming out of small, jaunty Irish bars. There's a lot of enthusiasm and a lot of energy to our show." As this program will be held just following the 2019 Day of the Dead celebration, FitzGerald and Martin McCormack will showcase spooky tunes along with their wonderful original compositions, sentimental ballads and blistering honky-tonk. This program is jointly presented by The Hayner Public Library District and the Music Department of Lewis & Clark Community College. Please register at 1-800-613-3163.

What's Happening in Reference

The next time you are in the Alton Square library, we invite you to visit the Reference Department to see our recent changes and explore our materials The collection has been condensed to simplify browsing and selection for our patrons. Additionally, the end of the collection has been shifted to the shelves on the wall behind the Reference Desk. You are welcome to browse these shelves, as well as the rest of the materials that remain out on the floor, any time you are in the library

Whether you are exploring a new subject or starting a research project, you may be interested to know that we have many exceptional books encompassing a wide range of topics and sources, including world religions, mythology, art, atlases, legal forms, encyclopedias on multiple subjects, medicine, poetry, language dictionaries, Illinois statutes, and more. In fact, many of the library's most fascinating, enlightening, and unique books can be found in the Reference Department. Reference books are often thoroughly detailed and fabulously illustrated as they are written for in-depth knowledge on a particular subject. They can also be trusted as some of the most well-reviewed and accurate sources. You might like to browse through a few of them on your next visit. We recommend:

Crimes and Punishment: The Illustrated Crime Encyclopedia. R 364.9 CRI Read about the real-life accounts of master criminals and the crimes they committed. It's all found in this twenty-eight volume set.

Nicknames of Cities and States of the U.S. by Joseph Nathan Kane. R 929.4 KAN. Did you know that Alton was dubbed both "The City That Came Back" and "Tusselburgh" in response to the 1837 riot (and its aftermath) in which abolitionist Elijah Lovejoy was murdered?

Folklore and Symbolism of Flowers, Plants and Trees by Ernst and Johanna Lehner. R 581.508 LEH. "The violet is one of the few flowers which entered the historical arena as a political symbol." The French Bonapartists chose the violet, the flower of March, as their emblem during Napoleon's exile Look for the silhouettes of Napoleon, Empress Louise, and their three-year-old son found in the illustrated bouquet of violets on page 82. The Bonapartists used postcards of these violets as subterfuge against the French government.

While you are here, help yourself to any of the helpful handouts displayed at the Reference Desk. They cover topics such as fake news, community support services, e-book help, and more. What topic are you interested in exploring today? Let us help you find it.

Wreaths Across America

Wreaths Across America is a grassroots movement begun in 1992 by Maine businessman Morrill Worcester The organization's mission, "Remember, Honor, Teach," is carried out by coordinating wreath-laying ceremonies on a specified Saturday in December at Arlington National Cemetery and at veterans' cemeteries and other locations in all 50 states and beyond. Through the wreath-laying ceremonies and other coordinated events, the organization spreads its message about the importance of remembering our fallen heroes, honoring those who serve, and teaching our children about the sacrifices made by veterans and their families to preserve our freedoms.

Thanks to local volunteers, this organization and its mission have been active in Alton since 2007. On Saturday, December 14, 2019, our community will participate in the national Wreaths Across America ceremony The ceremony will start at 11 a.m. in the Alton National Cemetery at Pearl Street and Joesting Avenue. Students from the Evangelical School in Godfrey, with the assistance of area veterans, will participate and help lay the wreaths on the veterans' graves.

In 2018, through community financial donations, 560 wreaths were placed on gravesites in our local national cemetery

Every dollar you donate helps ensure a wreath at a veteran's gravesite. Help continue the success of this program by sending a financial donation to Wreaths Across America, P.O. Box 181, Alton, IL 62002. Each $30 in contributions enables the local organization to purchase three 20-inch live balsam wreaths.

For the fourth year, the local WAA effort will continue to offer a limited number of wreaths for families or friends to honor their veteran loved one at other local cemeteries These wreath reservations must be received by Friday, November 22, 2019, by calling Margaret Hopkins at 618-570-8804.

Support our community in carrying forward the mission "Remember, Honor, Teach." Join the whole country in honoring our veterans, many of whom forfeited their own future Christmas celebrations for us

For more information, call Margaret Hopkins at 618-570-8804. Additional information is also available on the website www.wreathsacrossamerica.org.

Food for Fines

Yearly, we have held a fine amnesty program, Food for Fines, in October. We will waive current fines on Hayner material if you contribute a nonperishable food item for each fine during the amnesty period

During the holiday season, many community organizations hold drives to support agencies such as the Crisis Food Center, but we often forget about helping those in need at other times of the year. We are holding this amnesty program in October to help people without waiting for the support of "holiday generosity." It may also help make Thanksgiving a happier time for families in need.

From October 1 through October 31, 2019, anyone who has an overdue item can pay their fine with a canned food item. Library materials must be returned with food donations, at least one food item per fine, and only Hayner materials are eligible. This program applies to overdue items currently checked out and does not apply to fines already charged to your card for materials previously returned. All food items collected throughout the month will be given to the Crisis Food Center in Alton. Of course, even if you don't have fines, feel free to donate items to help others in our community.

Perhaps you have some Hayner materials that got lost under the couch or behind the DVD player. Now is a great opportunity to return those items to the library and avoid the fines that have accrued. Fine amnesty is a great way to support critically important community organizations such as the Crisis Food Center—and it is also a great opportunity to return "lost" materials to the library so they can be reshelved for circulation. Thank you for your support.

Tax Season is Just Around the Corner, and the Scam Artists are Eager to Make You Their Next Victim

Avoid Tax Season Scams: Information from the IRS

Did you know that gift cards cannot be used to pay for bail, court fines, or taxes? Never believe someone who wants you to buy gift cards or use your own credit or debit card to pay for debts. The Federal Communications Commission has valuable IRS information on their website (https://www.fcc.gov/tax-season-dont-fall-spoofed-irs-calls)

The IRS always initiates any problem you may have by sending a letter or bill through the United States Postal Service. They stress that:

- The IRS does NOT call to demand immediate payment using a specific payment method such as a prepaid gift card, debit card, or wire transfer
- The IRS does NOT threaten to immediately bring in local police or other law enforcement agencies to have you charged or arrested for not paying.
- The IRS does NOT demand that you pay taxes without giving you the opportunity to question or appeal the amount they say you owe
- The IRS does NOT tell you to provide credit, debit, or gift card numbers over the phone
- If you do not owe taxes and never received a bill in the mail prior to a call, hang up immediately. Call the Treasury Inspector General for Tax Administration immediately to report the incident; their telephone number is 1-800-366-4484. If possible, report the phone number used in the suspicious call.
- If you think you owe taxes, hang up and call the IRS to validate the call; their telephone number is 1-800-829-1040. If there is a valid tax issue, IRS employees will assist you.

Census 2020 – Why It is Important

Census 2020 is right around the corner. Starting in March, for the first time, you have the option fill out the form online (https://2020census.gov). The decennial census is a long tradition, beginning with the first census directed by Thomas Jefferson in 1790. Thereafter, a census has been taken every 10 years as mandated in the U.S. Constitution.

The census is a cornerstone of our democracy. It provides an accurate count of the population and supplies vital information for you and your community to make important decisions: states use the census to determine their number of congressional representatives, federal funding to states and their localities is based on census numbers, and the census produces important datasets.

Federal money received by Illinois supports infrastructure needs, schools, hospitals, emergency healthcare centers, social services, and more. Companies and local businesses make decisions whether to potentially expand or build based on census data of the area.

It is important that everyone be counted! The George Washington Institute for Public Policy's report "Counting for Dollars 2020," estimates that the undercount of Illinoisans in the 2010 Census resulted in a loss of $952 per person of federal funding. In 2015 alone, Illinois lost $122 million for every 1 percent of the population not counted in the 2010 Census.

Census data, current facts and figures about America's people, places, and economy, is stored at the U.S. Census Bureau, the federal government's largest statistical agency. Federal law protects the confidentiality of all individual responses to the census. Information collected by the U.S. Census Bureau is not shared with other federal or state government agencies.

In addition to the decennial count, the U.S. Census Bureau conducts more than 100 surveys annually, including the American Community Survey and the Economic Survey.

Hayner Library has computers available for your use in filling out the census questionnaire. We also have reference librarians trained to help you access demographic data on the U.S. Census Bureau's website (https://www.census.gov). Please contact our reference department at 618-433-2864 or email reference@haynerlibrary.org.

U.S. Census Bureau: Avoiding Fraudulent Activity and Scams

The U.S. Census Bureau has offered the following information to help citizens avoid being the victims of fraudulent activity and scams.

The U.S. Census Bureau goes to great lengths to protect your information. If you suspect "phishing" or other scams, please contact the Chicago regional office at 1-800-865-6384. You may also contact the National Processing Center at 1-800-923-8282 for immediate assistance and verification.

Phishing: Phishing is the criminal act of trying to get your information—usernames, passwords, social security numbers, and bank account or credit card account details—by pretending to be an entity you trust. Phishing emails often direct you to a website that looks real, but is fake, and may be infected with malware, which is software intentionally designed to cause damage to a computer, server, client, or computer network.

Other scams: You may be the victim of a scam if someone claiming to be from the U.S. Census Bureau asks you for certain information. The U.S. Census Bureau never asks for:

- Your full Social Security number
- Money or donations
- Anything on behalf of a political party
- Your full bank, debit card, or credit card account numbers
- Your mother's maiden name

What you can do:

- If you receive mail, check that the return address is Jeffersonville, Indiana.
- If someone calls your household to complete a survey, call the National Processing Center to verify that the caller is a U.S. Census Bureau employee.
- If someone visits your residence to complete a survey, be sure to check for a valid U.S. Census Bureau ID badge; call the regional office if you are still unsure.
- If you receive an email and think it is fake, do not reply, do not click on any links, and do not open any attachments. Forward the email or website URL to the U.S. Census Bureau at ois.fraudreporting@census.gov. Delete the message. The U.S. Census Bureau will investigate and notify you of the findings.

For more information, please visit https://www.census.gov/programs-surveys/surveyhelp/fraudulent-activity-and-scams.html.

You Are What You Eat

The holidays are finally behind us, which means the dried out turkey, sweet potatoes, and other leftovers have been eaten, shared, or put down the garbage disposal. It's time to hunker down for three months of cold weather. Being cooped up in the house hiding from bitter winds and slick sidewalks is not my idea of fun. Neither is being bored. Needing a new indoor hobby to keep me sane while waiting for Old Man Winter to move on in the opposite direction, I decided to cook my way through winter!

My first task was to find new and exciting recipes, so I began my search by looking through cookbooks in the Genealogy & Local History Library's Illinois Room collection. The cookbooks in the local history collection are from places such as churches, organizations, and schools. Since that makes them a little more unique than the mass-produced books from Betty Crocker and Better Homes and Gardens, I assumed I would find rare dishes with ingredients such as truffles, saffron, and capers. Was I ever surprised!

I found that it doesn't matter how you spell doughnuts (or donuts)—there are numerous ways to cook a batch of these sugar-coated confections. What's in a name? Well, when you think of familiar recipes such as Pigs in a Blanket, Dirty Rice, Monkey Bread, or Sloppy Joes, the name may actually be the best (or worst) part of the whole experience. In my quest, I found many unique recipes with interesting names worth trying—or at least worth an eye roll and a chuckle.

For supper on a snowy January evening, I have decided I will warm my kitchen with a bubbling pot of Snake Alley Noodles and pair it with a side of Apple Scrapple. Of course, you don't actually use a snake for this meal, which is good news since I wouldn't have a clue where to find one in January!

During a frosty February morning, I will put a loaf of Bubble Bread in the oven while I sip a mug of Snowman Soup. Just in case my old Uncle Al stops by, I will blend up a batch of Prune Whip. Uncle Al sure enjoys a warm bowl of prune pulp and brandy just before he passes out (I mean, "takes a nap") on the couch.

Frog Eye Salad and a piping hot Man-Eater Casserole will make a great lunch combo after sledding on a snow-packed Saturday afternoon in March. Schniffel Dreck and crackers will make a nice appetizer before dinner.

Of course, since we live in the Midwest and suffer through many cold blustery winter days, there will be plenty of time for Simple Simon Casseroles, Pow Wow Sandwiches, and simmering crocks of leftover Pot Liquor (that one is for the Southerners—y'all know what I'm talking about!)

It is likely these recipes were included in the cookbooks with the intent of bringing a smile to the face of a new cuisine explorer like me, but last weekend there were no smiles when I offered my perpetually hungry 10-year-old grandson a Drunk Wiener and a couple of Cat Poop Cookies. He didn't even say goodbye as he dashed out the back door and went straight home for a bologna sandwich and Oreos!

Cookbooks are an uncommon resource when compiling family history. Researching old cookbooks is more than just learning what our ancestors were cooking and eating. It gives insight into their personalities. Who wouldn't be amused to find the recipe for their grandma's scrumptious Crazy Cake alongside her concoction of Witches' Brew inside the pages of a cookbook printed by her beloved Bunco club? Oh my, grandma! What kind of woman were you?

All of these recipes, and many more like them, are available in the cookbook collection at the Hayner Genealogy & Local History Library. Come visit us on a wintry afternoon and see what fun recipes, like the one listed below, you can find. Believe it or not, I saw the following recipe printed in more than one cookbook:

Elephant Stew
One elephant
Two rabbits
Salt and pepper
Lots of brown gravy

Chop elephant into bite-size pieces Be patient, this will take about two months. Remove the trunk and set aside, you will need something in which to store leftovers. Add lots of brown gravy. Sprinkle with salt and pepper. At this point, for my personal recipe, I would add a few hefty jiggers of Uncle Al's brandy (believe me, he's had enough!). Cook slowly over a kerosene fire for about four weeks (apparently elephant is very tough). This recipe will serve approximately 3,000 people. If more are expected to dine, you can add the two rabbits. Add the rabbits only if necessary, as most people do not like to find hare in their stew.

Colonial Fife and Drum Corps of Alton Display

Come visit our newest display at the Genealogy & Local History Library, 401 State Street!

The Colonial Fife and Drum Corps of Alton was organized in August 1975 by Dr. Harvey Veit. Dr. Veit was a longtime member of the Piasa Black Powder Burners club and thought a fife and drum corps would add even more color and historic pageantry to events

Fifes are an ancient wind instrument, referred to in Europe as the "Schweizerpfeife," or Swiss flute Fifes have been in use by military organizations since the 16th century and drums have had a role in militaries going back even further in history. Fifers and drummers used music to relay commands and inspire soldiers on the battlefield and in camp. Drum corps in the United States stem from Revolutionary War units, which marched with troops and played on ceremonial occasions

Members of the Colonial Fife and Drum Corps of Alton were between 10- and 18-years-old. Mary Katherine Yoder was the first fifer and the first drummer was Doug Flory. The group was usually attended by five historic flags: the Stars and Stripes, the Bunker Hill, the Grand Union, the Betsy Ross, and the Bennington Under Dr. Veit, the Colonial Fife and Drum Corps of Alton travelled between seven and eight thousand miles a year In 1977, The Colonial Fife and Drum Corps of Alton were one of three groups invited to play for Charles, Prince of Wales, during his visit to the Gateway Arch. The Corps was smartly enough attired and played well enough to rate front page photos with His Royal Highness in The New York Times. The Corps also went on to perform for several United States presidents and the Canadian prime minister

The display case includes Dr. Harvey Veit's uniform, hat, shoes, wig, espontoon, and sword, sheet music used by the Colonial Fife and Drum Corps of Alton, a fife uniform from the early days of the Corps, and amazing awards and photographs. Items in this display case are on loan courtesy of the Veit Family, Colonial Fife and Drum Corps Alumni Alton Facebook Group, Sue Hardin, and Zach Hardin. Thank you for sharing your treasures with us!

Understanding Library Lingo

Sometimes online library catalog terminology can leave library patrons a bit confused. After all, who could be blamed for thinking that a book designated as "leased" might require a fee in order to be checked out (rest assured, it doesn't). Some might scratch their heads and wonder exactly what the term "local request" means For those of you who have wondered what these library terms mean, here are some answers:

Leased — As any James Patterson fan will tell you, sometimes the request list for a bestseller can be very long In an effort to expedite the wait, Hayner Library leases multiple copies of high-demand titles from a book distributor. Once the demand for the bestselling titles has diminished, the books can be sent back to the distributor. Leasing books from a distributor not only saves the library money by not having to purchase multiple copies of a title, but it saves the library shelf space later on when multiple volumes of a single title are no longer needed. It's a win-win for patrons and the library!

Local Request — The designation of "local request" allows a library to catalog an item in such a way that the only requests filled by the item are for patrons whose home library owns them. Library items marked as local request will not be sent to other libraries to fill their interlibrary loan requests until the designation has been removed.

In-Transit vs. Transferred — The status of "transferred" indicates that an item is currently on its way from one library to another to fulfill a request made by a patron. The status of "in-transit" indicates that an item is being returned from a borrowing library to the owning library. That's the magic of interlibrary loan!

On-Order — Once our library determines that an item will be purchased for our collection, our Technical Services staff creates a temporary "on-order" record in the library catalog. The on-order status allows patrons to place requests for an item before it is received at the library. Once the item is received at the library, the temporary record is replaced by a permanent record and the requests are filled.

In-Process — The Technical Services department processes all new items received by the library. All items added to the library collection are first cataloged, barcoded, stamped, and labeled. It is during this period that an item record is designated as "in-process" in the card catalog. Ever wonder why an item might be listed as in-process for long periods of time? This could be because that particular item's street date has not yet arrived. A "street date" is the date a particular item is set to be released for sale to the general public, or in the case of the library, can be checked out by patrons; street dates are set by publishers. The in-process designation will be removed when an item is ready for check out.

New Friends Welcome at Our Downtown Library Morning Story Time

The Truth, the Whole Truth, and Nothing but the Truth: Staff Nonfiction Favorites

Nearly everyone has a favorite fiction book they can read over and over—but what about nonfiction? Here are some of the Hayner Library staff's favorite nonfiction books:

Mary Kay

- Rand McNally Road Atlas
- Her Right Foot by Dave Eggers, art by Shawn Harris
- Reach Higher: An Inspiring Photo Celebration of First Lady Michelle Obama by Amanda Lucidon

Reneé

- Ratio: The Simple Codes Behind the Craft of Everyday Cooking by Michael Ruhlman – Understanding the ratio of ingredients in things such a vinaigrette or a basic dough gives me the framework to explore, experiment, and create on-the-fly.
- Girl Scout Collector's Guide: A History of Uniforms, Insignia, Publications, and Memorabilia (Second Edition) by Mary Degenhardt and Judith Kirsch – As an avid collector, I consult this book on a daily bases Not only does it help me identify items, but it helps me piece together the larger story of the Girl Scout movement in the United States. Part catalogue, part history, one hundred percent fascinating. Within the community of collectors, we are desperate for an update to this 2005 second edition.

Linda

- The League of Wives: The Untold Story of the Women Who Took on the U.S. Government to Bring Their Husbands Home by Heath Hardage Lee
- The Library Book by Susan Orlean

Tamika

- Development as Freedom by Amartya Sen
- The Mahabharata

Sam

- Man's Search for Meaning by Viktor Frankl – This book is a great read for anyone, but it is an especially inspirational story about Frankl's struggle while living in a concentration camp and trying to find the meaning in life. Very existential

Theresa

- I love looking at any books that have to do with tiny houses and repurposing discarded items.
- The Instant it Happened edited by Hal Buell, Saul Pett, and Steven Schepp – A collection of photographs from the Associated Press. Some are tragic, some are poignant, some are shocking—but they were all taken the instant it happened
- The New Partridge Dictionary of Slang and Unconventional English by Eric Partridge – Because where else will you learn phrases like "shoe the goose" and "hop the twig"?

Lacy

- The Botany of Desire: A Plant's-Eye View of the World by Michael Pollan – This book changed my understanding of apples. Did you know that most apple seeds produce bitter (cider) apples, completely different from the specific fruit the seeds come from? Bonus points: In 2009, PBS aired a documentary based on the book and it's great, too
- Brazen: Rebel Ladies Who Rocked the World by Pénélope Bagieu – This is the book I recommend to people who don't think they like graphic novels. French author and artist Bagieu introduces twenty-nine amazing women (including my favorite astronaut, Mae Jemison) from Ancient Greece and seventh-century Japan to present-day Afghanistan.
- A Short History of Nearly Everything by Bill Bryson – I love Bill Bryson's travel memoirs, but his history book is the one I go back to over and over again. I also own and enjoy his version for kids, A Really Short History of Nearly Everything
- Yes, Chef: A Memoir by Marcus Samuelsson and Veronica Chambers and Blood, Bones & Butter: The Inadvertent Education of a Reluctant Chef by Gabrielle Hamilton – I'm also a huge fan of chef memoirs and these are two of my favorites.

Mary

- Statistical Abstract of the United States
- The Old Farmer's Almanac
- How Do We Look: The Body, the Divine, and the Question of Civilization by Mary Beard
- Oxford Atlas of the World
- The Order of Things: Hierarchies, Structures, and Pecking Orders by Barbara Ann Kipfer
- Silent Spring by Rachel Carson
- The Life and Times of Miss Jane Marple by Anne Hart
- The Fannie Farmer Cookbook by Marion Cunningham
- Perfumes: The Guide by Luca Turin and Tania Sanchez
- The Reformation: A History by Diarmaid MacCulloch
- The Way Things Work Now: From Levers to Lasers, Windmills to Wi-Fi, a Visual Guide to the World of Machines by David Macaulay

Historic Preservation Lecture Series

The Genealogy & Local History Library is partnering with Alton Area Landmarks Association (AALA) this winter to provide a three-part Saturday lecture series on historic preservation in January, February, and March. AALA is dedicated to educating, promoting, and saving the architectural heritage of the Alton area. Feel free to register for one talk or all three.

Reimagining Places of the Past: Historic Preservation Lecture Series, Part 1
Cindy Reinhardt: *Researching the History of Your House
Saturday, January 25, 10:00 a.m.
To be presented at the Genealogy & Local History Library, 401 State Street, Alton, IL.
The first of these lectures concerns historic building history. Knowledge of the stories behind historic buildings helps to create a public awareness in support of historic preservation. It can also lead to the discovery of long-forgotten details about a community's history and introduce us to fascinating people from the past. Researching the story of houses is one of the most popular topics for researchers at the Madison County Archival Library, second only to family genealogy. Cindy Reinhardt, who has published the stories of over 200 homes in Edwardsville, will discuss how to explore a building's history and why it is important for a community. Cindy serves on the board of the Friends of Leclaire, the Madison County Historical Society, and the Illinois State Historical Society. In addition, from 2004-2018 she served on the Edwardsville Historic Preservation Commission. Seating is limited. Please register at 1-800-613-3163.

Reimagining Places of the Past: Historic Preservation Lecture Series, Part 2
Bob Yapp: *Energy Efficiency for Old Houses & Buildings
Saturday, February 22, 10:00 a.m.
To be presented at the Genealogy & Local History Library, 401 State Street, Alton, IL.
Bob Yapp, president of Preservation Resources Inc. and founder of the Belvedere School for Hands-On Preservation, will talk about energy efficiency for old houses and buildings. Just because it's shiny and new does not mean it will work in your old house or building. This seminar dispels myths and addresses how old houses were designed. Bob talks about retrofits for energy efficiency that actually work as well as paybacks. Insulation, air flow, weather stripping, windows, geothermal, solar, and wind are all topics of discussion. Seating is limited. Please register at 1-800-613-3163.

Reimagining Places of the Past: Historic Preservation Lecture Series, Part 3
Michael R. Allen: *American Architectural Styles
Saturday, March 28, 10:00 a.m.
To be presented at the Genealogy & Local History Library, 401 State Street, Alton, IL.
Ever wonder how you can tell if your house fits a certain style? Ever hear someone call a building Italianate, Romanesque, or Brutalist, and wonder just what exactly that means and how they know that information? This lecture covers a wide range of American architectural styles using examples from Alton and St. Louis and helps unpack the traits of common and uncommon styles. The lecture also explores the difference between era (age), style (decorative traits), and form (shape of building mass). Michael R. Allen works as an academic researcher, historian, teacher, design critic, public artist, critical spatial tour guide, and heritage conservationist in private practice. He is Senior Lecturer in Architecture, Landscape Architecture and Urban Design at the Sam Fox School of Design and Visual Arts at Washington University in St. Louis. Allen also directs the Preservation Research Office, an historic preservation and urban history consulting firm that he founded in 2009. In 2018, the National Trust for Historic Preservation named Allen as one of its "40 Under 40" preservation practitioners. Allen's writing on urban design and history has appeared in CityLab, Next City, Disegno, and the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. Allen is a member of Landmarks Illinois' 50th Anniversary Task Force, is an advisor to the National Trust for Historic Preservation, and is a co-founder and past president of St. Louis' mid-century modern preservation organization, Modern STL. Seating is limited. Please register at 1-800-613-3163.

NewsGuard: A Free Browser Extension to Help You Navigate the News

In today's media landscape, it's harder and harder to verify legitimate sources of news. Media literacy has never been more important. Newspapers, magazines, websites, blogs, social media sites, etc. are all vying for your attention online. So how do you know which sources are credible and worthy of your valuable time? A new browser extension, NewsGuard, hopes to help readers with just this dilemma by employing professional journalists to score news sites on their reliability and general trustworthiness. NewsGuard labels each site with an easy-to-understand green or red badge. The site maintains transparency by allowing users to click on the badge to find out which journalists analyzed the site and the criteria by which the site was analyzed. The extension can also highlight potential conflicts of interest, such as websites that do not disclose that they are financed by lobbying groups. As of January 2019, the site includes ratings for the 2,000 most popular American news sites.

NewsGuard is free and can be installed in an internet browser; supported browsers include Google Chrome, Microsoft Edge, Firefox, and Safari. You can find out more information about NewsGuard by visiting their website at www.newsguardtech.com.

A Tribute to Author Toni Morrison

I would like to take this particular moment to acknowledge a great loss that has befallen the literary community Toni Morrison was an inspiring, influential, and gifted writer whose work has been cherished for generations

I'm ashamed to say that before writing this article I knew very little about Toni Morrison. It was during my research that I developed a great deal of appreciation and respect for this inspiring woman By the end, I concluded that she was the embodiment of the word "dedication" The dedication she showed to every aspect of her life is something to be recognized and honored.

Before becoming famous, it was the dedication she had for her craft which drove her to work on her first novel, The Bluest Eye, while working a full-time job and being a single mother Her dedication was rewarded with praise from both critics and the public Her fifth novel, Beloved, was honored with the Pulitzer Prize for Fiction In 1993, she became the first African American woman to be awarded the Nobel Prize in Literature

At the height of her career, her dedication to the academic world led her to hold many imperative positions at Princeton University For over twenty years she discovered, encouraged, and helped young minds to pursue their own dreams Morrison's lifelong accomplishments were highly rewarded in 2012 when she received the Presidential Medal of Freedom

Toni Morrison will be sorely missed, but the fruits of her labor will ensure she will never be forgotten. Her contributions to the literary field can be found throughout the Hayner Library collection

"Now he knew why he loved her so. Without ever leaving the ground, she could fly 'There must be another one like you,' he whispered to her 'There's got to be at least one more woman like you." – Song of Solomon by Toni Morrison.

Help Us Help Them

Do you have Hayner Library materials that are still checked out and are embarrassingly overdue? Do you keep getting notices in the mail and are scared of what your fine is? Breathe a sigh of relief, from April 1 through April 30, if you have an overdue item, you may pay your fine with an item of pet food. This amnesty applies to Hayner materials only. Library materials must be returned with the donation and at least one donation made for each fine.

All the donations will go to our furry friends residing at the 5-A's Animal Shelter. The devoted staff in this no-kill shelter relies entirely on donations to provide proper care to the adoptable animals that have been abandoned, neglected, or abused. animals like Melissa and Karma (pictured above). ## 2020 Census is Here—Be Sure You Are Counted!

April 1, 2020 is Census Day! By the end of March, you should have received the census questionnaire or a letter to respond online If you have not filled out the census questionnaire, now is the time to do so Starting in May, the U.S. Census Bureau will begin in-person follow-up visits with households who have yet to respond. Hayner Library has public access computers available for your use in filling out the form online

Why it Matters—

Illinois has lost population since the last census count, making it vitally important that everyone in the state is counted. The number of your congressional representatives and the size of your geographic districts will be impacted by your participation in the census.

Every person counted is equal to $2,000 in funding to our community every year, for ten years!

Data from the census helps determine how over $675 billion in federal funds is allocated to states and local communities for housing, schools, food assistance, health care, and other vital services

Will I be asked about my citizenship? No. The courts have permanently blocked adding a citizenship question to the 2020 Census.

Remember—

Responding fulfills your civic duty. The United States Constitution mandates that a census be taken every ten years. Everyone counts! This includes babies born on or before April 1, 2020, children, and all persons living in your household at the time of the census. Federal law protects your census responses. Your answers can only be used to produce statistics By law, your census responses cannot be used against you by any government agency (that includes the FBI, CIA, ICE, and Homeland Security) or court in any way, or allow it to be used to determine your government benefits

For more information, please visit https://2020census gov/.

2020 Census

Avoiding Scams: Tips to Keep You Safe

The U.S. Census Bureau will never send unsolicited emails to request your participation in the 2020 Census

They will never ask for·

- Your Social Security number
- Your bank account or credit card numbers
- Money or donations

They will also never contact you on behalf of a political party

If someone is sent to your house to collect your 2020 Census response, make sure that they have a valid ID badge with their photo, a U.S Department of Commerce watermark, and an expiration date.

If you are unsure, call 1-800-923-8282 to speak with a local U.S. Census Bureau representative. You may also call 1-800-923-8282 to report other forms of suspected census fraud.

Information You Can Use: Protect Yourself from Social Security Scams

Scammers are people pretending to be someone they aren't—in this case, employees of the Social Security Administration. Scammers will try to scare and trick you into giving them your personal information and money. They may threaten you or your family and may demand immediate payment to avoid arrest or other legal action. Don't be fooled!

If you receive a suspicious call:

- Hang up
- Do not give them money or personal information
- Report the scam at oig ssa.gov

There are certain situations in which the Social Security Administration may call or email you. However, they will never:

- Threaten you
- Suspend your Social Security number
- Demand immediate payment
- Require payment by cash, gift card, pre-paid debit card, or wire transfer
- Ask for gift card numbers over the phone or to wire or mail cash

What to look out for:

- The call or email indicates there is a problem with your Social Security number or account.
- The call or email asks you to pay a fine or debt with retail gift cards, wire transfers, pre-paid debit cards, internet currency, or by mailing cash
- Scammers pretend they're from Social Security or another government agency. Caller ID or documents sent by email may look official but they are not.
- Callers threaten you with arrest or other legal action.

Protect yourself, friends, and family! If you receive a questionable call, hang up and immediately report the call to oig ssa.gov. Don't be embarrassed to file a report if you shared personal information or suffered a financial loss. Learn more at oig.ssa.gov/scam

What's in Reference: Federal Writers' Project

During the Great Depression, a series of guide books, the American Guide Series, were compiled by the Federal Writers' Project. Historians and many non-historians traveled from state to state, writing guides to the forty-eight states. The culture, people, history, and points of interest of each state—from early beginnings through the 1930s—are contained in these books, complete with photographs and illustrations. Hayner Library holds a partial set of the American Guide Series in the Reference department.

Bold measures were taken to boost the morale of people suffering during the Great Depression. With the unemployment rate at 25 percent, government-run programs were developed to lift Americans up from poverty. One of the many programs created by President Franklin D. Roosevelt was the Works Progress Administration (WPA). By 1943, when the program was terminated, the WPA and its joint agencies, such as the Civilian Conservation Corps (CCC), and the Federal Writers' Project (FWP), had hired more than 8.3 million Americans to work on special projects. The WPA helped millions of desperate Americans survive the 1930s.

The Federal Writers' Project employed historians, teachers, writers, librarians, and other white-collar workers. At its peak in 1935, almost seven thousand writers, researchers, and librarians were employed by the WPA. Most of those working on the project were not writers, however some would become famous authors, such as Ralph Ellison, Richard Wright, John Steinbeck, and Zora Neale Hurston. They

Laborers were employed to work on infrastructure projects. The magnitude of their accomplishment is stunning: 631,087 miles of highways, streets, and roads were built or repaired; 124,031 bridges were constructed or repaired; 125,110 public buildings, 8,192 parks, and 853 airport landing fields were built.[1] Many of these structures are still standing today. That we can enjoy Pere Marquette State Park in Grafton is the outcome of the hardworking efforts of these individuals.

Out of despair from the Great Depression, human ingenuity and resourcefulness flourished—leaving lasting legacies for us to enjoy.

Illinois Heartland Library System Library Crawl 2020

The second annual Illinois Heartland Library System (IHLS) Library Crawl took place in January and was a tremendous success! The library crawl was a great way for patrons within the Illinois Heartland Library System to visit each other's libraries and to experience the wide array of library programming, collections, and services available in our state.

Participants in the program were encouraged to pick up an IHLS passport at any participating library, have their passport stamped by at least five participating libraries, and then turn in their passport to their home library, where they would be entered into a grand prize drawing. Each Hayner Library grand prize winner received copies of the books Bibliophile by Jane Mount, The Great American Read: The Book of Books: Explore America's 100 Best Loved Novels, and Read 'Em and Eat: The Hayner Public Library District Cookbook

Our staff had a wonderful time talking with patrons from surrounding libraries who visited Hayner Library during the library crawl. We hope to see everyone again next year!

Behind the Scenes: The Interlibrary Loan Department

The Interlibrary Loan department has two jobs: To send out materials from the Hayner Library collection that have been requested by patrons of other libraries and to check-in materials from other libraries that have been requested by Hayner patrons. This job may sound easy but it's exhaustingly hard work!

Just how exhausting is it? In 2019, the Interlibrary Loan department (which consists of two full-time and two-part time employees) sent out 65,003 items to other libraries. This breaks down to an average of 5,416 items per month—or roughly 180 items per day! Hayner Library patrons requested 62,258 interlibrary loan items from other libraries in 2019—an average of 5,188 items per month, or approximately 172 items per day. These figures do not include the hundreds of Hayner Library items returned to our library through our daily courier delivery.

The Interlibrary Loan department's day is a perfectly choreographed chain of activity: collecting, sorting, arranging, activating, and shelving interlibrary loan items. Each morning this department hits the ground running, a pace that is maintained until the last requested item is placed on the hold shelf.

We are tremendously proud of this small but vital department. Their behind-the-scenes hard work is an essential part of library service to Hayner Library patrons and the patrons of other Illinois Heartland Library System libraries.

What Do I Read Next?

The Hayner Public Library District

Serving Alton, Godfrey & Foster Township — Summer 2020

Welcome Back to the Library

As you are well aware, The Hayner Public Library District, in compliance with Governor J.B Pritzker's Stay-at-Home Order, shut library doors mid-March While we were not open to the public, much of our staff continued to work: growing online services, keeping our website and social media account current, cleaning, preparing safety measures, moving our teen and children's summer reading programs online, and completing building maintenance projects.

We have used this time of closure to clean the carpets in the Downtown and Genealogy & Local History libraries. We have installed plexiglass barriers at all service and circulation desks The floor in the multipurpose room, staff room, and book drop room at the Hayner Library at Alton Square Mall have all been replaced New Hayner Library signage has been installed outside the second floor entrance at Alton Square Mall; this sign will be lit at night

A large amount of materials were returned in our book drops during the time we were closed. The materials were checked in and then quarantined for three days before being returned to the shelves. On June 1, we opened the Downtown Library and the Hayner Library at Alton Square Mall to curbside service, which has gone very smoothly. All fines and late fees accrued by Hayner Library patrons from March 17 through July 31, 2020 will be waived. The Genealogy & Local History Library has been closed since March 17 and will remain closed through at least July However, the staff is working to take your calls and help you with your research via phone and/or email

We have reduced our hours of service at the Downtown Library and Hayner Library at Alton Square Mall. The Downtown Library is open Monday through Saturday, from 10:00 a.m to 5:00 p.m The Hayner Library at Alton Square Mall is open Monday through Saturday, from 10:00 a.m to 7:00 p.m Both locations are closed on Sundays

Our Youth Services department has reinitiated the StoryWalk® program at The Nature Institute, 2213 S Levis Lane, Godfrey, IL. StoryWalk® allows families to walk a nature trail while reading stories posted in specialized weatherproof stands. A new StoryWalk® story is posted each month

Currently, unless things change dramatically, we anticipate opening our doors to the public in August. There will be certain guidelines on the number of patrons we can allow in our facilities at any one time and there will likely be recommended limits on browsing time so that we can best accommodate everyone who wants entry. There will also be strictly enforced time limits on use of the public computers to ensure we can accommodate as many patrons as possible. We will ask that all patrons wear masks. We will provide masks if you should forget yours. Hand sanitizer will be available throughout each location and we will ask patrons to practice social distancing We will continue to quarantine all returned materials for the recommended seventy-two hours

This has certainly been a challenging few months and we so appreciate your cooperation and patience. Our number one priority is to provide you with a full-service library District while ensuring the highest level of safety measures to protect both our staff and patrons We look forward to seeing you back in the library soon!

The Harlem Renaissance

During the 1920s, Harlem became a mecca for African-Americans seeking a better way of life They found it in the northern borough of Manhattan The Harlem Renaissance originated in the 1920s, some say it was in August 1920 when Marcus Garvey led a black nationalist group, promoting black pride in the area. Not only did African-Americans settle in Harlem from the south during the Great Migration, but they came from across the United States and other countries.

Soon Harlem became a remarkable community of artists, writers, musicians, singers, and intellectuals, creating a period of bustling intellectual and artistic expression. Nightlife was vibrant in Harlem, known for its lavish and sophisticated night clubs Many of its famous nightclubs were patronized by members of the community and the whites who appreciated the new sounds coming from famous jazz stars and singers such as Duke Ellington, Louis Armstrong, Bessie Smith, Paul Robeson, and others. Harlem was the center of the Jazz Age in the 1920s

Authors wrote of the black experience and today we still read the literary works of Langston Hughes, Zora Neale Hurston, and W.E.B. Du Bois. Leading thinkers were Alain LeRoy Locke and W.E.B Du Bois, pillars of the Harlem intellectual community Marcus Garvey was the leader of the black nationalist movement promoting black pride. They worked to enlighten whites to accept blacks as equals

The Harlem Renaissance was an enriching period in American history and Harlem was the place to participate in this cultural and intellectual explosion of the time Even though it faded by the mid-1930s, we are left with the lasting legacies of jazz music, great literature, and an artistic expression that is uniquely African-American

Wintz, Carol D , ed. Harlem Speaks: A Living History of the Harlem Renaissance, 2007. (810.9 HAR).

Talking about Race with Help from the Smithsonian

Talking about race and racism can feel uncomfortable, but it is necessary The Smithsonian's National Museum of African American History and Culture recently launched "Talking About Race," a new online portal designed to help start conversations about "racism, racial identity, and the way these forces shape every aspect of society, from the economy and politics to the broader American culture " The museum's educators have been working on these topics for decades. "Talking About Race" builds upon their extensive research, studies, consultations, and educational resources from history, education, psychology, and human development. https://nmaahc.si.edu/learn/talking-about-race

The staff at the Genealogy & Local History Library has been discussing race and racism and how our experiences have been shaped by where we grew up (Illinois, New York, Minnesota, Arkansas), our ages, and our racial identities In our research, we see first-hand the effects of generational wealth, hiring practices, and social norms of the past. This includes the money and other possessions of monetary value (and even enslaved people) passed down in wills; clear evidence of certain companies that didn't hire anyone who wasn't white; and newspaper articles that erase anyone who wasn't a white male from the written record, purposefully or not. People use genealogy research for all kinds of reasons, but we hope as you do your own research, you think about how the past is affecting the present, and how we can all make a better future.

The Roaring Twenties

The year 2020 is proving to be a stressful and challenging year. We hope for better days ahead Let us look back one hundred years to the decade of the 1920s for solace in understanding what our ancestors were facing at that time. For authoritative information on decade studies, Hayner Library has some wonderful books and databases to help you, such as The Roaring Twenties by Tom Streissguth (973 91 STR) and What Made the Twenties Roar? by Sean Price (MasterFILE Premier)

The lead-up to 1920 was challenging. Americans had just gone through World War I (1914 -1919), which the U S. entered in 1917, and experienced the influenza pandemic of 1918. More than 500,000 Americans were killed in 1918 and 1919 from the pandemic, more than were killed in the war Americans were exhausted from the war and from battling the flu. They did not want to be involved in foreign entanglements. They needed healing and their spirits lifted.

After recovering from a post-war depression, life began to accelerate rapidly Two constitutional amendments were passed in 1920, the only year in history in which such a feat was accomplished! Women were increasingly becoming more mobile, aided by the recent influx of women doing typically "male" jobs during the war effort. This newfound freedom propelled women into politics and a loosening of commonly held values Drinking alcohol was prohibited by the Eighteenth Amendment but nightlife still flourished Women fought for the right to vote and on August 13, 1920, the Nineteenth Amendment was signed into law, bringing about a decade of revolutionary change in the social and economic position of women in the United States.

Social revolution, combined with a society loose with its money, increased prosperity and mobility Young people embraced new fashions, a new type of music called jazz, and new values, confounding the older generation. The influx of factory-made automobiles and better roads allowed more freedom of movement. The invention of television, frozen food, radio broadcasting, and the discovery of penicillin led Americans on the path to the good life.

Migration from rural to urban areas increased dramatically, leading to change in demographics and expression of cultural values The Great Migration occurred with African-Americans and poor white farmers coming from the south to northern cities seeking a better way of life. However, immigration from European countries, especially eastern Europe and southern Europe, was being curtailed. With the rise of mobs and the Red Scare, America formed an anti-immigrant sentiment.

Easy credit and speculation in the stock market made the economy boom and gave millions of Americans the comfortable life they were looking for But this access to credit and rampant speculation also brought about the crash that would put an end to the roaring decade

Genealogy & Local History Library

The Genealogy & Local History Library will remain closed to the public at least through July. Please visit the Hayner Library website for more details about general library services, hours, etc

What does this mean for genealogy and local history services? The Genealogy & Local History Library staff have returned to the library and have access to the print collection again, so please feel free to call (618) 462-0677, email (genealogy@haynerlibrary.org), or mail (401 State Street, Alton, IL 62002) research requests!

In addition to assisting patrons, we're also working to make more resources available online. We have partnered with the Illinois State Library to create the Alton Area Local History Collection as part of their Illinois Digital Archives collection We're adding more material all the time. To view the Alton Area Local History Collection online, please visit http://www.idaillinois org/digital/collection/p16614coll61/search/. The Illinois Digital Archives are a fantastic resource for Illinois history, and include photographs, oral interviews, books, newspapers, and other items.

The Genealogy & Local History Library has also secured an extension of remote access to Ancestry Library Edition through the end of July (at least). We are also absolutely thrilled to report that free remote access to Newspaper Archive (Illinois edition) has been extended indefinitely. So even when the Genealogy & Local History Library does reopen, patrons will still be able to access The Alton Telegraph and other Illinois newspapers from home. The links for Ancestry Library Edition and Newspaper Archive can be found in the Online Resources section of the Hayner Library website. If you need tips or have trouble using the sites, please feel free to email the Genealogy & Local History Library at genealogy@haynerlibrary.org.

We're also extremely excited about partnering with the Edwardsville Public Library and the Madison County Historical Society for the 2020 Historian Project (https://www.edwardsvillelibrary.org/teen-historian-challenge). Originally aimed at teens, the project is now open to everyone, and we encourage you to share your experience of living through a worldwide pandemic. This current moment in time will be in future history books. Your unique daily observations will serve as primary sources to people in the future. We hope that this project will encourage you to contemplate and think critically about the state of the world—and give you an outlet to process information, ideas, and feelings. Be authentic. Be honest. Be reflective. Pay attention to the details The goal of this project is to allow you to chronicle the changes you observe in your community, the country, and the world as a result of COVID-19

Wowbrary: Your Online "New Book" Shelf

If you've missed browsing at Hayner Library recently, let Wowbrary be your "new book" shelf.

Wowbrary is a free, non-profit online newsletter created to better connect people with what is new at their library. Published weekly, it highlights top new books, DVDs, CDs, audiobooks, and even online magazines added to the Hayner Library collection that week. Browsing categories include "Top 20 Choices" along with other fiction and non-fiction lists for adults, teens, and children.

Hayner Library has subscribed to Wowbrary for several years, but it is especially helpful now that libraries are offering curbside service as a first stage to reopening after the COVID-19 shutdown. ## Wreaths Across America 2020

Wreaths Across America (WAA) is a grassroots movement which began in 1992 by Maine businessman Morrill Worcester. The organization's mission, "Remember, Honor, and Teach," is carried out by wreath laying ceremonies in cemeteries in all 50 states and beyond. Through the wreath laying ceremonies and other coordinated events, the organization spreads it message about the importance of Remembering the fallen, Honoring those who serve, and Teaching our children the value of freedom and the sacrifices made by veterans and their families.

Thanks to local volunteers, this organization and its mission have been active in Alton since 2007 This year on Saturday, December 19, 2020, our community will participate in this year's National Wreaths Across America event. The ceremony will start at 11:00 a.m. at the Alton National Cemetery, 600 Pearl Street, Alton, IL. The ceremony may look different this year as we deal with the pandemic but the mission will be accomplished. Details are forthcoming.

In 2019, through generous community donations, 560 wreaths were placed on the gravesites at our local national cemetery. Every dollar donated helps ensure each Veteran is remembered. You can help continue this tradition by sending a donation to Wreaths Across America, P.O. Box 181, Alton, IL 62002. Each $30 received enables us to purchase 3 wreaths

For the fifth year, our local WAA effort will offer a limited number of wreaths for families or friends to honor their veteran loved one at other local cemeteries. These wreath reservations must be received by Friday, December 4, 2020, by calling Sue Fitzgerald at (618) 466-9017.

Please support our community in carrying forward this mission to REMEMBER, HONOR, AND TEACH Join our nation in honoring our veterans, many of whom forfeited their own Christmas celebrations for all of us

For more information, call Margaret Hopkins at (618) 570-8804, or to learn more visit the WAA website at www.wreathsacrossamerica.org

What's in Reference

Women's Right to Vote–Ida B. Wells

This year marks the one hundredth anniversary of the passage of the 19th Amendment, guaranteeing and protecting women's constitutional right to vote. After several decades of long-fought battles, the 19th Amendment was ratified in August 1920. Women marched, demonstrated, and were jailed to gain this right. It was not just granted

One prominent African-American woman in the suffrage movement was Ida B. Wells. Wells founded the Alpha Suffrage Club in Chicago to give voice to black women who had been disenfranchised in the movement

Born a slave in Mississippi during the Civil War, she became a journalist, civil rights crusader, and suffragist. She published investigative journalism on anti-lynching and became the most nationally recognized leader of the anti-lynching movement, giving fiery talks on the subject. She was a relentless crusader against injustice. She helped establish civil rights organizations such as the NAACP. Wells was an activist. While white suffragists considered racial issues a distraction, she fought sexism and racism

Black suffragists saw access to the ballot as a way to enjoy power and a voice in democracy. However, not all women had that right due to voting restrictions in the Jim Crow south. It would be almost five decades later when all African-American women and men had the full right to vote with the passage of the 1965 Voting Rights Act.

Ida B Wells' commitment to righting wrongs demonstrated she was a staunch believer in Frederick Douglass's timeless words, "Power concedes nothing without a demand. It never did and it never will." Ida B. Wells let her voice be heard. We owe much to these women who made it possible for us to vote, a right to be cherished and preserved.

Readers' Corner

Need ideas for a good book? Come to the Readers' Corner!

Reading good literature offers us a chance to see the world through another's eyes. African American literature gives us that opportunity, connecting us to our shared humanity. Major voices within African American literature are Ernest J. Gaines, Zora Neale Hurston, and Toni Morrison, one of the most celebrated authors today. Their works have left an indelible mark in the literary world and have preserved the cultural heritage of African American life during the twentieth century.

Gaines and Hurston's novels are based in realistic settings in the rural South. Gaines addresses issues of race, community, and personal identity. Hurston's exuberant stories are based on Black folk culture. The vibrant folk speech of her characters portrays authentic human beings. Toni Morrison novels are compelling, sometimes mythic stories, addressing sexism and racism. All of these authors write rich, deep novels that will profoundly touch your soul.

- A Lesson Before Dying by Ernest J. Gaines.
- Their Eyes Were Watching God by Zora Neale Hurston
- Sula by Toni Morrison

More African American classic authors:

- Gloria Naylor: The Women of Brewster Place
- Alice Walker: The Color Purple
- James Baldwin: Go Tell It on the Mountain
- Richard Wright: Native Son
- Ralph Ellison: Invisible Man
- Ann Petry: The Street
- Octavia E Butler: Kindred
- Nella Larsen: Passing
- Margaret Walker: Jubilee

Find our African American Authors lists and Anti-Racism book lists on the Online Resources page of the Hayner Library website (in the Books and Readers' Advisory category). The Online Resources page also features multiple other book lists as well as the NoveList Plus database, which lists read-alikes, book discussion guides, and more. Are you ready to make a difference in your community by helping others learn how to read, understand math, or improve their English language skills? You do not have to be a college graduate or a teacher to tutor. Project READ trains you. Inquire today about helping another individual learn to read or improve their skills.

Summer Reading Program 2020 Dig Deeper: Read, Investigate, Discover

Young patrons and the staff of Hayner Library were up to the challenge of this year's Summer Reading Program, "Dig Deeper: Read, Investigate, Discover." The KidsSpace staff worked hard to prepare and train our staff, patrons, and parents to use our new Beanstack online reading program. Beanstack helps young patrons manage, create, and measure their reading. Hayner Library also offered participants weekly online Stories & Art, Stories & Puppets, performers, and a take-home craft.

StoryWalk® Program

Exercise, fresh air, nature, and literacy are all combined in Hayner Library's StoryWalk®. The StoryWalk® program is an outdoor reading experience in which a children's book is deconstructed, the pages laminated and placed in weatherproof wooden story boards, and then arranged along a walking path. The StoryWalk® books, chosen by our children's librarian, are posted along the Frog Trail at The Nature Institute. The Nature Institute, located at 2213 South Levis Lane, Godfrey, is a non-profit land conservation and environmental education organization. The Frog Trail is approximately one mile in length and is located behind the Talahi Lodge. Visitors are encouraged to stop at the first storyboard and use a smartphone to scan the QR code, located at the bottom of the introduction page. Scanning the QR code will help the library keep track of participation in the program

Patron Profile: Philip O'Connor and the IHLS Library Crawl

The second annual Illinois Heartland Library System (IHLS) Library Crawl took place in January and was a tremendous success! The library crawl was a great way for patrons within the Illinois Heartland Library System to visit each other's libraries and to experience the wide array of library programming, collections, and services available in our state. Participants in the program were encouraged to pick up an IHLS passport at any participating library, have their passport stamped by at least five participating libraries, and then turn in their passport to their home library, where they would be entered into a grand prize drawing

Mr Philip O'Connor is one of our newest library patrons. He says he landed in Alton about two years ago. He is very happy he chose our area as he loves the uniqueness of Alton. He especially loves the history, the hills, and the riverfront. He likes being close to other communities as well He was born and raised in the Chicago area, with time spent in the United States Navy His time in the Navy gave him many experiences. Mr. O'Connor enjoys the outdoors and traveling to interesting places. He loves art, nature, enjoying life, and meeting new people. He works at the National Archives' National Personnel Records Center in Missouri.

Mr. O'Connor wanted to participate in the Illinois Heartland Library System Library Crawl because he was attracted to such a unique experience—and he was excited by the challenge of visiting as many libraries as possible. Amazingly, he was able to visit all of them! He visited fifty-two libraries and he drove a total of 1500 miles Mr. O'Connor traveled through twenty-six different counties on his journey.

During the planning stage, Mr. O'Connor first researched the range of hours and days the libraries were open. Some libraries are in large communities and some small Some are newer and built specifically for use as a library. Other libraries were once grocery stores, medical offices, and schools. The driving portion of his journey took Mr O'Connor on many roads—and gave him a chance to view farmland, countryside, livestock, and waterways. He said the weather was very cooperative and beautiful.

Here are some of the highlights of his visits· Mr. O'Connor found the vast difference in interiors quite interesting. Some interiors were so welcoming you almost felt as though you were walking into a home, complete with fireplaces and cozy chairs At most libraries he was greeted by a friendly face and a welcoming smile. He met very friendly staff members who offered him goody bags containing a treat or beverage. Three or four libraries gave away books. A couple of libraries even offered tours of their building, which Mr O'Connor was delighted to take.

The vast majority of his library crawl experience was very good. He really enjoyed talking to the staff and volunteers at each library. He said it is very frightening to him to realize there are towns without a library.

Mr. O'Connor believes Alton is very fortunate to have three library locations with such an energetic and helpful staff. He loves the Hayner Genealogy & Local History Library's beautiful interior He believes Alton should be grateful to have a place in which to sit, learn, share, take a break, meet people, and experience the joys of a library Mr. O'Connor calls libraries a cultural sanctuary. I wholeheartedly agree, and feel very lucky to have spent so many years working in our library.

Dial-A-Story is Back!

For over twenty years, Hayner Library patrons adored Dial-A-Story. It was a safe, free, educational, and entertaining activity for children—available from the comfort of home! We are very excited to be able to offer this service once again.

The Dial-A-Story service was available to Hayner Library patrons from the early 1980s until the early 2000s, when it was disconnected for technical reasons. Parents and grandparents who have fond memories of the service have repeatedly asked us to bring it back.

Dial-A-Story is once again available twenty-four hours a day, 365 days a year! Children may call (618) 462-TALE to listen to a short story recorded by the staff of our children's department. Each story lasts approximately five minutes and is geared toward young children. A different story will be available each week. Dial-A-Story is an outreach service offered to the public by The Hayner Public Library District.

StoryWalk® Continues This Winter at Alton Square Mall!

StoryWalk®, Hayner Library's interactive story and walking trail program offered at The Nature Institute in Godfrey, will be moved to Alton Square Mall for the winter months.

With the chill of winter and the trails closing at The Nature Institute until spring, Hayner Library has moved the StoryWalk® program to an indoor location at Alton Square Mall. Families can enjoy a new story each month from December through March.

Our indoor StoryWalk® will begin to the right of the upper level J C Penney entrance, run down the corridor and around the corner, and stop just before The Cookie Factory. At the end of each story, children ages 2-12 will have the opportunity to purchase a half-price cookie from The Cookie Factory after correctly answering a question about the story (limit one half-price cookie per child, per month). StoryWalk® is an innovative and delightful way for children and adults to enjoy reading and exercise all at the same time. Laminated pages from a children's book are attached to story boards which are installed along an path or trail. As you stroll down the path, you are directed to the next page in the story. The StoryWalk® program was created by Anne Ferguson of Montpelier, VT and was developed with the help of Rachel Senechal, of the Kellogg-Hubbard Library. Hayner Library is excited to be able to share this program with our patrons during the winter months, too!

Kate Hayner: A Dedicated Benefactor of Hayner Memorial Library

By Robyn Couch Harders and Lacy McDonald

Laura Scott Hayner (1823–1859), Jennie Drury Hayner (1837–1888), and Mary Caroline Keith (Kate) Hayner (1827–1917) were the three wives of John E. Hayner, a self-made Alton businessman and philanthropist who donated the money that built our original library building, now the Genealogy & Local History Library, at 401 State Street. Laura Hayner is best known as the mother of Florence Hayner Haskell and grandmother of Lucy Haskell. She died young. Jennie D. Hayner and Kate Hayner were both very involved in the community and instrumental in the creation and continuation of what is now The Hayner Public Library District. The nineteenth annual Vintage Voices performance at the Alton City Cemetery in October 2020 included fantastic performances by Diana Kay, Gabi Maul, and Robyn Couch Harders as Laura Scott Hayner, Jennie D. Hayner, and Kate Keith Hayner.

Because our building was named for Jennie D. Hayner, Jennie is often the first person Altonians associate with the library, but Kate was a dedicated contributor of time, energy, and money, and The Hayner Public Library District would not be what it is today without her support at the turn of the century

Mary Caroline Keith Hayner, called Kate, was born on March 28, 1846 in Sheldon, Vermont to Alfred and Anna Keith. After her formative education, she became a teacher herself and taught for over twenty years in select Eastern schools for girls.

In the fall of 1892, Kate met Mr. John Hayner while he was visiting the Pittsburgh area. She was forty-six and he was sixty-five. They fell in love and married on December 14 of that same year, and Kate made Alton her new home.

Kate took to Alton and its people quickly. She enjoyed meeting people from all walks of life and helping them in any way that she could. She and Florence (who by this time was married and often listed as Mrs William Haskell in newspaper articles) grew close, and often hosted social events together. One of Kate's favorite things to do was to help provide the holiday meals for the residents of the local Women's Home. She always proudly made two turkeys and the cranberry sauce.

John Hayner was a spiritual man, but didn't regularly attend church But Kate did, and she became deeply involved in her adopted church, St. Paul's Episcopal. She helped with projects such as the Dominant Ninth Choral Society and the beautification of the church and its parsonage

The Hayner family was deeply committed to the library and it was only natural that Kate should take up Jennie's mantle. In fact, Jennie and Kate were distant cousins! In 1894, Kate became a member of the board of the Jennie D. Hayner Library Association, and eventually became president of the Board.

John's love and vision for the library was ever present, and when he proposed to provide the library with an endowment in 1901, Kate and John's daughter Florence encouraged him and cheered him on. The endowment and proposal were extraordinary: it would allow the library to operate as a "free library," without charging membership fees or accepting tax support, which was unheard of at the time.

After John's death in 1903, the endowment was completed by Kate, Florence, Florence's husband Dr. William Haskell, and their son, John A. Haskell. John A. Haskell was John Hayner's only surviving grandchild. In 1907, the younger John donated an additional $13,000 to build the library annex, an addition which doubled the size of the building.

Also in 1907, Kate established the first children's department in the library. Children's services in a public library was a new and innovative idea. Many libraries did not see the value in having a children's collection, but Kate made sure that our library provided books and services to all Alton residents, even the very young Many of Kate's personal books, adorned with her book plates, can still be viewed in the library.

Kate was active in the library until a long illness confined her to her home for several months. She passed away on February 3, 1917. When she died, her obituary included this quote from one of her closest friends, "No worthy cause ever appealed to Mrs. Hayner in vain but were sure to have her loving sympathy and generous support."

Serving Alton, Godfrey & Foster Township Spring 2021

Welcome Back, Patrons!

We were excited to welcome patrons back for in-person visits to Hayner Library on March 15! All library locations were closed from March 2020 through May 2020 in compliance with Governor Pritzker's COVID-19 closure orders During this time, many library employees worked from home developing programs and online resources, such as virtual story times, crafts, educational activities, community support sites, public aid programs, and much more.

We reopened in June 2020 to provide curbside service, allowing patrons to access Hayner Library and interlibrary loan materials. During these months, staff were also busy with many "housekeeping" projects: carpets were cleaned in all our facilities, the shelves were weeded and straightened, the stacks were read, and we began a major inventory project.

We constantly monitored CDC and Madison County Health Department policies and recommendations. For the last several months, we planned and implemented procedures which allowed us to safely open our doors to public access. We will continue to quarantine returned materials before shelving, and will also continue our curbside service for those patrons who would still prefer to not be in a public space

We are fully configured with PPE supplies for both patrons and staff We have implemented daily sanitizing procedures for staff to follow We require all patrons to wear masks, which we can provide if you should forget your own. At this time, computer sessions will be limited to one hour to allow access for as many patrons as possible. As you remove items from the shelves while browsing, we ask that you please place the items in the bins at the end of the stacks, staff will collect the materials, quarantine them for the appropriate amount of time, and then reshelve We also ask that you follow social distancing guidelines most closely

We will continue to offer our story times, crafts, and teen activities online. Our annual Summer Reading Program will be held virtually. We hope to resume on-site programming sometime in the fourth quarter.

Please understand that only a limited number of our staff have been able to receive vaccinations, so we may not be able to visit with you as we would normally like to do But we will do everything possible to welcome you back into the libraries in the safest and most accommodatng manner

I, my staff, and The Hayner Public Library Board of Trustees thank you all for your unfailing support and patience as we have negotiated our way through this most unusual of years.

Help Us Help Them

Do you have Hayner Library materials that are still checked out and are embarrassingly overdue? Do you keep getting overdue notices in the mail and are scared of what your fine may be? Breathe a sigh of relief! From April 1-30, if you have overdue Hayner Library items, you may pay your fine with an item of pet food. This amnesty applies to Hayner Library materials only, and applies to items still checked out to you, not to fines already on your card for materials previously returned. Pet items must be brought in at the same time you return your Hayner Library materials; one pet item per overdue item.

All the donations will go to our furry friends residing at the 5A's animal shelter. The devoted staff in this no-kill shelter relies entirely on donations to provide proper care to the adoptable animals that have been abandoned, neglected, or abused. For more information about this worthy organization, please call (618) 466-3702, visit their website at www.fiveas org, visit their Facebook page, or visit the shelter at 4530 N. Alby Street, Godfrey.

RBdigital

Due to a change in ownership of the RBdigital Media Company, the unlimited subscriptions model for lending digital audiobooks and magazines is no longer being offered for library licensing. In addition, the new owners announced the intent to discontinue the RBdigital apps and website.

RBdigital's audiobook access ended on March 15, 2021 Digital magazine access ended on March 31, 2021

While we do not yet have a replacement platform for digital magazine access, the Illinois Heartland Library System, of which Hayner Library is a member, is in talks with companies who may be able to provide a comparable consortia lending model, which is what we are losing in RBdigital. Consortia lending models allow member libraries the ability to offer a robust collection of titles at a cost we can afford

Hayner Library still offers access to ebooks and eaudiobooks through the Cloud Library platform For more information about Cloud Library, including step-by-step instructions for downloading the app and using the product, please visit www.haynerlibrary.org and click on the Download Audio and eBooks and Help with Your eReader links You can also contact our Reference department at (618) 462-0677, ext. 2849, if you have questions about using Cloud Library. Our Reference librarian will be happy to assist you

We regret the loss of the RBdigital platform, but we hope to have a solution in the coming months. We will publicize any developments on our website and Facebook page and in future editions of this newsletter

Welcome Back to the Genealogy & Local History Library!

Welcome back! We are so glad we've gotten to see many familiar faces in person since we reopened in March, but if you're more comfortable continuing your research from home, please feel free to keep contacting us by phone, email, or letter with your requests! Give us a call (618) 462-0677, send an email (genealogy@haynerlibrary.org), or put a letter in the mail (401 State Street, Alton, IL 62002) and we'll be happy to help

Our Illinois Room book collection is available. All items have to be quarantined after use, so if there's something in particular you'd like to see, please call or email in advance so we can make sure it's accessible, especially if it's a frequently used book like an Alton City Directory or yearbook. We've acquired quite a few interesting books this year, so please check out our new books list, or ask a staff member about some of our favorites.

This past year, we had the Alton Telegraph newspapers from November 2012–December 2019 microfilmed and digitized. Due to copyright restrictions, these archives are only available for in-library use. However, they can be accessed from all patron computers at all three Hayner Library locations. Genealogy & Local History Library staff are happy to look up articles for you if you cannot make it into the library. The microfilm and database are completely unique to the Hayner Library collection, which means that we now have almost continuous issues available from 1836–present.

We have continued our project digitizing out-of-copyright books from our Illinois Room collection and now have over 275 items in our archive.org collection. Some of our newest digitized books are Shurtleff College Retrospect yearbooks, Monticello College Echo yearbooks, Lewis & Clark Community College TREK yearbooks, which join our Alton Tatlers, Western Military Academy Recalls, and Marquette High School Explorers. Many of these items are unique to the Hayner Library collection. All books are text searchable No library card login necessary: https://archive.org/details/@hayner_genealogy_amp_local_history_library.

Branching Out genealogy research tutorials have been filmed and are available on The Hayner Public Library District Facebook page You can also find direct links to the Branching Out videos on the Genealogy & Local History page of the Hayner Library website. Visit www haynerlibrary org, click on the Genealogy & Local History link at the top of the page, and select "About" from the drop-down menu.

The Genealogy & Local History Library has secured an extension of remote access to Ancestry Library Edition through at least June 30, 2021 Free remote access to Newspaper Archive (Illinois edition), Fold 3 Military Records, and NewsBank has been extended indefinitely The links can be found on the Online Resources and Genealogy & Local History pages of the Hayner Library website.

We continue our partnership with the Illinois State Library to create the Alton Area Local History Collection as part of their Illinois Digital Archives collection. To view the Alton Area Local History Collection online, please visit http://www.idaillinois.org/digital/collection/p16614coll61/search/.

We wish you luck in your research, and look forward to seeing you in person at the library

Newly Available VIRTUALLY in Our Illinois Room

The Genealogy & Local History Library continues to digitize out-of-copyright books from our Illinois Room collection while also identifying books that have already been digitized elsewhere. With the help of our cataloger, these full-text books can now be accessed by anyone directly from the SHARE online catalog: https://search illinoisheartland.org/.

Here are a few of the books available to view online You do not need a library card to view these books. Some of these books have been reprinted, so make sure you're on the record of the original printing (year shown in parenthesis) to access the digital book

Highlights of the Hayner Art Collection – View of Alton from Maple Island by Mrs. Rice

Welcome to the second installment of a series on some of our most treasured artwork. We invite you to come into the Genealogy & Local History Library to see this and other beautiful works in person.

This oil painting depicts a beautifully detailed view of Alton, Illinois, from Maple Island on a bright sunny day, with a grassy area to the foreground, a tree to the left, and a shrub to the right; the river with two steamboats and a canoe in the middle ground and Alton on the far shore, framed in a carved giltwood frame  The painting bears a plaque that reads, "Alton 1867 painted by Mrs. Rice "

The painting survives in overall good condition, having been relined on the original strainer, cleaned, and in-painted along the bottom edge  It retains the original gilded frame  The painting was given to the library in 1910 by George Roper of Rock Island, Illinois  Nothing about the painting or the artist appears in the local historical literature until the March 3, 1910, issue of the Alton Evening Telegraph. There, a brief article announced the painting's donation and identified the artist as "Mrs  Rice, who lived near Fourth Street on Langdon [in Alton] many years ago."

George's uncle, John Roper, lived in Alton and told the Alton Evening Telegraph that Maple Island, when this picture was made by Mrs  Rice, was not so far down the river as it is now. The action of the Mississippi's current has washed off the upper end of the island and added to the lower end, thus gradually moving the island downstream. In support of his statement, Mr. Roper cites that a few years ago someone made application to the government to take up and enter Maple Island  The government instructed an engineer to make a survey of the island, and it was found that from the time of the last survey the island had moved completely away and that where the island was formerly described, there was nothing but deep water  The island is covered with big trees, but this is explained by the fact that the movement has not been rapid enough to interfere with the growth of trees, and as fast as the trees on the upper end were washed away, others grew below; thus a wooded island was moving steadily down the river.

The painting remained at the library for three and a half decades without attracting significant further attention. Then, in 1944, Margery Quigley of Montclair, New Jersey, visited her elderly aunt in Alton and, when visiting the library, was quite taken with the scene  She asked her aunt, Miss Alice Quigley, then 86 years old, if she knew anything about Mrs. Rice in her youth and was surprised to find that she did. More to the point, Mrs. Rice had painted a double portrait of Miss Quigley with her twin sister when the two were just six years old

Hoping to find out more about the artist, the visitor asked Mrs. Eberlein, Hayner reference librarian, to assist with research and shortly thereafter followed-up with a letter to the editor of the Alton Evening Telegraph to announce the findings· Mrs. Eberlein revealed that the 1868 Alton City Directory included among the citizens "Mrs  E. Rice, widow," and that a subsequent directory several years later identified her more specifically as "Mrs. Victoria Rice."

Close inspection of View of Alton from Maple Island reveals the artist's great skill as a technician who paid remarkable attention to detail. She carefully lettered the signs on buildings, which can be read under magnification. She identified a riverboat as the "J  H. Johnson," and subsequent research reveals that the ship was launched in 1863 and destroyed by 1877, and helps to verify the date of 1867 provided by the label.

Join Us On a Journey Through Black History in Southwest Illinois

By Charlotte E. Johnson & Reneé B. Johnson

Charlotte E. Johnson

Charlotte E Johnson is a retired educator and local historian. Her daughter, Reneé B. Johnson, is a consultant, member of the Hayner Genealogy & Local History Library staff, and author of the children's picture book, Alton ABC. Mrs. Johnson has long collected and researched the stories of Illinois. Her work has resulted in numerous family revelations, museum holdings and exhibits, presentations, and listings on both The National Underground Railroad Network to Freedom and the National Register of Historic Places. Ms. Johnson shares her mother's interest in history and genealogy, supporting the effort to tell the true story of people and their lives. Over the next several issues of the Hayner Library newsletter, the Johnsons will take us on a journey through Black history in Southwest Illinois

Reneé B. Johnson

Though Illinois was admitted to the union as a free state in 1818, it was not, nor had it been, a welcoming place for those of African ancestry. In the late 1700s, when what is now Illinois became part of the Northwest Territory, slavery was prohibited. However, current owners were allowed to keep people in bondage. From shortly after statehood until the passage of the Thirteenth Amendment in 1865, Illinois enacted numerous laws known as the Black Codes. These laws placed restrictions on the lives of freemen and allowed the continuation of slavery throughout the state. Under these laws, free Blacks could not vote, own or carry firearms, gather in groups of more than three, or sue a white person. They were required to have freedom certificates at all times or were assumed to be escaped slaves. As such, they were subject to arrest, fines, and sale. Later laws required immediate registration and the payment of a cash bond when entering a county. By 1829, that bond was $1,000 per person, the equivalent of $24,000 to $28,000 today. These laws also allowed for slave-hunting and the return of escapees to bondage. They created an extreme indenture period allowing slaves to be brought into the state and classified as "indentured servants" without an actual change in their circumstances.

Even with the Black Codes in place, people of African ancestry built homes, businesses, and communities across the state. Many of the stories regarding people of African ancestry in what is now Southwestern Illinois begin with enslavement. Many, not all. Written into the landscape of the region are countless instances of how those enslaved, freedom-seeking, free-born, and their descendants have shaped the communities we share today. By teasing apart family stories, church histories, and vague recollections, one may begin to build a list of questions. Searching in probate and land records, newspapers and city directories, cemetery and military logs, and other formal documents bring to light the names, circumstances, and contributions of these people.

As we journey, we trust that you will consider your Southwestern Illinois story and how it intertwines with those we present. We challenge you to seek out those connections, to tease apart the recollections of your forbearers, and bring to light the stories of you, yours, and our communities.

To learn more about researching your stories or to continue your journey of discovery, visit the Hayner Genealogy & Local History Library.

The Piasa Bird

When you think about the Piasa Bird, what comes to mind? Is it the current version painted on the cliffs at Piasa Park? Is it the fire-breathing metal incarnation now guarding the Southwestern High School football field? Is it the modern day original that decorated Lovers's Leap before it was blasted off the cliffside to make way for the River Road? No one alive today ever saw the original, so whatever artwork the words "Piasa Bird" conjure in your mind, it likely comes from a myth created by a local professor named John Russell in 1836

The first record we have of what we now refer to as the Piasa Bird did not even mention wings. In 1673, Jacques Marquette and Louis Jolliet travelled down the Mississippi River through this area from Canada on their way to find the mouth of the Mississippi. The land belonged to France, and they hoped the river would empty into the Pacific Ocean. They could not cross Spanish lands south of us, and so ended their journey in Arkansas without reaching the Gulf of Mexico. But on the way, Marquette and Jolliet did discover not one, but two paintings on the side of the cliffs near Alton that left them thunderstruck.

"While skirting some rocks, which by their height and length inspired awe, we saw upon one of them two painted monsters which at first made us afraid, and upon which the boldest savages dare not long rest their eyes They are as large as a calf; they have horns on their heads like those of a deer, a horrible look, red eyes, a beard like a tiger's, a face somewhat like a man's, a body covered with scales, and so long a tail that it winds all around the body, passing above the head and going back between the legs, ending in a fish's tail. Green, red, and black are the three colors composing the picture. Moreover, these two monsters are so well painted that we cannot believe that any savage is their author; for good painters in France would find it difficult to reach that place conveniently to paint them. Here is approximately the shape of these monsters, as we have faithfully copied it."

In 1836, Shurtleff College professor John Russell wrote a story to explain the painting on the cliffs. He called his story "The Piasa: An Indian Tradition of Illinois" and it was first published in the August 1836 issue of The Family Magazine. Many Illinois newspapers, including the Alton Telegraph, printed the story in their pages. Alton was incorporated as a city the next year, in 1837 Russell's legend of the Piasa Bird, likely one you've heard many times before, has been a part of Alton's history since before the city officially existed. Here's a quick summary: a winged monster called the Piasa Bird, which means "devourer of men" lived in the cliffs and, well, devoured men. Chief Ouatoga, a brave Illini chief, prayed to the Great Spirit and offered himself as bait to lure the monster out of its cave. The Piasa Bird flew down to grab Chief Ouatoga in its claws, but twenty hidden warriors emerged to shoot poisoned arrows at their foe. The Piasa Bird let out a terrible scream and flew into the Mississippi River, never to be seen again.

Russell completely changed the narrative several times over the years, and admitted to Alton author William McAdams that his story was "somewhat illustrated." But by then the legend was already part of Alton's cultural heritage And even though the Chief Ouatoga story itself is a fabrication, the fact that local Indigenous American artists painted incredible artwork on the cliffs is true The ancient mural we call the Piasa Bird was created prior to 1673, and possibly done by the residents of Cahokia to signify that strangers were entering Cahokia territory. Cahokia was the largest pre-Columbian settlement north of Mexico during the Mississippian Period. It also may have been painted by members of the Illinois Confederation (also called Illiniwek or Illini) in the years after the Cahokian settlement was abandoned.

Regardless of the origins, residents of the Riverbend have embraced the Piasa Bird as a symbol of our area. Businesses from the 1800s to present, like Piasa Lumber Company and Piasa Paper Company, have used the name. The Boy Scouts of America Piasa Bird District covers parts of Calhoun, Greene, Jersey, Macoupin, and Madison counties in Illinois and the Boy Scouts were crucial in drumming up interest in the Piasa Bird story in the early 1900s. Piasa Brand Canned Goods were available at grocery stores in the area and used at the Alton Evening Telegraph's Cooking School in the 1920s and 1930s.

The original Piasa Bird painting stood guard on the cliff face above the Alton Penitentiary, but the rock was quarried in the 1800s. In 1924, Herbert Forcade, Boy Scout and Alton High School student, was chosen to paint his version of the Piasa Bird on Lovers's Leap. The painting remained there until 1952, when the cliff was blasted away to widen the River Road. It was repainted right away further down the cliffs, then demolished again a decade later. The next version, painted in 1963, was based on artwork by Ruth Means. From 1983 to 1995, a metal version (also based on Means's artwork) at Norman's Landing greeted travelers along the River Road, before it was moved to its current home at Southwestern High School. The present Piasa Bird painting is perched on the bluffs at Piasa Park, which was built in 1998 Dave Stevens was the artist, but community members could make monetary donations to the project and then help paint the Piasa.

We have numerous books and other items in our Genealogy & Local History Collection covering the Piasa Bird's history and significance, from Records of Ancient Races in the Mississippi Valley... written by William McAdams in 1887, to children's picture book Seymour Bluffs and the Legend of the Piasa Bird written by Phyllis Bechtold in 2006 There are scholarly articles, such as "The Piasa Bird: Fact or Fiction?" written by Wayne C. Temple and published in the Journal of the Illinois State Historical Society in 1956, and recent works by local author John Dunphy that you can read in the library or search for online Come visit the Hayner Genealogy & Local History Library to read these books, look at Piasa Bird artwork, or read early newspaper articles. There are 5,915 references to the Piasa Bird in our Alton Telegraph archives alone. An article from 1875 states, "It is a great pity that the utilitarian pioneers of Alton blasted away this cliff for building stone, and thus effaced the most wonderful relic of a past age that could have been found on the continent." It is a great pity indeed, but although the original painting is gone, the legacy of the Piasa Bird lives on.

It Happened in the Nineteenth Century

Without realization, everyone today has an affection for something that originated from the nineteenth century. It could be a fascination surrounding the Civil War, or a simple fondness for a cold bottle of Coca-Cola. Even turning on a light or picking up the telephone is an acknowledgment of the nineteenth century.

History has always been (and will always be) a riveting subject. It is recalling history which makes conversations interesting, trivia games fun, and movies action-packed! The nineteenth century saw many changes in the world. Many of those changes continue to have an impact on our culture, our lifestyles, and our social statuses today. Inventions developed during the 1800s continue to make our lives easier, healthier, and less hectic.

Here is a short timeline of just a few of the inventions and discoveries that continue to inconspicuously influence our twenty-first century lives.

The nineteenth century began with Britain rising as an industrial power, President John Adams sitting in the Executive Mansion, and explorers Lewis and Clark on the verge of a westward expedition.

The year 1805 saw a breakthrough in medical discovery when Friedrich Wilhelm Sertürner, a German pharmacist, was successful in isolating and extracting morphine crystals from poppy seeds. Due to its effectiveness in inducing sleep, he called it "morphium" after Morpheus—the Greek god of sleep and dreams.

The War of 1812 was the first time the United States declared war on another nation. President James Madison declared war on Britain after American interests were injured by Britain's endeavors to restrict United States trading.

By 1840, the population of the United States had grown to just over seventeen million people. Railway track had grown to almost three thousand miles, allowing for a more efficient way to move cargo across the country. By the end of the century, the railroad would claim nearly two hundred thousand miles of track.

According to legend, the first potato chip was offered in a Saratoga Springs, New York restaurant in 1853, after a patron repeatedly complained that his fried potatoes were too thick. Restaurant Chef George Crum, in an act of spitefulness, cut the next batch extremely thin and fried them extra crispy, hoping to finally satisfy the disgruntled patron. The result was surprising when everyone lauded this new crunchy cuisine!

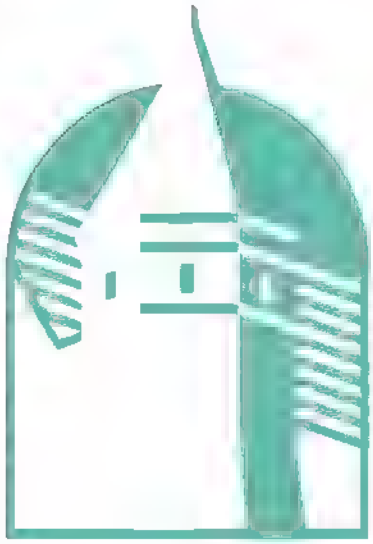
The first city sewer system was planned in Chicago in 1855. Since the city sat just a few feet above the water level of Lake Michigan, the strategy was to raise the entire metropolis higher off the ground by as much as fourteen feet. Buildings were jacked up, new foundations laid underneath, and the streets filled in with dirt. From beginning to end, the process took twenty years.

The Civil War forced brother to stand against brother on U.S. battlefields. It ended in 1865 when General Robert E. Lee surrendered to General Ulysses S. Grant. This final act of the war was the beginning of the end of slavery.

By this time in history, new and exciting inventions were happening throughout the world. The can opener was created in 1858, which was nearly fifty years after the tin can was introduced! The first pair of blue jeans was buttoned-up in California in 1873, and the first telephone rang in 1876.

The time zones spanning our nation's borders, which are still recognized today, were not created through legislative powers—they were put in place by railroad officials during the Great Railroad Time Convention, held in St. Louis in 1883.

In 1886, the first serving of Coca-Cola was offered for five cents in Atlanta, Georgia. This refreshing beverage was the invention of pharmacist John S. Pemberton. Pemberton was a veteran of the Civil War who had become addicted to opium after being wounded in battle. Coca-Cola was first sold as a medicine called "Pemberton's French Wine Coca" and invented by Pemberton as a way to combat his illness.



The first x-ray was achieved by German physicist Wilhelm Rontgen in 1895. The image taken was that of his wife's left hand. Unfortunately, it took many decades after this medical discovery for scientists to realize there were serious side effects associated with using radiation on unprotected skin.

The last ten years of the nineteenth century saw rapid growth in urban population and industrialization. More people were moving their families off the farms and into the cities for steady work. Cities were forced to widen their peripheries to alleviate the overcrowded housing conditions. They accomplished this by designing new communities known as "suburbs."

History has shaped us into who we are today. Inventions changed our quality of life while cultural events challenged the integrity of our beliefs. No matter how the nineteenth century influences the present twenty-first century, we should look back with gratitude for those resilient pioneers who carved several pieces of history to help make us healthier, happier, and more comfortable within our homes, communities, and workplaces.

History and genealogy walk hand-in-hand. History can tell us why our ancestors moved away from their familiar homelands to settle many miles, or even countries, away. People relocated and adjusted their lifestyles for many reasons. Epidemics within communities caused families to move to safer areas. Economic conditions and religious persecution in other countries forced many to relocate in hopes of finding viable employment or escape maltreatment. If you have ever wondered why your ancestral family settled in a certain geographical area, study a timeline to see what was happening around them. The Hayner Genealogy & Local History Library, located at 401 State Street, can help you with your family research, or your local history questions. Come visit us!

Take an Audio Tour of the Genealogy & Local History Library

Have you ever wondered why our library district is named after Jennie D. Hayner? Did you know that we almost lost our entire collection to the Quincy Public Library in 1865? Want to learn the history behind the beautiful oil paintings in the Genealogy & Local History Library, some of which we've owned for over 100 years? Come listen to our audio tour!

We have ten handsets loaded with the audio tour and historic photographs The handsets are easy to use, with adjustable volume and a printed instruction sheet.

The tour includes sections on Hayner Library history, the Hayner family, the original building, our most important works of art, and stories related to the local history displays. Our current displays are Hayner Library History, the Haskell Playhouse, Alton Railroads, Elijah Lovejoy, Western Military Academy, artist Agnes Millen Richmond, Monticello Seminary, Illinois Glass Company, and historic Alton postcards

A few interesting facts from the tour:

In 1867, Ralph Waldo Emerson, whose brother William was practicing medicine in Alton at the time, gave a very well-attended and -received lecture titled "American Culture" to benefit the library.

Alton native Agnes Millen Richmond's paintings were featured at the 1915 World's Fair Panama–Pacific International Exposition in San Francisco.

Elijah Lovejoy's son Edward (1836-1891) worked in the newspaper business for a time, where he wrote articles defending the rights of Japanese Americans and attacking the denial of civil rights when a school district refused to integrate African Americans.

There was an intense football rivalry between Alton High School and Western Military Academy. They first played against each other in 1904. Alton was winning 6-0 when the game ended early due to lightning. The next weekend, a fight broke out between the Alton High players and Western cadets. When Western officials were unable to stop the fight, the cadet corps was locked up in their quarters for the remainder of the afternoon. The two teams didn't meet on the football field again until 1907

Why Summer Reading is Important

Summer Reading Facts

- The benefits of summer reading are clear. National research from Dominican University finds that students who participate in public library summer reading programs scored higher on reading achievement tests at the beginning of the next school year than those who did not participate.
- Parents of children enrolled in the public library summer reading program reported that their children spent more time reading over the summer, read more books, were well prepared for school in the fall, and read more confidently.
- Young people experience learning losses when they don't engage in educational activities during the summer. Research spanning 100 years shows that students typically score lower on standardized tests at the end of summer vacation than they do on the same tests at the beginning of the summer. Libraries are part of the solution.
- To succeed in school and life, children and young adults need ongoing opportunities to learn and practice essential skills. Summer Reading Club reminds kids that reading is for fun—as well as for learning.
- There's so much to see, so much to do at your library! There's no better place to take your kids. The library is a place to learn, read, and have fun...a place the whole family can enjoy. In fact, more than 82 million children attend library programs every year.
- Studies show that children who are read to in the home and who use the library perform better in school and are more likely to continue to use the library as a source of lifetime learning.
- The amount of time children spend reading outside of school is linked to gains in reading achievement. Numerous studies show that access to books and magazines is directly related to higher reading achievement.

Prevent "Summer Slide"

Children who do not read during the summer can lose up to two months of learning by the time they return to school in the fall.

Build a Bridge

Children who participate in Summer Reading Programs and read a minimum of six books over the summer score higher in reading AND math when they return to school.

Highlights of the Hayner Art Collection – View of Alton, Attributed to Blair-Riley

This charming scene depicts a young couple waiting on the banks of the Mississippi River with their wagon, horse, and three children. Nearby river traffic includes the ferry on which the family hopes to cross to the opposite shore, as well as two side-wheelers and a flatboat with a sail. The town of Alton, Illinois, stretches along the distant shore, where its downtown–which is shown to the left–is dominated by industrial and commercial buildings, and the residential area to the right shows a church and numerous domestic buildings. The painting was completed in the mid-1800s and is in stable, conserved condition. It has several areas of restoration, most obvious in the sky, but has never been relined. The painting retains the original wooden strainer. The frame is contemporary in date to the canvas and appears to be original. Areas of the underlying red bole show through the gilding along the lower front edge, the result of dusting and touching. The signature, though confusing to many observers, is legible to the naked eye. Whether the painting was donated or purchased is unknown. An undated description of the history of ownership as told to Pearl Shearlock by Mr. Heidrich is in the archives of the library. Little is presently known of Mr. Heidrich. The painting came into our collection before 1943.

View of Alton has been part of several exhibits outside of Hayner Library, most notably Currents of Expansion: Painting in the Midwest, 1820-1940, at the St. Louis Art Museum, February 18 – April 10, 1977. The painting bears a label from that exhibition. It also bears another label that reads, "Krannert Art Museum, University of Illinois, Champaign, L72-3-45, Anonymous."

At present, there is little consensus about the signature in the lower-left or the artist's name. Hayner Library's accession file for the painting identifies the artist as J. W. Blair, but without further clarification of his identity, life dates, place of residence, or larger corpus of his life work. Regional historian Betty Madden, author of Art, Crafts, and Architecture in Early Illinois, briefly discusses View of Alton and identifies the artist as J. B. Blair instead of J. W. Blair, and records him as a resident of "Milwaukee, [Wisconsin] in 1845 who painted a view of Alton in 1856." She does so without further source or authority. An article that appears in the May 4, 1944, issue of the Alton Evening Telegraph cites Alton historian Guy Study, who attributed the canvas to "Blair Ripley" and assigned it the date of 1846—again, without a source. Curiously, a close inspection reveals a signature that actually appears to read "Blair–Riley." The meaning of the hyphen that exists between the two names is uncertain. Does this signify a hyphenated last name; the identity of a second artist who contributed to the great work; or the location where the artist might have worked? No answer is, at present, forthcoming. The artist has created a charming and well-organized picture. His simple brushwork and bold primary colors suggest he was a sign or fancy painter, rather than a professional artist—a possibility that may explain the difficulty of tracing his origins or locating other work.

The painting is located in the Illinois Room of the Genealogy & Local History Library.

Research and writing by Robert Morrissey, of Robert Morrissey Antiques and Fine Art in St. Louis, and Lacy McDonald, Genealogy & Local History Library Manager.

SHARE Makes it a Breeze to Use the Library

The Hayner Public Library District is a proud member of the Illinois Heartland Library System and its SHARE (Sharing Heartland's Available Resources Equally) consortium.

SHARE is a collection of libraries in central and southern Illinois that have joined together to form the largest automation consortium in the country. This consortium allows patrons to easily request materials from other SHARE libraries, which can then be picked up at the patron's home library. Most materials are ready for pick-up within a couple of days after they are requested. This convenient service makes it a breeze to borrow materials from surrounding libraries.

You may also use your Hayner Library card to check out materials when visiting other SHARE libraries.

Returning materials you have borrowed through SHARE is also just as easy. You may return materials to any participating SHARE library—not just to the library from which they were originally checked out. For example, if you check out an item at Hayner Library, you may return it to the Jerseyville Public Library. The Jerseyville Public Library will send the book back to the owning library.

For your convenience, materials checked out at one Hayner Library location may also be returned to a different Hayner Library location. Staff will ensure that the materials are delivered back to the owning branch.

Hayner Library StoryWalk: Family Reading and the Great Outdoors

StoryWalk is back and better than ever! Hayner Library has partnered with The Nature Institute to combine literacy and the great outdoors into fun for the whole family. StoryWalk is an innovative and delightful way for families to enjoy reading, nature, and engage in physical activity—all at the same time. Laminated pages from a children's book are mounted on raised storyboards at various intervals along a newly paved outdoor trail. As families stroll down the trail, they're directed to the next page in the story.

Hayner Library invites families to enjoy our StoryWalk, located on the newly paved Frog Trail at The Nature Institute, 2213 S Levis Lane, Godfrey. The trail is approximately a half-mile in length and is located behind the Talahi Lodge. Visitors are encouraged to stop at the first storyboard and use a smartphone to scan the QR code, located at the bottom of the introduction page Scanning the QR code will help the library keep track of participation in the program All trails are closed from December through March A new story will be displayed each month from April through November.

We are also pleased to announce that we have installed StoryWalk boards in James H. Killion at Salu Park in Alton. The StoryWalk boards are located on the fence inside the park, nearest the corner of Locust Avenue and Washington Avenue The boards were installed in late June and will change monthly. Visitors to this StoryWalk are also encouraged to stop at the first storyboard and use a smartphone to scan the QR code located at the bottom of the introduction page

To celebrate this wonderful program, Hayner Library and The Nature Institute invite families to join us for a StoryWalk celebration on Saturday, August 14, 2021, at The Nature Institute Families are invited to walk the Frog Trail, read the story, and make (or take) a craft. The fun begins at 10:00 a.m. and runs until noon. The first thirty families to walk the trail will receive a copy of the StoryWalk book.

Rocky Fork: The Beginning

By Charlotte E. Johnson & Reneé B. Johnson

Ordinary people living their lives That is the collective history of the Rocky Fork area. From those in bondage seeking freedom to those seeking a welcome and opportunity, people came to this place simply to live their lives and raise their children. Generation after generation, they called this place "home."

The Rocky Fork area, a National Network to Freedom Underground Railroad site in Godfrey, Madison County, covers an area that now includes residential, private recreational lands, and the grounds of New Bethel AME Church. As early as 1816, the area is believed to have been a passageway for freedom seekers. Just a year later, six slaves were registered as indentured servants by the owner of a newly established tavern/distillery, at the junction of Piasa and Sugar/Rocky Fork creeks By 1830, the area was well within the Underground Railroad route of Priscilla Baltimore Known as "The Moses of the West," Mother Baltimore brought many through Rocky Fork and was instrumental in founding its community

While the land was wild and a bit forbidding, it was valuable. Landowners Don Alonzo Spaulding and Andrew T. Hawley were the types of men who put their beliefs into action. They and their families were active abolitionists believed to be Underground Railroad agents. The lands they owned need to be cleared Their farms required workers. Both men offered freedom seekers work and the potential to acquire land.

In 1839, Mother Baltimore brought circuit-riding AME minister William Paul Quinn to meet with the people at Rocky Fork. Rev. Quinn gathered the people together as a formal AME Church group before continuing in his westward mission Through Rev. Quinn's efforts, a call was made for a resident spiritual leader Rev. Erasmus Green and Mrs Eliza Jane Green answered that call in 1857 In the meantime, more people came to the area by boat, long swim, and overland routes They purchased land through outright cash sales and work-for-purchase arrangements These include the Parks and Wilkenson families By 1869, Rev. Green had helped raise the first building to house the Bethel AME Rocky Fork Church and school, the center of a community

The 1880 Census numbers the community at 368 Black and Mulatto individuals Who were these ordinary people living their lives, raising their children? What has become of them and their home?

StoryWalk® Program

StoryWalk is an outdoor reading experience in which the library staff deconstructs a children's book (chosen by our children's librarian), laminates the pages, and places them in a weatherproof metal storyboard along a path. Hayner Library sponsors a StoryWalk on the Frog Trail at The Nature Institute in Godfrey and James H. Killion Park at Salu in Alton.

The Nature Institute (TNI) is a non-profit land conservation and envionrnmental education organization based in Godfrey, IL. The Frog Trail, located behind Talahi Lodge, is approximately a half-mile in length. A new book is available at the beginning of each month, from April to November. The library has installed the StoryWalk at James H. Killion Park at Salu on the fence inside the park, nearest Locust Avenue and Washington Avenue.

To celebrate StoryWalk at The Nature Institute, Hayner Library recently offered patrons the opportunity to walk the trail, make or take a craft, and recieve a free book. It was a beautiful day and families enjoyed StoryWalk and all that The Nature Institute has to offer.

We thank Illinois American Water for funding the weatherproof StoryWalk boards at The Nature Institute.

Wreaths Across America 2021

Wreaths across America is a grassroots movement begun in 1992 by Maine businessman Morrill Worcester. The organization's mission, "Remember, Honor, and Teach", is carried out by the wreath-laying ceremonies in cemeteries in all fifty states and beyond. The organization spreads its message about the importance of remembering the fallen, honoring those who serve, and teaching our children the value of freedom and the sacrifices made by veterans and their families through wreath-laying ceremonies and other coordinated events.

Thanks to local volunteers, this organization and its mission have been active in Alton since 2007. On Saturday, December 18, 2021, our community will participate in this year's national Wreaths Across America event. The ceremony will start at 11:00 a.m. at the Alton National Cemetery, 600 Pearl Street, Alton, IL.

In 2020, through generous community donations, 560 wreaths were placed on the gravesites at our local national cemetery. Every dollar donated helps ensure each veteran is remembered. You can help continue this tradition by donating to Wreaths Across America, P.O. Box 181, Alton, IL 62002. Each $30.00 recieved enables us to purchase three wreaths. For the sixth year, our local Wreaths Across America effort will offer a limited number of wreaths for families or friends to honor their veteran loved one at other local cemeteries. These wreath reservations must be recieved by Friday, December 3, 2021, by calling Sue Fitzgerald at (618)466-9017.

Please support our community in carrying forward this mission to remember, honor, and teach. Join our nation in honoring veterans, many of whom forfeited their own Christmas celebrations for all of us.

For more information, please call Margaret Hopkins at (618)570-8804, or to learn more, visit the Wreaths Across America website at www.wreathsacrossamerica.org

Illinois State Convention For Colored People Held In Alton

By Charlotte E. Johnson & Reneé B. Johnson

The 1856 State Convention for Colored People was held at Alton's African Baptist Church which later became Union Baptist Church. (Sketch by Mrs. Sadie L. Coates)

Born free, John Jones apprenticed with a tailor in Memphis, Tennessee. He came to Alton in 1840 to marry his ladylove and establish a business. Unbeknownst to him, laws governed his arrival in the state They required his registration, the provision of references to his good character, and the payment of a $1,000 fee. Disgusted by the inequality of these requirements, Mr. and Mrs Jones left Alton, settling in Chicago with a mission to change the laws. Together they were involved in the Underground Railroad and growing his business Eventually, Jones came to own sixteen blocks of what is now the Chicago Loop. He was a wealthy, well-respected businessman with political influence

By the fall of 1856, the country was focused on the machinations of a hotly contested presidential election in which the question of slavery and states' rights were paramount. John Jones and the other men who gathered on November 13 in Alton, Illinois were focused on citizenship rights and liberties, even though they were barred from voting in any such election. These men paid taxes to support schools their children could not attend. They could not bring suit against another man. Exercising their constitutional right to peaceably assemble and petition the government for a redress of grievances was yet another volley in their lifelong fight for justice.

First, in Ohio, in 1830, Colored citizens gathered formally to strategize against exclusionary laws and violence. More than two hundred Colored Conventions are known to have taken place across the country In more than twenty states and the District of Columbia before the turn of the century, men, women, and supporters gathered. Some of these gatherings addressed general grievances in a particular state, while others were national in scope There were seven Illinois State Colored Conventions between 1853 and 1889 and one national meeting held in Chicago

From the proceedings of the 1856 Convention held at the African Baptist Church, later Union Baptist Church in Alton, we know John Jones was one of the delegates from Cook County and that the delegates from Madison County were C.C. Richardson, I. Kelly, Louis Overton, E. White, H. Douglas King, James H Johnson, and Rev. R J. Robinson Representing Macoupin County were L. Magee and J. Samuels.

In his opening remarks, the president of the committee, William Johnson of Cook County, thanked his fellows for choosing him to fill the position and stated, "You are assembled for the purpose of devising means for the repeal of those odious enactments that now disgrace the "Statues Books" of Illinois I trust you will conduct your deliberations with harmony and order…" Over the three days of the convention, the delegates and guests worked in concert, resulting in the formation of a state-wide Repeal Association The Association was to hire agents who would travel throughout the state, holding county conventions, township meetings, lecturing, circulating petitions, and otherwise bringing to light the Black Codes' oppressive and unjust nature. Likewise, these agents were to be charged with collecting statistics on the wealth, education, mental, and moral conditions of colored people throughout the state. Their reports to the Association would shape continuing efforts.

It took nine years of collective effort to see the Illinois State Legislature repeal the Black Laws in 1865. It was another five more years until the Fifteenth Amendment, which states, "The right of citizens of the United States to vote shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or by any State on account of race, color, or previous condition of servitude." Yet, the fight for justice and equal rights continued through Conventions, marches, and additional legislation.

The project's recorded conversations include the following Alton residents: Aaron Atkins and Ariyah Smith, Courteney Wilson and Nana Becoat, Nancy Becoat and Leah Becoat, Faye Taylor and Wanda Walker, Tracey Northern and Eric Walker, Rosetta Brown and Abe Lee Barham, Amiah Williams and Antione Williams, George Terry, Diane Ingram, Carson Ingram and Faye Taylor, Jason Harrison and Willie Franklin, Bryden Barnes and Norman Barnes, J Eric Robinson and Stephanie Young, Gregory Harrison and Jason Harrison, Autumn Brown and Jasmine Hardimon, Steve Potter and Lloyd Johnson, and Yvonne Campbell and Evelyn Campbell

Archives of the StoryCorps conversations are available at Hayner Library's Genealogy & Local History Library and the Library of Congress. The Mythic Mississippi Project, a public engagement venture of the University of Illinois that promotes community development through cultural heritage programming, sponsored the printing of the portraits.

Masks will be required and social distancing policies followed. A non-walking tour presentation will be held at the Jacoby Arts Center on Sunday, October 10, at 5:00 p.m.

The Vintage Voices steering committee carefully selected the characters and themes of this year's tour.

Jake Tenberge will portray Elijah A. White (1892–1976). White was a World War I veteran and an employee of Western Military Academy. He will tell the story of the Academy and discuss notable graduates. This year marks the fiftieth anniversary of the closing of Western Military Academy.

Jared Hennings will portray Professor Charles Newton (1856–1886). Newton was the first Black student to graduate from Alton High School in 1873. A brilliant scholar, he then graduated from Shurtleff College in Upper Alton in 1876 and became principal of the Sumner School of St. Louis.

Sean Williams will portray Eddie Lumpkins (1892–1936). Lumpkins was the owner of Lumpkins Hauling Business in Alton and worked at the Stratford Hotel, Laclede Steel Company, and the leadworks. He and his wife were born in Oxford, Mississippi, came to Alton after they married, and became very involved in the community. Flora Van Koten will portray Abigail Hurlbut (1802–1884). Hurlbut will tell the story of her search for news of the fate of her son, Captain Wilberforce Lovejoy Hurlbut. Capt. Hurlbut fought at Antietam, led the Fifth Michigan Regiment at Chancellorsville, and was wounded at Gettysburg. He went missing in action on May 6, 1864, during the Battle of the Wilderness.

This year is the ninetieth anniversary of the adoption of the Star-Spangled Banner, and singer Debbie Maneke will perform the Star-Spangled Banner and Pledge of Allegiance. Blake Schaper and Jacob Schaper will also share the history of the Pledge of Allegiance, originally written in 1892.

Martyr to Liberty: The Legacy of Elijah P. Lovejoy Film Premiere

"Lovejoy's tragic death for freedom in every sense marked his sad ending as the most important single event that ever happened in the new world."—Abraham Lincoln

A drunk, angry mob murdered Reverend Elijah P. Lovejoy on November 7, 1837, at the Godfrey & Gilman warehouse in Alton. The mob smashed Lovejoy's (fourth) printing press and threw it into the Mississippi River. The yoke of that printing press, which was found and pulled from the river in 1915, resides in the Genealogy & Local History Library. Lovejoy was an abolitionist who fiercely opposed slavery and published anti-slavery views in his newspaper, the Alton Observer. He became the first martyr to the Freedom of the Press and is considered by some to be the "first casualty of the Civil War."

The Mythic Mississippi Project, a collaboration between the University of Illinois, Urbana-Champaign (Dr. Helaine Silverman) and the University of Illinois, Springfield (Dr. Devin Hunter), produced a short documentary film earlier this year about the life and legacy of Elijah P. Lovejoy. The film features Genealogy & Local History Library Manager Lacy McDonald and showcases many books and artifacts related to Lovejoy in the Hayner collection. The twenty-four-minute film premieres on November 9, 2021, as part of a two-day series of events related to Lovejoy.

First, the Lovejoy Memorial Committee will hold its annual Lovejoy Day event at noon on Tuesday, November 9, 2021, at the Lovejoy Monument in the Alton Cemetery. Bonnie Fox is the president of the Lovejoy Memorial.

Later that day, Tuesday, November 9, 2021, from 6:00–7:30 p.m., several panelists, including Dr. Silverman and Dr. Hunter from Mythic Mississippi, Great Rivers & Routes Tourism Bureau president Cory Jobe, Lovejoy grave trustee Ed Gray, Route 3 Films creator and owner Ryan Hanlon, and Hayner Library's Lacy McDonald will discuss the Mythic Mississippi project, Elijah Lovejoy, and the creation of the film. The film premiere will follow the panel discussion.

Author Ken Ellingwood will speak the next day, Wednesday, November 10, 2021, from 6:00–7:30 p.m., on his new book, First to Fall: Elijah Lovejoy and the Fight for a Free Press in the Age of Slavery. Ellingwood did an excellent job writing a compelling, suspenseful nonfiction account of abolitionist Elijah Lovejoy that reads like a novel. Nancy Gibbs, former editor in chief of Time magazine, and Lombard Director of the Shorenstein Center on Media, Politics and Public Policy at Harvard Kennedy School, wrote in her review, "First to Fall is not just a rich and well-told tale; it's a genetic test for modern journalism, an exploration of foundational American principles—the power of individuals, the fearless defense of a free press, and the deeper values of equality, justice, and truth-telling at any cost. The story of Lovejoy's martyrdom rhymes with the risks of reporters now facing rubber bullets and death threats. Fascinating in its own right, this history is also a bracing parable for our times."

First to Fall is available to read at the Genealogy & Local History Library or to check out at the Downtown Library or Hayner Library at Alton Square Mall.

The University of Illinois conference services is organizing the webinar; we will post a registration link for both virtual events on the Hayner Library website when it becomes available. There is no need to register for the Lovejoy Monument event.

Each year, Hayner Library holds our fine amnesty program, Food for Fines, in October From October 1 through October 31, 2021, patrons with overdue Hayner Library materials can pay their fine with a non-perishable food item We will donate all of the Food for Fines items to the Crisis Food Center in Alton. Of course, even if you don't have fines, feel free to donate items to help others in our community. Perhaps you have some Hayner Library materials that got lost under the couch or behind the DVD player. Now is an excellent opportunity to return those items to the library and avoid the accrued fines. Food for Fines is a great way to support critically essential community organizations such as the Crisis Food Center—and it is also a terrific opportunity to return "lost" materials to the library so other patrons can have the opportunity to check them out. Thank you for your support.

Food for Fines:

- Applies to Hayner Library materials only.
- Applies to current overdue items still checked out on your account, not fines already charged to your account for items you have already returned.

Serving Alton, Godfrey & Foster Township — Winter 2022

Hayner StoryWalk® Continues This Winter at Alton Square Mall

Attention, families! We will post our StoryWalk books at Alton Square Mall for the winter months.

Typically, we post our monthly StoryWalk books at The Nature Institute in Godfrey and James H. Killion at Salu Park in Alton. However, with the arrival of winter, we have moved our StoryWalk program indoors to the upper level of Alton Square Mall.

The StoryWalk books will start at J.C. Penney, move down the corridor, around the corner, and stop just before The Cookie Factory. The books will be posted on storyboards attached to the walls. At the end of each story, children ages 2–12 can stop by The Cookie Factory for the opportunity to answer a StoryWalk-related question and purchase a half-price cookie. Limit one half-price cookie per child per month.

StoryWalk is an innovative and delightful way for children and adults to enjoy reading and physical activity simultaneously. Laminated pages from a children's book are attached to storyboards installed along a path. The storyboards direct readers to the next page in the story. The StoryWalk program was created by Anne Ferguson of Montpelier, Vermont, and developed with the help of Rachel Senechal of the Kellogg-Hubbard Library.

Crazy Critters Who Made The News!

Who doesn't love a cuddly warm kitten or a pudgy rambunctious pup? Over the years, The Hayner Public Library District has shown our support for the canine and feline species with programs such as Food for Fido and Bow-wow Pow-wow, where children can read to a group of laid-back pooches during Saturday morning read-a-thons

For the most part, our pets are cute, lovable, and fun. But sometimes, let's be honest, they can also be a downright headache! I have owned a few such critters, and so did the folks below, according to the local newspaper

In October 1908, the Alton Evening Telegraph ran a front-page story about Jim Chessen's parrot. Jim's beautiful pet bird was an enthusiastic talker, but the words he chose to speak were not beautiful at all The newspaper article reported the fine feathered companion had such a foul vocabulary that it even repulsed Jim! So much so, he tried several times to give the bird away, but no one wanted to be the person responsible for bringing such vulgarity into their home. A week after the article ran, the newspaper reported that Mr Chessen was trading horses with his neighbor Joe Heines. I wonder why Jim didn't take advantage of throwing in the bird as an added bonus to the deal?

Jim Chessen's parrot wasn't the only parrot in Alton to make headlines. Three years later, in 1911, Mrs. Scott Walker on East Fifth Street had a parrot which she put on the front porch each morning to bask in the warm sunlight. But the warm morning sun wasn't the bird's only enjoyment. He also delighted in squawking out insults to the children walking to school. Having endured more than a fair share of the bird's shenanigans, a group of young boys plotted their revenge. The newspaper reported the boys armed themselves with "flippers" and declared war on the brash-speaking bird! As they approached the battleground (the Walker's front lawn!), the parrot exclaimed, "Wash your neck, dirty shirt." Now, I have no idea what this silly statement meant to the bird, but the boys took it as a full-blown insult and opened fire. One well-placed shot knocked the pint-sized bully right off his perch Luckily, the bird made a full recovery, and the boys received a reprimand.

In 1973, a moody goose on the loose was causing an uproar all around Grangeville, Idaho. Residents reported it to be running wildly and menacing the neighborhood canines with no regard to the size or disposition of the dogs. The owner of the grumpy goose was fined five dollars for allowing it to run around town unrestrained, but the city dropped the measly fine after their legal counsel declared the leash law did not apply to geese. The harassing of the hounds continued until the city changed the local law.

Dobin was a fire department horse who loved to run, and in 1928 he was arrested for doing just that. But Dobin wasn't running to a fire or a rescue—he was running for the joy of it. He was spotted blissfully sprinting down public streets, across busy intersections, and through red stoplights. Dobin evaded all valiant attempts at capture, but he was finally caught by an exasperated patrolman who, without prejudice, arrested and charged the horse with exceeding the speed limit! Dobin's free rein adventure landed him a front-page newspaper story along with the title of "first horse to be arrested in Chicago."

In 1937, a family in Alton was raising a pair of monkeys on Highland Avenue. Baby Lou was the youngest, and he was said to be a pesky little critter whose daily antics were more than a barrel of . fun (you expected monkeys, right?). According to the newspaper headline, Baby Lou was dubbed "Family Nuisance Number One " Since he was allowed to run around the home unattended, his exploring quickly became a problem for the entire household. When Baby Lou found the mailbox, he began a daily ritual of removing the mail and joyously tearing every piece to shreds. Next, he discovered the clothesline and the great pleasure of removing the freshly laundered clothes so that he could distribute them haphazardly around the yard. But Baby Lou did have a few redeeming qualities. He loved to swim in Piasa Creek, hang from the top of a broomstick, sit lovingly on shoulders, and chew the gum that he would pull right out of his owner's mouth (and there goes the bad temperament, again!).

In 1911, Mr. Pfaff of Alton had a melancholy chicken The chicken was reportedly twenty-five years old and seemingly sick. The newspaper reporter compared the hen to Methuselah, so I assume it is unusual for a chicken to reach this milestone birthday. During her life on the farm, she had dutifully acted as a surrogate mother to the baby chicks, but lately, she had abandoned her position as mother hen and no longer seemed interested in her farm life Mr. Pfaff, thinking the hen was ready to say her final goodbye, took her for a ride into town so he could have a professional photo taken of his beloved bird before she died. Surprisingly, after Mr. Pfaff's and his egg-laying sidekick's joyride ended, the hen recovered from her discontent and went back to her motherly duties with a renewed enthusiasm Mr Pfaff firmly believed the day-long outing away from the farm was the healing touch for the aged hen. I guess this proves that all mothers (human or poultry) need a break from the brood now and then!

Dogs are man's best friend, and some can actually tell you so! According to an article in the September 20, 1950 Alton Evening Telegraph newspaper, telephone linemen were startled when a dog at the East Alton residence of E.A. Jones called out to his owner. What was so startling was that he didn't call out by a bark but by a word. According to the linemen, the owner's wife told the dog to "call Earl," and the dog did exactly as he was told. He yelled out, "Earl!" When the shocked workmen questioned Mrs. Jones about what they had just heard, she told them the dog could talk, but usually only on mornings when the weather is cool. It seems the mongrel dog, who had been rescued by the Jones family a year earlier, was a bit picky when it came to vocalizing his talent. She also informed the workers that the dog barks, too! Well, now, who would have guessed that?

Mary may have had a little lamb who followed her to school, but according to the 1948 Alton Evening Telegraph, Johnny had a dog. And Johnny's dog was not the only pup who followed the kids to school that year. According to the article, too many dogs were accompanying their young friends to school and then gathering to play and fight on the playground. The canine high jinks, which were happening right outside the schoolroom window, were distracting the children so much that school officials called the police to break up the rally and send the dogs home But the police said the wayward pets were not breaking any laws, so they could not do anything about it. Maybe this is why Mary had a little lamb; it was a quiet pet that behaved more civilly on the playground!

Myrtle, the turtle from Wood River, made front-page headline news in 1963 when her six-year-old owner Cynthia Floyd came home from school and couldn't find her slow-moving playmate. Besides Myrtle the turtle, little Cindy had three goldfish named Reggie, Kent, and Wilbur. She also had a small poodle named Babette, who, besides the fish, was the only occupant in the house when Myrtle went missing. An accusatory finger was pointed—and it was pointed in Babette's direction. Worried for the dog's health if she did indeed turn Myrtle into an afternoon snack, the family consulted a veterinarian. The vet declared that the outcome had been far worse for the turtle than the consequences would be for the ornery little pooch. Myrtle the turtle was never seen again, and the newspaper reported that Babette never confessed.

The primate, poodle, and parrots in this article prove that the pets of our ancestors can also shed some light on who our family members were and how they lived  Maybe adding some pet stories to your genealogy research can introduce a whole different side of the family!

Mall walkers and outdoor walkers! Stop by Hayner Library and check out a pedometer with your library card. Pedometers can be borrowed for two weeks and possibly renewed (if there are no outstanding holds). Keep track of your steps and enjoy the physical activity of walking.

Pedometers track the number of steps taken in a day and are a popular tool for motivating physical activity. Both our physical and mental health benefit from walking. Try using a pedometer this winter and add more steps to your day!

And while you're at the library, be sure to pick up our hiking guide, which lists local walking paths and trails to explore.

Earlier this spring, children and parents found a new (masked) face behind the KidsSpace desk at Hayner Library at Alton Square Mall. We are happy to announce that Sam Staicoff has joined the Hayner KidsSpace department full time! Sam joined KidsSpace after Janet Andrews retired from the department in September 2020.

I must admit that when interacting with Sam, I have the urge to call her Sam I Am. She assures me that I'm not the only one who does. "I have so many parents and caregivers ask, 'Sam? As in Sam I Am?' when they first meet me!" said Sam.

This reference is fitting, not only because Sam works in our children's department, but because Green Eggs and Ham happens to be her favorite childhood book!

Sam brings an impressive academic resume to her position. After earning an undergraduate degree in psychology, Sam knew she wanted to pursue a career dedicated to helping children. After internships with the Illinois Department of Children and Family Services and the Head Start Program, Sam earned a master's degree in licensed mental health counseling.

Her realization of the potency of unity within a community and her desire to work in an established community-centered organization led her to apply for a position at Hayner Library. "While I was getting my master's degree and volunteering, I realized the magic that happens when a community comes together for the well-being of everyone," Sam explains. "Individual change is a powerful thing, but the change that happens when you have a supportive community is phenomenal."

Since her first day in her new position, Sam has worked tirelessly to provide unique and creative programs and events for the children and families in our community. One such program, Science with Sam, is especially important to her. Science with Sam is a STEAM-based program for children between the ages of seven and ten. STEAM stands for science, technology, engineering, and math. Once a month, children who participate in the Science with Sam program can visit the library to pick up an interactive kit that includes item lists and ingredients to perform an activity that demonstrates different STEAM concepts such as surface tension, earth science, anatomy, robotics, and more. Sam also records instructional videos for each kit, published on the library's Facebook page and KidsSpace YouTube channel. The Science with Sam program is rooted in Sam's passion for the scientific field. "The subject of science has always fascinated me, and I love learning about new theories or discoveries that can be tested through the scientific method," she said.

Science with Sam isn't the only program offered in KidsSpace. Each week, the KidsSpace staff, consisting of Sam, Mary Kay Serio, Sharon Windham (manager), and Shannon French, offers story times, crafts, and special programs.

With so many programs happening, I was eager to find out what part of her job Sam loves the most. "My favorite part of KidsSpace is getting to share the joy and creativity that comes with making children's programs. Watching kids' faces light up with happiness and understanding when they participate is what makes this job awesome," smiled Sam.

In the short amount of time that Sam has been in KidsSpace, she has created an atmosphere that allows children to learn, share, and grow as individuals. We're delighted that Sam has joined our KidsSpace department, and we look forward to seeing what creative ideas she has in store!

Congratulations to Vintage Voices for a Successful Twentieth Year!

Since 2002, Vintage Voices has become an important cultural event in our community. Every October, tours are held in the Alton Cemetery with actors in period costumes telling the story of Altonians who have shaped the Riverbend's history.

Vintage Voices began as a fundraiser for the Alton YWCA. Through the years, the event has been a collaboration between the YWCA, Alton Cemetery Board, Alton Little Theater, and starting in 2019, a committee of community volunteers. The committee partners with the East End Improvement Association (Alton, IL) to "Keep history alive!" The staff at the Genealogy & Local History Library assists the Vintage Voices committee in several ways:

- Helping to compile a list of possible decedents for the Vintage Voices committee to consider.
- Helping to locate the chosen decedents in the cemetery, especially if there is not a gravestone. The Genealogy & Local History Library collection contains copies of burial books, lot books, and other cemetery records. Cemetery maps are available in the library and on The Hayner Public Library District website.
- Providing research packets to the actors on the decedent they will portray. Actors write their own scripts—and really do a fantastic job!
- Providing access to physical and digital research materials such as the Alton Telegraph from 1836–present (available remotely from 1836–2012 and 2020–present with your Hayner library card).
- Serving as a permanent repository for Vintage Voices ephemera such as a complete set of the program booklets and many of the scripts written by actors over the years. All of these items are available to view in the library.

Proceeds from the Vintage Voices performances support the continuation of the event, upkeep of the Alton Cemetery, and various community organizations, including Hayner Library. Please come out next year to see our history come alive!

Martyr to Liberty: The Legacy of Elijah P. Lovejoy Film

On 2021's Lovejoy Day, November 9, a new documentary film premiered. Martyr to Liberty: The Legacy of Elijah P. Lovejoy has a permanent home in the video section on Hayner Library's Facebook page and on a new page of the Hayner Library website (https://www.haynerlibrary.org/genealogy-local-history/elijah-p-lovejoy-collection).

The Mythic Mississippi Project, a collaboration between the University of Illinois, Urbana-Champaign (Dr. Helaine Silverman) and the University of Illinois, Springfield (Dr. Devin Hunter), produced the film. Created by Route 3 Films, it features Genealogy & Local History Library Manager Lacy McDonald and showcases many books and artifacts related to Lovejoy in the Hayner collection. Most notable is the yoke of Lovejoy's fourth printing press, found by Sparks Milling Company employee Alfred Pitts and pulled from the Mississippi River in 1915, and which now resides in the foyer of the Genealogy & Local History Library.

Our website's Lovejoy page also contains a link to a Zoom lecture with Author Ken Ellingwood. In it, Ellingwood discusses his book First to Fall: Elijah Lovejoy and the Fight for a Free Press in the Age of Slavery, a compelling, suspenseful nonfiction account of abolitionist Elijah Lovejoy. "It's a genetic test for modern journalism, an exploration of foundational American principles— the power of individuals, the fearless defense of a free press, and the deeper values of equality, justice and truth telling at any cost," wrote Nancy Gibbs, former Editor in Chief of TIME.

In addition to Ellingwood's lecture and the documentary, our website's Lovejoy page also contains behind-the-scenes photos from filming, a bibliography of books and ephemera related to Lovejoy in Hayner's genealogy and local history collection, and information on the Lovejoy Memorial Committee.

A Return to Rocky Fork: Early People

By Charlotte E. Johnson
& Reneé B. Johnson

Though she never lived in Rocky Fork, Priscilla Baltimore was instrumental in founding the community. Born in Kentucky, her father sold her to another Methodist minister from St. Louis, Missouri. He allowed her to work as a seamstress to purchase her freedom. Well respected in St. Louis, Priscilla was therefore allowed to take enslaved peoples to church meetings. In 1825, she took eleven families to a meeting near today's Brooklyn, Illinois, and founded Freedom Town. Four years later, John Paul Quinn, an AME circuit-riding missionary, visited Freedom Town, organizing the people as a religious group and an Underground Railroad station. Priscilla Baltimore brought Rev. Quinn to Alton, where he organized the Lower Alton AME Church, part of today's Trinity AME Church. They then traveled on to Rocky Fork, where he organized the people into a religious group that became the Rocky Fork Bethel AME Church.

The combined efforts of Mother Baltimore and Rev. Paul Quinn established an AME Underground Railroad route from St. Louis, Missouri, through Jersey County, Illinois. After leading more than 300 people to freedom, many through Rocky Fork, Priscilla Baltimore is known as" The Moses of the West." From Prairie du Rocher, Randolph County, Illinois, Peter and Lavine Baker moved their family to Alton in 1835 after completing a term of indenture. Founding members of the Colored AME Church in the city, the Bakers were well known to Priscilla Baltimore and Rev. Paul Quinn. After learning of the Rocky Fork settlement, Peter Baker purchased forty acres of land at ten dollars per acre and moved his family to the community. He later purchased more land from A. T. Hawley and established a cemetery that cradles the remains of twenty-five early settlers. Called to continue the AME freedom work, Peter and Lavine moved north, joining the AME church group that met at Diamond School in Delphi, Illinois. Peter befriended known abolitionist Dr. Diamond. On September 21, 1879, before a crowd of 3,000 in Brighton, Illinois, the two men shared the podium to celebrate the repeal of the Illinois Black Laws. At the time of her death in 1905, Lavine Baker was returned to lie in eternal rest at Rocky Fork.

London and Agga Jane Parks, along with their four children, registered at the Madison County Courts as required of free persons of color in 1837. Like the Bakers, the family settled first in Alton and became founding members of the Lower Alton Colored Methodist Church. The Parks moved to Rocky Fork in 1842 after purchasing forty-eight acres for $150.00. London Parks became an initial trustee of Rocky Fork Bethel AME, and when plans began for a church building, he deeded the land for construction for just one dollar. Eventually, the family moved north to Delphi and helped organize the gathering of worshippers at Diamond School. Mrs. Agga Jane Parks was returned to Rocky Fork for burial in 1880.

Erasmus Green's father was a respected Methodist minister appointed to the Louisiana Conference. The elder Green purchased his own freedom and assisted others in doing so. When Rev. Paul Quinn sent the call for a spiritual leader for a freedom-seeking community in Illinois, Erasmus answered the call. He and his wife Eliza Jane came to Rocky Fork in 1857.

They settled into their lives, farming land purchased from Misters Baker and Hawley. They welcomed four children and served the people of the area through their good works and the founding of Bethel AME, Rocky Fork Church. Months after the founding in 1863, Erasmus answered a call to arms. Forbidden to own or carry weapons in Illinois, he joined Company B of the 56th US Colored Infantry in St. Louis, Missouri. Following three years of distinguished service in Arkansas, Rev. Green rejoined his family and parishioners in Rocky Fork, bringing Andrew Jackson Hindman formerly of the 56th. Together, Rev. Green and co-pastor Hindman raised the first Rocky Fork Bethel AME church building in 1869. Rev. and Mrs. Green served the community until they died in 1907 and 1927, respectively. Descendants of the Greens and A.J. Hindman still live in the area and support the church.

Hayner Laptops and Hotspots Available for Check Out

The Hayner Public Library District is pleased to announce that we now have laptops and hotspots available for check out at the Downtown Library and Hayner Library at Alton Square Mall.

Each laptop is equipped with a mouse, Microsoft Office programs (Word, Excel, and PowerPoint), a web camera, and ports for flash drives (so you can save your work). The hotspots allow users (both individuals and groups) to link a laptop, phone, or tablet to a free high-speed internet connection. For security purposes, the memory on each laptop is erased every time the computer is restarted. Patrons should use a flash drive to save all work; flash drives are available for purchase at the library for $3.00 each if needed.

Funding for this program was made possible through the Illinois State Library's Expanding Digital Inclusion: Transforming Library Services grant.

- Patrons must be a Hayner Library cardholder in good standing (unexpired card and no outstanding fines over $5.00).
- Patrons must be age eighteen or older to check out a laptop or hotspot.
- Patrons must fill out a Library Electronic Device Agreement form when checking out a laptop or hotspot.
- Laptops and hotspots can be checked out for two weeks and can be renewed once if no other patrons are waiting for a device.
- Overdue fees are $5.00 per day, per device. Wi-Fi service will be turned off to any overdue hotspot devices.
- For security and privacy reasons, the laptops are programmed to delete any information saved to the computer each time the device is rebooted. Therefore, patrons must use their own flash drive to save all work.
- Laptops and hotspots cannot be returned in the book drop; patrons must return the devices to the Hayner Library location from which they were checked out.
- Patrons are responsible for returning the devices in working order and with all components intact. Patrons are responsible for replacement costs for any lost or damaged devices and components.

Hayner Library Offers Fort Building Kits for Children

The Hayner Public Library District will soon offer fort building kits for our young patrons. The 120-piece kits contain plastic tubes and connectors, as well as instructions to create a variety of different shapes and structures.

These building kits are an exciting way for children to utilize hands-on STEAM (science, technology, engineering, art, and math) skills while designing and building their ultimate fort. The kits provide an opportunity for children to share new and creative structures with friends and family.

Since 1852, the creation, maintenance, and expansion of (what is now) The Hayner Public Library District has been made possible by the tireless work and dedication of staff, volunteers, donors, Jennie D. Hayner Library Association, and The Hayner Public Library District Board of Trustees. The amount of strategy, effort, and creativity that has gone into the success of this library district is truly inspiring.

This article focuses on the years 1972 to 2022, in celebration of the Golden Anniversary of The Hayner Public Library District. For more information about the early years of Hayner Library, please see Better Than They Knew: A History of Public Library Service in Alton, written by Pamela R. Klipsch. This book, written for the celebration of the Hayner Memorial Building Centennial (1891-1991), and others related to Hayner Library history are available in the Hayner Genealogy & Local History Library, 401 State Street, Alton

A public library district differs from a city or county library in that it is a wholly independent local governmental unit. Public library districts are created by an election or a conversion of a pre-existing library. On January 25, 1972, Alton voters approved the referendum to establish the independent Hayner Public Library District. Prior to this election, the library had operated first as a subscription library and then a city library

A library center in the Godfrey Town Hall opened in the late spring, Monday through Friday, with over 1,500 items. The new district began operation on July 5, 1972. Just weeks later, and despite expanded services, including the Godfrey library center, bookmobile services, children's programming, and mail-order paperback services, Godfrey and Foster Township voters opted not to join the library district by a five-to-one margin. Godfrey and Foster Township residents who lived in the Alton School District could still purchase non-resident library cards to use Hayner Library services

In 1973, the library's collection was 80,000 books and periodicals, 3,000 recordings, 300 8mm and 6mm films, and subscriptions to 200 magazines and fifteen newspapers.

On October 6, 1974, an open house was held to celebrate the newly-refurbished Hayner Memorial Library building as the Hayner Children's Library. The library has offered a children's Summer Reading Program annually since at least the 1950s, and Hayner Library has always tried to be a welcoming place to children. Also in October 1974, Hayner Library began offering Sunday hours for the first time in its history

In 1978, the library purchased the former Tri-City Grocery building at 326 Belle Street, which now houses the current Downtown Library. The library had leased this property and two adjoining properties since 1970

In June 1981, the Friends of the Hayner Public Library District group was formed.

In 1985, the Alton Square branch library opened at the Alton Square Mall. It was one of the first full-service branch libraries to operate in a shopping mall in the United States and the very first in Illinois. The library branch, whose storefront was covered with gift wrap and a giant bow, was "unwrapped" by Illinois Secretary of State Jim Edgar and Hayner Board Chairman Forrest Cook. The Alton Square Mall library branch was made possible by a grant from the Illinois Library System. Its continuation beyond the first year depended entirely on the expansion of the district to the rest of the Alton School District. Luckily, the following year, on March 18, 1986, a new referendum on Godfrey and Foster Townships joining the library district passed with a margin of seventy-nine percent.

The annual Hayner Library "Food for Fines" drive began in the late 1980s and continues to this day. Each fall, Hayner Library patrons with overdue materials can pay their fines with non-perishable food items, which the library then donates to the Crisis Food Center in Alton.

In June 1987, increasing maintenance costs and the success of the Alton Square branch led the library to discontinue the bookmobile service. In the fall of 1987, the library began providing delivery of books to library users who were temporarily or permanently homebound through the Hayner Homebound service. The service also provided books to area nursing homes and retirement centers.

In August 1987, Hayner Library announced that the Children's Library had become the Young People's Library. The young adult books were moved to the Hayner Memorial Library building in the fall, and services for teens ages thirteen to sixteen increased. The young adult area had a record player with headphones and a record collection that included a selection of rock music.

On Sunday, October 1, 1989, the renovated Main Library (now the Downtown Library) at 326 Belle Street reopened to the public. The renovation featured a new brick exterior, new windows, carpeted floors, new books shelves, and a new computer. The renovation and restoration of the Hayner Memorial Library building at 401 State Street then began. The library's ninety-nine-year-old slate roof was replaced. Other repairs included repairing mortar, installing a new air conditioning system, and making the restrooms and doors accessible to all patrons. The grand opening and rededication of the building occurred on May 19, 1991. More than 100 visitors came to the celebration, and harpist Amy Conrady played at the event.

In 1992, The Hayner Public Library District began mailing the quarterly newsletter to every address in the district.

In 1993, Hayner Library's card catalog was replaced by a computerized catalog of the library's 184,000 holdings. The task of entering titles and holdings into computer files took more than three years Hayner Library's newly-computerized catalog was then linked with other members of the regional Lewis & Clark Library System, allowing Hayner Library patrons to see the holdings of other system libraries and electronically request those items through interlibrary loan.

In 1995, the Hayner Youth Library became the first site in Illinois to launch the rod and reel loaner program in a partnership with the Urban Fishing Program of the Illinois Department of Natural Resources. Hayner Library is still part of the program to this day.

In 2001, Hayner Library began the annual "Food for Fido" program Every April, Hayner Library patrons with overdue materials can pay their fines in pet food, which the library then donates to the Alton Area Animal Aid Association.

In 2003, Therapy Dog International (Chapter 310) and The Hayner Public Library District staff joined forces to create our Bow-wow Pow-wow reading program. The program enables children of all ages to read an age-appropriate short story of their choice to a certified pet therapy dog. The program intends to make reading fun and boost children's confidence in reading aloud. As word of the success of this program has spread, Hayner Library staff have been contacted by libraries as far away as Colorado and North Carolina who are interested in starting their own reading programs.

In 2006, The Hayner Public Library District was presented with the Illinois Centennial Award by the Illinois State Historical Society The award is presented to Illinois businesses and not-for-profit corporations celebrating 100 or more years of continuous operation in recognition of their economic and cultural contributions to the state Also honored at the 2006 Centennial Awards Banquet were the State Journal-Register, the Chicago History Museum, the Lincoln Park Zoo, and the Chicago Cubs.

On March 21, 2009, Hayner Library at Alton Square Mall moved to its present location on the mall's lower level. State Senator Bill Haine (who worked as a Page at Hayner Library when he was a teenager) cut the ribbon. Illinois Secretary of State Jesse White and his Jesse White Tumbling Team were there to celebrate. Musical ensemble Bach to the Future performed, and Izzy the Grizzly, mascot of the Gateway Grizzlies baseball team, greeted patrons During the first week, presentations by staff from the St. Louis Science Center, the St. Louis Zoo, and the Butterfly House added to the excitement. WBGZ Radio conducted its morning broadcast from the library on March 23

The renovated Hayner Memorial Library building opened as the Genealogy & Local History Library on May 21, 2011, the 120th anniversary of the library building. During the renovation, the stained glass windows were moved from the annex to the current position above the Illinois Room doorways. The display cases and the circular desk area were also added, as well as the Tiffany-style chandelier in the foyer The Illinois Room now houses the Genealogy & Local History collection, which contains more than 9,000 books and other cataloged items.

In 2017, the Genealogy & Local History Library became a Passport to Your National Parks stamp site. Alton is part of the Abraham Lincoln National Heritage Area (ALNHA) and was named an official "Looking for Lincoln" community in September 2017. That designation allowed local organizations to become part of the ALNHA's National Park Service passport program. The library has many historic books about Abraham Lincoln and Lincoln photographs and artifacts are generally on display. In the mid-1850s, Lincoln's law partner, William Herndon, was a speaker in the Alton Library Association's lecture series.

In 2018, Hayner Library began providing a Storywalk® at several local parks. StoryWalk® is an outdoor reading experience in which the library staff deconstructs a children's book (chosen by our children's librarian), laminates the pages, and places them in a weatherproof metal storyboard along a path. There are now permanent Hayner Library StoryWalk® markers on the Frog Trail at The Nature Institute in Godfrey.

The yoke of the printing press thrown into the Mississippi River the night that an angry mob murdered Elijah P. Lovejoy on November 7, 1837, can be seen in the lobby of the Genealogy & Local History Library The press yoke had been displayed for more than eighty years in the lobby of The Telegraph building in Downtown Alton. The Hearst Corporation bought The Telegraph in 2017, and they donated the yoke to the library in 2018 when the newspaper's offices moved to a new building.

In 2019, a small group of Alton High School students and their teacher, Mrs. Lexa Browning-Needham, collaborated with Reneé B. Johnson of the Genealogy & Local History Library to publish a rhyming alphabet picture book Alton ABC. Copies are available at the Genealogy & Local History Library, and a new coloring book, Color Me Alton, will also be available this May

In 2020, the Coronavirus pandemic struck, and The Hayner Public Library District staff worked to develop innovative ways to serve patrons during this uncertain time. Dial-A-Story, which had first been popular in the 1970s, made a comeback. The Downtown Library and Hayner Library at Alton Square Mall started offering curbside pickup. The Genealogy & Local History Library digitized hundreds of books and photographs, and all databases were accessible remotely

In 2022, things are somewhat back to normal, but we've retained some of the pandemic-related services that made using the library easier for patrons. Curbside pickup will remain an option indefinitely. Newspaper databases are still available remotely, and we're adding more historical photographs to the Illinois Digital Archives every day Both the Downtown Library and Hayner Library at Alton Square Mall have children and teen areas and offer programs in-person and virtually Science with Sam, Dial-A-Story, story time programming, and take-home crafts are all available for children. Teens have movie theater outings, take-home-art projects, virtual escape rooms, and other specialized programming Free musical performances, lectures, and genealogy programs are being offered in-person once again.

The Hayner Public Library District collection contains over 225,000 items. Nearly ten million items are available through interlibrary loan within the Illinois Heartland Library System. The library offers free e-books and audiobooks through the Cloud Library app. You can access free databases on crafting, auto repair, Consumer Reports, health, readers' advisory, The Telegraph digital archives, and more from home using your Hayner Library card through our website or SHARE Mobile Library app. Computers, internet, and Wi-Fi access are available for use by patrons at all library locations. The library also provides laptops and hotspots for check out at the Downtown Library and Hayner Library at Alton Square Mall. You can also check out unique items such as telescopes, binoculars, fishing poles, 3D models, gardening kits, STEAM kits, and more for free with your Hayner Library card. The Hayner Public Library District has come a long way in the first fifty years, and we look forward to serving the Riverbend community for the next fifty and beyond.

African American Newspapers in Alton

Before today's instant communications and twenty-four-hour news cycle, the only way to know what was going on in your neighborhood, state, or across the country and internationally was to check in with the neighbor who knew all, be in the thick of the happenings, or read about it in a newspaper Historians and genealogists haunt these relics for evidence of individuals and families; economic, social, and cultural trends, geopolitical developments; and the occasional bit of gossip In addition to the larger mainstream weeklies and dailies, many newspapers focused on labor, politics, ethnicity, and community One of the earliest (1862-1900), and believed to be the first to subsequently become a daily newspaper published by a Black man in Illinois, was The Cairo Gazette Such newspapers carried commentary on local, national, or international happenings but with the constituency's lens. Many of these papers are lost to history because they weren't published for very long, had a small circulation, or simply because no one thought to save them for the legacy they offered

Family stories suggest that from 1903 through 1925, Mary Anne Green Hindman wrote a recurring column with highlights from the Rocky Fork area of Godfrey, Illinois Mrs Hindman carefully cut and pasted articles, advertisements, and columns in a scrapbook saved by her family Several pieces include Mrs Hindman's byline and the column heading, "Godfrey, Illinois," but they do not carry the name or date of publication Perhaps her column, full of personal tidbits and community happenings, was a regular feature of a newspaper for which there is no other record

One such publication was produced at St. John's Baptist Church in Alton, Illinois Rev Thomas P Wright, the church's pastor from 1917 through 1984, studied printing at Shurtleff College. He employed this knowledge to print the church's bulletins, programs, and a weekly community newspaper To encourage young people in the church to be informed about their community, Rev. Wright taught them how to run the press and other trade skills No known copies of their efforts remain

Another alumnus of Shurtleff College, Fred L. Penny, established a club at the Booker T Washington Community Center which focused on publishing a community newspaper. Established in 1936 by the Alton Negro Council and the city's Playground and Recreation Commission, the Center stood at 5th and Belle streets in Alton, Illinois The newspaper club continued under Mr Penny's direction after he became principal of Dunbar School (1937-1939). No known copies or details exist related to the club's output

By 1943, members of the Alton NAACP raised concerns about unfair, biased portrayals of the Black community in the Alton media In answer, The Question newspaper was created on September 1, with Harold D Johnson, editor, and Alton High School student Conway K. Graves, first as circulation manager and then as associate editor Several prominent African Americans served as directors of the publication and feature writers Just a few issues of The Question are known to have been in the files of the Black Pioneers Committee of the Alton Museum of History and Art In those pages are articles on community issues and African American Altonians serving in World War II

Madison County Courier began in 1985 with the following editor's note:

"This paper is being published in the hope that communications between these towns will be greater enhanced and the various communities of Alton, Godfrey, Madison, Edwardsville, and surrounding towns will be linked in a chain of information and ideas It is hoped that this chain will serve to bring about the greater development of leadership and fellowship among its citizens.

It is the Courier's objective to publish a weekly newspaper that you feel is an asset to you and your community Our objective is to bring to the forefront the positive things that are and can be found in our daily activities."

Once again, a small group came together to both highlight and inform their community They were dedicated to reaching beyond the boundaries of individual towns to highlight a collective need. Lead by editor Grace Monroe, a renowned educator and activist, the Courier, carried articles on local happenings, regional and national race politics In less than a year, the Courier fell victim to financial issues and discontinued publication Examples of these publications are held in local private collections

Would that we had an uninterrupted view of how the African American community saw itself and its role in the larger community. Imagine the events, people, camaraderie, and examples of patriotic citizenship lost to time. Likewise, imagine the student and scholar who, at some distant time, take in hand a copy of one of these gems and finds themselves. From such humble bits of paper, ink, and dreams comes the legacy of people, time, and place.

National Arbor Day Celebrating 150 Years

Arbor Day was first established 150 years ago after newspaper editor J. Sterling Morton of Nebraska City, Nebraska, proposed a tree-planting holiday on April 10, 1872. It is estimated that more than one million trees were planted in Nebraska on the first Arbor Day! Americans now celebrate Arbor Day by planting trees annually to enrich the earth for future generations.

Plant a tree to celebrate! Studies have shown that when you are around trees, stress is reduced, moods improve, and blood pressure lowers. Trees are good for your health and well-being. Urban street and park trees are just as important as rural forests.

Recommended books for a better understanding of trees:

New! Hayner Library's Walking Book Club

Hayner Library is happy to introduce a new program, the Walking Book Club, starting in April.

A walking book club is like a regular book club, except you meet at a walking trail and get some exercise while chatting about books. Studies have shown that walking stimulates our brain and helps us to focus and be more creative. Our Walking Book Club integrates mental, physical, and social activities, improving brain health while enjoying the company of others! Come enjoy the fresh air and beautiful trails!

Join us in the great outdoors for our first meeting on Wednesday, April 13, at 12:00 p.m., at The Nature Institute. Frances Young, manager of Rehabilitation Services at OSF HealthCare, will talk about proper walking techniques. Afterward, we will walk the nature trail and discuss what books we wish to read as a group. Jean Shimunek, Reference librarian and Walking Book Club leader, will adjust the walk to be conducive to talking.

- The Salt Path: A Memoir by Raynor Winn. A memoir of love and inspiration set in nature.
- Their Eyes Were Watching God by Nora Zeale Hurston. An all-time classic novel and masterpiece of the Harlem Renaissance.
- 52 Ways to Walk: The Surprising Science of Walking for Wellness and Joy, One Week at a Time by Annabel Streets. Explores the good things that can happen when walking.
- The Power of Fun: How to Feel Alive Again by Catherine Price. Fun isn't optional, it is a must in our world today.
- The Hidden Life of Trees: What They Feel, How They Communicate: Discoveries from a Secret World by Peter Wohlleben. Tells the story of species interaction in the forest.
- B*ird Brother: A Falconer's Journey and the Healing Power of Wildlife* by Rodney Stotts. A moving memoir on the power of birds to change a life.
- Watership Down by Richard Adams. Chronicles the adventures of a group of rabbits searching for a safe place to establish a new warren where they can live in peace.

Registration is required for the Walking Book Club. Forms are available online at www.haynerlibrary.org, or pick one up at the library. For more information, please contact Jean at reference@haynerlibrary.org or call 618-462-0677, ext. 2849.

Pedometers Available at Hayner Library

Mall walkers and outdoor walkers! Stop by Hayner Library and check out a pedometer with your library card. Pedometers can be borrowed for two weeks and possibly renewed (if there are no outstanding holds). Keep track of your steps and enjoy the physical activity of walking. And be sure to pick up a copy of the library's Area Nature Walking Guide for information on great local walks!

They're Back! Children's Learning Kits, Study Room Use, and Patron Seating Areas Return to the Library

Starting April 1, 2022, the use of many of the library items and services that were suspended during the height of the COVID-19 pandemic will resume.

Our children's learning and activity kits, study rooms at Hayner Library at Alton Square Mall, and seating areas at all three library locations will be available for patron use.

A complete list of our children's learning and activity kits can be found on the KidsSpace page at www.haynerlibrary.org and at the KidsSpace service desk at Hayner Library at Alton Square Mall.

The study rooms at Hayner Library at Alton Square Mall are available during regular library hours. Patrons can make reservations at the Circulation Desk or by calling the library at 618-462-0677, option two. Walk-in study room use is also available if there are no pending reservations. There is a two hour limit when using the study rooms.

For the convenience of our patrons, curbside service will remain available at the Downtown Library and Hayner Library at Alton Square Mall.

Our adult programming will resume in the spring. We will continue to offer our children's story time virtually through the spring, and in-person children's programming and story time will resume with the kickoff of our annual Summer Reading Program on Monday, June 6.

Calling Local Authors! Hayner Library to Hold Local Author Book Fair

This fall, Hayner Library will host a Local Author Book Fair, where you can meet local authors, buy their books, and have them signed. The event will be held Saturday, October 8, 2022, from 9:00 a.m. until 12:00 p.m. If necessary, a rain date is scheduled for Saturday, October 15, 2022.

The event will feature library card registration, a showcase of non-traditional library materials available for check out, a prize drawing, and other library highlights. There will also be activities and story times for the kids. WBGZ will broadcast live from the event, and refreshments will be available for purchase. The Riverbend Raptor will also be roving around the book fair for your amusement!

You can browse or make purchases—and be sure to leave some time to explore the beautiful Hayner Genealogy & Local History Library and Jennie D. Hayner Memorial Park. The Friends of Hayner Library, located at 327 State Street, will also hold a book sale on this date.

Authors, this will be an excellent opportunity to introduce your books to your friends and neighbors!

Patrons, find a new favorite author and stock up your book collection to keep you busy during the approaching cold winter. What is more inviting than a stack of books to ease your cabin fever? There are so many talented local authors in our community who deserve your support.

Free parking will be available in the municipal parking lot across from the Downtown Library on Belle Street between 4th and 5th Streets.

If you are an author with books to sell, reserve a table by calling Mary Cordes at (618) 433-2877 or email mary.cordes@hayerlibrary.org. The library will provide tables and tablecloths for authors. Authors can bring promotional materials and books to sell. Authors are responsible for bringing their own banking supplies. Authors should plan to arrive at 8:00 a.m. in order to set up their tables. There is a limit of available tables, first come, first served. The last date to register for a table is Friday, September 30, 2022.

We are hopeful that this will become an annual event. Please plan to join us—bring the family and support local talent.

Color Me Alton: Seasons Coloring Book

Alton High School Graphic Communications students, their teacher Lexa Browning, and Reneé B. Johnson, Hayner Genealogy & Local History Library staff, recently published Color Me Alton: Seasons, a multi-generational coloring book exploring the seasons in the Alton area. We held a well-attended book signing on Saturday, May 11, 2022, and Hayner staff members dropped off donations of the coloring book to local schools. The coloring books are now available to purchase for $10.00 (cash or check) at the Hayner Genealogy & Local History Library.

Student illustrators Allison A. McCarty, Hallie C. Beiermann, Sabrina K. Northway, Madeline J. Besaw, D. J. Holiday, Winnie Zheng, Genevieve L. Ahlin, and Olivia Joiner worked for months to illustrate text written by Reneé B. Johnson, highlighting seasonal activities and events in Alton, Godfrey, and Fosterburg, Illinois. The students drew pages depicting the Alton Memorial Day Parade, Juneteeth Celebration in James H. Killion Park, Alton Farmers' and Artisans' Market, the Nan Elliott Memorial Rose Garden at Gordon Moore Park, the All-Wheels Drive-In Classic Car Show, the Great Godfrey Corn Maze at Glazebrook Park, and other wonderful local traditions.

This is not the first collaboration between the Hayner Genealogy & Local History Library and Alton High School's Graphic Communications students. In 2019, Reneé B. Johnson collaborated with Lexa Browning and her students to publish the rhyming alphabet picture book Alton ABC. Copies of Alton ABC are also still available to purchase for $20.00 (cash or check) at the Hayner Genealogy & Local History Library.

The proceeds for Color Me Alton: Seasons and Alton ABC books benefit the Alton High School Graphic Communications club, Hayner Genealogy & Local History Library, and future collaborations. It has been a joy to work with the Alton School District and we look forward to future projects!

On the second Thursday of each month, library staff presents a discussion of a genealogy research topic.

On the third Thursday, we gather around the fireplace, and each of us gets a chance to share family stories, photos, and projects. We just relax and listen when we don't have anything to share. We learn from each other and have some laughs too!

Take a Hike! Read a Story in the Great Outdoors with Hayner Library's StoryWalk Program

StoryWalk is an outdoor reading experience in which the library staff deconstructs a children's book, laminates the pages, and places them in a weatherproof metal storyboard along the Frog Trail at The Nature Institute.

The Nature Institute, located at 2213 S. Levis Lane, Godfrey, IL, is a non-profit land conservation and environmental education organization. The Frog Trail, located behind Talahi Lodge, is approximately a half-mile in length and has been paved to make it more accessible for readers of all abilities.

A new StoryWalk book is available at the beginning of each month, from April to November. In the winter, Hayner Library's StoryWalk program takes place on the upper level of Alton Square Mall.

For more information on our StoryWalk program, including the title of the current month's book, please visit the library's website at www.haynerlibrary.org/storywalk or our Facebook page.

The StoryWalk project was created by Anne Ferguson of Montpelier, VT, and developed in collaboration with the Kellog-Hubbard Library. StoryWalk is a registered service mark owned by Ms. Ferguson.

Walking Book Club

In April, Hayner Library recently introduced a new program, the Walking Book Club. The club was launched by Hayner's Reference Librarian, Jean Shimunek, who sadly passed away in May. Jean was devoted to reading, exercise, nature, and friends and designed the Walking Book Club around these things. If this sounds like a perfect fit for you, please consider joining us.

The Walking Book Club is like other book clubs, except it meets at a walking trail or park and allows participants to exercise while chatting about books. Studies have shown that walking stimulates our brain and helps us focus and be more creative. Our Walking Book Club integrates mental, physical, and social activities, improving brain health while enjoying the company of others.

The book club meets for about an hour on the second Wednesday of the month, April through October. At each meeting, titles and walking locations are chosen for the next month's walk with the help of our club moderator. Our walks are paced to allow for both exercise and good conversations. The Alton/Godfrey area offers us many beautiful parks and trails for our walks, such as The Nature Institute, Riverfront Park, Gordon Moore Park, Audubon Center at Riverlands, and Glazebrook Park.

Registration is required for the Walking Book Club. The registration form is available on the library's website and at the Downtown Library or Hayner Library at Alton Square Mall. For more information, please email the library at reference@haynerlibrary.org or call 618-462-0677.

Check Out a Telescope and Enjoy the Night Sky

Everyone knows that you can check out a book using your library card. But you can also check out many other fun things with your library card, including a telescope! Hayner Library offers Orion StarBlast 4.5" telescopes for patron check out at the Downtown Library and Hayner Library at Alton Square Mall.

Each telescope captures the equivalent amount of light of 250 human eyes. Each has a zoom eyepiece, which gives a range of magnifications from twenty power to sixty power and provides a large field of view. You will be able to obtain clear observations of the craters on our Moon, Jupiter and its moons, Saturn and its rings, and the brighter star clusters and nebulae.

Adult Hayner Library cardholders may check out the telescopes for two weeks. Each telescope also comes with a learning kit and everything you need to start your stargazing adventure. Enjoy the great outdoors and night skies with your family and friends.

Lawyer in the Library: Know Your Rights Presentations at Hayner Library

The Hayner Public Library District is happy to announce our newest programming series: Lawyer in the Library. This series is a partnership between The Hayner Public Library District and Land of Lincoln Legal Aid.

Land of Lincoln Legal Aid is a 501(c)(3) non-profit organization that provides low-income and senior residents of central and southern Illinois with free high-quality legal services to obtain and maintain their basic human needs.

Our Lawyer in the Library series will focus on three areas of law: housing, consumer protection, and health and income security. These "know your rights" presentations will provide a general overview of the types of help Land of Lincoln Legal Aid provides. Because the attorneys presenting these programs cannot discuss or answer questions concerning specific cases, attorney referrals and appointments can be made after each presentation.

The following programs will take place at Hayner Library at Alton Square Mall, from 7:00-8:00 p.m.:

- August 3, 2022 — Housing: eviction, unsafe living conditions, and foreclosure
- August 17, 2022 — Health and income security: Medicaid, Medicare, TANF, SNAP, Social Security

The following programs will take place at the Downtown Library from 6:00-7:00 p.m.:

- September 14, 2022 — Consumer Protection: debt collection, bankruptcy, consumer fraud, and identity theft
- September 28, 2022 — Housing: eviction, unsafe living conditions, and foreclosure

Registration is not required for these programs.

For more information about Land of Lincoln Legal Aid, please visit www.lincolnlegal.org or call 1-800-642-5570 or (618) 462-0029. You may also pick up informational brochures at Hayner Library at Alton Square Mall or the Downtown Library.

Free parking will be available in the municipal parking lot across from the Downtown Library on Belle Street between 4th and 5th Streets.

We are hopeful that this will become an annual event. Please plan to join us—bring the family and support local talent!

New Book Drop Outside Alton Square Mall

We are delighted to announce that The Hayner Public Library District will be installing an outdoor book drop at Alton Square Mall! The book drop will be installed at the Ross/post office entrance on the lower-level of the mall and should be installed by October.

Materials returned in the book drop during the day will be collected and checked in that afternoon, while those returned in the book drop after 4 pm will be checked in the next morning, and back-dated to reflect the previous day's return date. If you are coming to the library to pick up additional materials, please return your items to the library, not the newly-installed outdoor book drop.

The outdoor book drop will be closed on extended holidays (such as Thanksgiving and Christmas). However, the indoor book drop by the library entrance will remain open.We anticipate this will be a great convenience to those of you who want to return materials with just a quick stop. The book drop at the Downtown Library is also still available for your use, to the left of the entrance at 326 Belle Street, Alton, IL.

125th Anniversary of the Alton Woman's Home Association, Beverly Farm, and the Lovejoy Monument by Lacy S. McDonald

A great deal happened in Alton in 1897! In that year alone, the Alton Woman's Home Association, Beverly Farm, and the Lovejoy Monument were founded or dedicated, which means they are celebrating 125th anniversaries this year. Union Baptist Church, founded in 1837, is celebrating its 185th anniversary. Vintage Voices performances will highlight those stories in the Alton City Cemetery on October 1, 2, 8, and 9. For more information on the actors and decedents who will chronicle these anniversary events, please see the Vintage Voices 2022 article

Alton Woman's Home Association by Marlene Lewis

A small group of women met on February 3, 1897 to establish a Women's Home in Alton. The group met six times during the next three weeks to decide on a location for the home. On February 24, Henry Watson unexpectedly appeared at their meeting and offered the old Dolbee Homestead for the very modest fee of $10 per month. The women enthusiastically accepted his offer. By March 20, just forty-five days after their first meeting, three women were admitted to the home.

The Dolbee Homestead sat atop the bluffs in the area now known as Riverview Park. It served the association for twelve years, until the need for repairs became costly and it was decided to build a new home on State Street. The homestead was later demolished. The land was purchased by the city to create an observation area with sweeping views of the Mississippi River.

In 1909, a procession of surreys moved the women to their new home at 2224 State Street. The building was designed by architect Lucas Pfeiffenberger and was built with generous financial support from the community. In the 1950s the lobby boasted one of the first television sets in the area. For more than fifty six years the Alton Woman's Home Association (AWHA) provided a comfortable living environment to hundreds of women from all walks of life. With the advent of social security, pensions, and Medicare, the home saw a gradual decline in admissions. By 1966, the last three residents were moved to the newly-opened Eunice Smith Home on the campus of Alton Memorial Hospital, where the association continued to provide for their care. The last of these three women passed away in 1980.

In 1972, the articles of incorporation were updated to offer a broader range of support to women and children in Madison County. On March 11, 1980, the board of directors met to discuss how best to use AWHA funds moving forward. Jane Henry, Roberta Allen, and Virginia Fabianic put their thoughts in writing, and their memos are among a collection of artifacts housed at the Hayner Genealogy & Local History Library. Archives show a total of $43,200 was granted to fourteen area organizations in 1980. Since that time, nearly $6 million has been distributed locally. In 2021, the organization provided assistance to eighteen area agencies.

The Genealogy & Local History Library has a number of archival items related to the Alton Woman's Home Association that are available to view upon request.

Beverly Farm

Beverly Farm was founded in 1897 by Dr. William Hammond Cross Smith, a medical doctor and authority in juvenile psychology, and his wife, Elizabeth, a special education teacher. Dr. Smith served as physician and Assistant Superintendent of the Illinois State Institute at Lincoln, Illinois before he and his wife moved to Godfrey to create "The Beverly Farm," named in honor of Dr. Smith's birthplace in Beverly, Massachusetts. At Beverly Farm, Dr. and Mrs. Smith planned to establish a fundamentally different approach in caring for people who live with developmental disabilities. Here they would offer a caring home, socialization, proper medical care, healthy diet, physical exercise, education, recreation, and meaningful work – a radical concept at the time. In 1897, there were only two buildings and two residents at Beverly Farm, but by 1909, 171 children had been admitted and 1,249 applications, representing every state and nine foreign countries, had been received.

Dr. Smith received notoriety at the 1904 St. Louis World's Fair for his pioneering concepts in the care of people who live with intellectual or developmental disabilities. The Smiths received a certificate from the jury of awards showing that Beverly Farm was the finest of its class in the country.

In 1979, Beverly Farm's focus changed from providing services for children and adults to providing services for adults only. Today, Beverly Farm is a safe and comfortable home for adults who live with intellectual or developmental disabilities.

Lovejoy Monument

Elijah P. Lovejoy was an abolitionist newspaper editor and Presbyterian minister who started the Alton Observer in 1836, and was also pastor at the Upper Alton Presbyterian Church (later College Avenue Presbyterian Church). On Nov. 7, 1837, a pro-slavery mob attacked the Godfrey Gilman warehouse, where his fourth and final press was being stored, setting fire to the building and killing Lovejoy. He was initially buried in an unmarked grave in Alton City Cemetery. In the 1860s, Lovejoy's grave was found and he was reinterred in his final resting place by William "Scotch" Johnston, who helped bury him immediately after his death, and newspaper editor Thomas Dimmock. (Lovejoy's grave is not located at the monument, but is further into the cemetery along a main path and is very clearly marked). Lovejoy was hailed as a martyr to abolition and free speech. In 1897, a monument to Lovejoy was dedicated in the Alton City Cemetery. Dimmock spoke at the dedication, as did Lieutenant Governor of Illinois William Northcott. The State of Illinois contributed $25,000 for construction, and the citizens of Alton raised another $5,000. John E. Hayner, who donated the money for the Jennie D. Hayner Memorial Library, was treasurer of the Lovejoy Monument Association. The monument consists of a ninety-three-foot-tall granite column topped by a seventeen-foot-tall winged statue of Victory. The monument is the tallest in the state of Illinois and can be seen as you drive from Missouri into Alton across the Clark Bridge.

The Elijah P. Lovejoy Memorial hosts a ceremony at the Lovejoy Monument in Alton City Cemetery every November 9, Lovejoy Day, which has been celebrated in Alton since 1952, when Jesse L. Cannon, president, James Bailey, secretary, and Joseph Brewer, treasurer, officially created the Elijah P. Lovejoy Memorial. The annual commemoration honors Lovejoy's life and legacy on the anniversary of his birth in 1802. The Lovejoy Memorial also awards scholarships to Alton-Godfrey area high school students. In 1954, Alton High School graduate Sterling Scales received the first Lovejoy Memorial scholarship. About 225 high school graduates have received scholarships since then. Bonnie Fox is the current Lovejoy Memorial president and Ed Gray is the Registered Agent Trustee.

Union Baptist Church –
Research by Charlotte E. Johnson

This is also the 185th anniversary of the founding of Union Baptist Church, the oldest African American church in Alton. Union Baptist Church was founded as African Baptist Church and Friends to Humanities in 1837. William "Scotch" Johnston, who dug the grave of Elijah Lovejoy, was a founding member of the church, as was John Anderson, a printer in the Lovejoy's printing office. The church was organized in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Edwards on East Fourth Street, with Rev. John Livingston as the first pastor. Rev. Livingston was the first and only African American ordained minister in Illinois. Other members present at the formative meeting were Mr. And Mrs. Charles Edwards, Mr. William Charles Barton, and Mr. Alfred Richardson, who first raised the issue of organizing the church. Also present were Rev. Ebenezer Rodgers, pastor of both First Baptist Church of Upper Alton and First Baptist Church of Lower Alton, Rev. James Leman Sr., Rev. James Leman Jr., and Mr. Edward White. The African Baptist Church continued to worship in the Edwards House and various other houses in the area until 1853, when its first building was erected. Shortly after, the Church's name was changed from African Baptist Church to Union Baptist Church. Union Baptist Church carries on its storied legacy to this day.

Vintage Voices 2022

Vintage Voices, now in its twenty-first year, will continue its tradition of guided walking tours in the Alton City Cemetery on the first two weekends in October: 1, 2, 8, and 9, from noon until 2:30 pm. Tours will leave from the main gate of the cemetery (at Vine & 5th Streets) every fifteen to twenty minutes. A non-walking tour presentation will be held at the Jacoby Arts Center on Sunday, October 9, at 5 pm.

Jeff Pruett will portray Marcellus H. Filley (1818–1868), a private night watchman at the First National Bank in Alton who was murdered on October 31, 1868 in an attempted bank robbery. Alton Mayor J. T. Drummond offered a reward of $1,000 for the apprehension and conviction of the guilty parties.

Debbie Maneke and Jake Tenberge will portray Sarah Baker Metcalfe (1827–1906) and Lyne Shackelford Metcalfe (1822–1906), respectively. Lyne S. Metcalfe was an Alton mayor, a founding board member of the Alton Unitarian Church, and served as a Colonial for the Union during the Civil War. Sarah was the daughter of prominent Alton attorney David Jewell Baker and attended Monticello Seminary in Godfrey. Lyne and Sarah were very devoted to each other and had been married over fifty-seven years when Lyne died. Sarah died later the same year.

Zach Hardin will portray Colonial John Kuhn (1833–1865) of the Alton Jaeger Guard. Kuhn joined the Alton Jaeger Guard in 1855, and served as one of the Company's lieutenants. In 1861, the Company marched to Springfield to muster in with the 9th Illinois Volunteer Infantry. As it was fully uniformed, about seventy-five men strong, well drilled, and accompanied by a brass band, their arrival at the capital created quite a sensation. The men of the Alton Jaeger Guards would become Company A of the 9th Illinois.

Rev. Anton Lane of Union Baptist Church will portray Rev. Austin Otey (1829 – 1905). A deeply religious man, Rev. Otey was the pastor of Mt. Pleasant Baptist Church in Godfrey. He was the very first pastor of Upper Alton Second Baptist Church, now known as Tabernacle Baptist Church. He was also a guest speaker at Union Baptist Church, where his funeral was held. Union Baptist Church assisted in the organization of Upper Alton Second Baptist Church. This year marks the 185th anniversary of Union Baptist Church. Union Baptist Church was founded in 1837 and is the oldest African American church in Alton.

Velva Parker will portray Sara Jane Woodson Newton Cohron (1853–1918), who was a very successful teacher in St. Louis and East St. Louis and the founder of the St. Louis Colored Orphans' Home (now the Annie Malone Children's Home). Cohron used her influence with the president of Boatmen's Bank to transfer the ownership of the Negro Civil War Veterans Home to the new St. Louis Colored Orphans' Home. Cohron was also the widow of Professor Charles Newton (portrayed last year by Jared Hennings). Her second husband, Rev. John Lewis Cohron, was pastor of Central Baptist Church of St. Louis, the largest Baptist church in the state of Missouri in the early 1890s.

Sean Williams will portray Henry Mayo (1820s or 1830s–1907). Mayo went with Gen. J.C. Fremont on the historical "Pathfinding" trip to the Pacific coast, where he worked as the camp cook. He also was the first cook on the first dining car ever run on the Chicago & Alton train line. Mayo was known as the only African American Democrat in Alton and in Madison County during much of his life.

This year marks the 125th Anniversary of the founding of the Alton Woman's Home Association. Alice Georgia (1869–1946) and Olga Polster (1884–1968) will share the story of AWHA. Alice Georgia was a resident of the home who was buried near the Alton Woman's Home stone. Her husband was a businessman in St. Louis, and they lived a very comfortable life, but she outlived him by enough years that she ran out of money. Gail Drillinger will portray Alice Georgia. Olga Polster was an Alton Woman's Home board member in the 1920s-1940s, and served as president for a time. Diana Kay will portray Olga Polster on the first weekend and Christy Schaper will portray her the second weekend.

This year is the 125th Anniversary of the completion and dedication of the Lovejoy Monument in the Alton City Cemetery. Ron Abraham will portray E.P. Wade (1833–1920), who was the president of the Lovejoy Monument Association. Wade was in charge of the exercises for the 1897 dedication and gave a speech detailing the efforts to build the monument, which is the tallest in Illinois.

This year is the 125th Anniversary of the founding of Beverly Farm in Godfrey. Claudia Herndon will portray Elizabeth Ellen Blake Smith (1860–1949) and John Meehan will portray her husband Dr. W.H.C. Smith (1860–1928), the founders of Beverly Farm. Dr. Smith received notoriety at the 1904 World's Fair for his pioneering concepts in the care of people who live with intellectual or developmental disabilities.

Tickets are $15 for adults and $10 for students ages 6-18. Tickets for the cemetery tour can be purchased online at https://www.eventbrite.com/e/vintage-voices-2022-walking-tours-tickets-307131136497 or at the main gate of the Alton City Cemetery at least thirty minutes before the tours begin.

Tickets for the non-walking tour can be purchased online at https://www.eventbrite.com/e/vintage-voices-2022-non-walking-event-tickets-307133433367 or at Picture This & More, 18 East Broadway, Alton, IL.

The characters and themes of this year's tours were carefully selected by the Vintage Voices steering committee. Hayner Genealogy & Local History staff members provide research packets to the actors on the decedent they will portray. Actors write their own scripts, and really do a fantastic job. The Hayner Genealogy & Local History Library also serves as a repository for Vintage Voices ephemera such as a complete set of the program booklets and many of the scripts written by actors over the years. All of these items are available to see in the library.

Proceeds from the Vintage Voices performances support the continuation of the event, upkeep of the Alton Cemetery, and various community organizations, including Hayner Library. Please come out to see our history come alive!

Food for Fines

Every October, Hayner Library holds a fine amnesty program, Food for Fines! We will waive fines on overdue Hayner Library materials if you contribute a nonperishable food item for each overdue item during the amnesty period.

During the holiday season, many community organizations hold drives to support centers such as Crisis Food Center, but we often forget about helping those in need at other times of the year. We are holding this amnesty program in October to help people without waiting for the support of "holiday generosity." It may also help make Thanksgiving a happier time for families in need.

From October 1 through October 31, 2022, anyone who has an overdue item can pay their fine with a canned food item. Library materials must be returned with food donations, at least one food item per overdue item, and only Hayner Library materials are eligible. All food items collected throughout the month will be given to Crisis Food Center in Alton. Of course, even if you don't have fines, please feel free to donate items to help others in our community.

Perhaps you have some Hayner materials that got lost under the couch or behind the DVD player. Now is a great opportunity to return those items to the library and avoid the fines that have accrued. Fine amnesty is a great way to support critically important community organizations such as the Crisis Food Center—and it is also a great opportunity to return "lost" materials to the library so they can be reshelved for circulation. Thank you for your support!

Wreaths Across America 2022

Wreaths Across America is a grassroots movement begun in 1992 by Maine businessman Morrill Worcester. The organization's mission, "Remember, Honor and Teach" is carried out by wreath laying ceremonies in cemeteries in all fifty states and beyond. The organization spreads its message about the importance of remembering the fallen, honoring those who serve, and teaching our children the value of freedom and the sacrifices made by veterans and their families through wreath laying ceremonies and other coordinated events.

Thanks to local volunteers, this organization and its mission have been active in Alton since 2007. On Saturday, December 17, 2022, our community will participate in this year's national WAA event. The ceremony will start at 11 am at the Alton National Cemetery, 600 Pearl Street, Alton, IL.

In 2021, through generous community donations, 560 wreaths were placed on the grave sites at our local national cemetery. Every dollar donated helps ensure each veteran is remembered. You can help continue this tradition by donating to Wreaths Across America, P.O. Box 181, Alton, IL 62002.

The cost of each wreath is $15.00 and for every $30.00 received we are able to purchase three wreaths.

Once again, our local WAA will offer a limited number of wreaths for families or friends to honor their special veteran at other local cemeteries. These wreath reservations can be made beginning November 21 through December 9, 2022, by calling Sue Fitzgerald at (618) 530-1430.

Please support our community in carrying forward this mission to REMEMBER, HONOR AND TEACH. Join our nation in honoring veterans, many of whom forfeited their own Christmas celebrations for all of us.

For more information, please call Margaret Hopkins at (618) 570-8804 or to learn more, visit wreathsacrossamerica.org.

Adult Winter Reading Program

January 30-February 27, 2023

Some years ago, we followed a detective known as Red as he solved a murder and caught an art thief. In hopes of a quieter life, he moved from the big city to a small town that hadn't seen major crime in nearly twenty years. But just as Red is settling into a slower pace, the inhabitants of this small town start dropping like flies. Questioning if bad luck follows him or if it's all just a terrible coincidence, Red once again puts on his detective hat to catch the killer!

Hayner Library patrons ages eighteen and older are invited to participate in our Adult Winter Reading Program for a chance to win a grand prize basket!

Registration begins January 30, 2023. Register at the Circulation Desks of Hayner Library at Alton Square Mall or the Downtown Library. Find new hidden messages each week to complete the story and follow Red while he tries to solve this mystery!

Executive Director Bernadette Duvernoy Retires After 27 Years of Service

The Hayner Public Library District wishes to congratulate Executive Director Bernadette Duvernoy on her retirement after nearly twenty-seven years of service to the District.

After working for IBM for fifteen years, Bernadette moved to the Alton-Godfrey area when her husband, Rick Lauschke, had an opportunity to join his family's business. She quickly became a volunteer at Hayner Library, delivering books to patrons as part of the Homebound delivery service.

Bernadette became an employee of the library on June 16, 1996, when she took a job as a Library Assistant at the Downtown Library. After several years working in the Circulation Department, Bernadette became the library's public relations coordinator, where she developed adult programming and worked to promote the library's services within the community. Bernadette cites programs such as Bow-wow Pow-wow as an example of the type of unique programming she enjoyed instituting for the community.

She became the Executive Director in 2013 and has overseen the development and implementation of many projects and services since then. When asked about her career at Hayner Library, she explained that while there have been challenges, her time at the library has been positive and fulfilling. She is thankful to have worked with so many wonderful people and a supportive library Board of Trustees.

We wish Bernadette all the best in her retirement and look forward to seeing her in her new role: patron of The Hayner Public Library District!

Gravestone Dedication: Prof. Charles Newton and Sara Woodson Newton Cohron

Alton City Cemetery
June 24, 2023, 10 am

Since 2002, Vintage Voices has been a significant cultural event in our community. Every October, tours are held in the Alton City Cemetery with actors in period costumes telling the story of Altonians who have shaped the Riverbend's history. The Hayner Public Library District is proud to support Vintage Voices in this important work.

In addition to sharing local history, Vintage Voices has a role in contributing to it, particularly in the two recent portrayals of the Newtons. Charles Newton (portrayed by Jared Hennings in 2021) was the first Black graduate of Alton High School in 1873. He went on to graduate from Shurtleff College in Alton, becoming one of the first Black teachers in the St. Louis Public Schools. He later became principal of the Colored School No. 1 (also called Dumas). Sadly, he died at thirty years of age, on September 17, 1886. His funeral was held at Union Baptist Church in Alton. While researching Newton, Genealogy & Local History Library staff members discovered that his wife, Sara Woodson Newton Cohron (portrayed by Velva Parker in 2022) was buried next to him in the Alton City Cemetery. Sara Newton Cohron had a distinguished career of her own. She was a very accomplished teacher in St. Louis and East St. Louis, and she continued to teach even after she was married. She was also a delegate to the Berean Baptist Sunday School Convention. She had what was essentially a prenuptial agreement for her second marriage in 1891, to Rev. John Lewis Cohron. Sarah Woodson Newton Cohron was also a founder of the Louis Colored Orphans' Home (which is now Annie Malone Family Services in St. Louis).

Vintage Voices and The Hayner Public Library District worked with Gent Funeral Home, who generously donated a marker for the Newtons' graves. While the marker was placed in the cemetery in September 2022, the dedication ceremony is planned for June 2023 to coincide with the 150th anniversary of Prof. Charles Newton's graduation from Alton High School. The Hayner Public Library District, Vintage Voices, Union Baptist Church, the Alton School District, the Alton Black Alumni Association, and other community organizations will be part of this important dedication. Jared Hennings and Velva Parker will reprise their roles as the Newtons. We hope you will join us!

New Book Drop Outside Alton Square Mall

We are delighted to announce that The Hayner Public Library District has installed an outdoor book drop at our Alton Square Mall location! It's placed outside the mall at the Ross/post office first floor entrance.

Materials returned in the drop box during the day will be collected and checked in that afternoon, while those returned in the drop box after 5 pm will be checked in the next morning and back-dated to reflect the previous day's return date. If you are coming to the library to pick up additional materials, please bring returns to the book drop inside the mall, to the left of the library doors.

The outdoor book drop will be closed on extended holidays (such as Thanksgiving and Christmas). However, the book drop by the library entrance will remain open. We anticipate this will be a great convenience to those of you who want to return materials with just a quick stop. The book drop at the Downtown Library is also still available for your use, to the left of the entrance at 326 Belle Street, Alton.

Hayner Library Newsletter Digitization Project

The Genealogy & Local History Library is starting a project to digitize all the Hayner Library newsletters and make them available (and searchable!) on archive.org. However, there are several we do not have in our possession. If you've saved any of these Hayner Library newsletters over the years, please consider bringing them to the library for our project! We'll certainly take donations, but if it's a newsletter you'd like to keep, we can also digitize it and return it to you.

We are currently seeking the following issues:

1993 – Spring, Summer, Fall
1994 – Summer
1995 – Spring, Summer, Fall
1996 – Spring, Summer, Fall, Winter
1997 – Spring, Fall, Winter
1998 – Spring
1999 – Spring

If you'd like to see what the finished project will look like, newsletters from 2015-2022 are already viewable on our online collection at archive.org. We appreciate your help in preserving the heritage of The Hayner Public Library District!

When the Stars Came Out: The Story of the Mississippi River Festival

Presented by Mark Pierce

Saturday, July 15, 10 am

To be presented at the Genealogy & Local History Library at 401 State Street, Alton.

Join us as author Mark Pierce discusses his new book, When the Stars Came Out: Stories of the Mississippi River Festival! In the summer of 1969, the Mississippi River Festival (MRF) kicked off on the campus of Southern Illinois University Edwardsville. Over the next twelve turbulent summers, the outdoor concert series attracted more than a million fans, showcased the talents of hundreds of legendary performers (including The Who, Bob Dylan, the Grateful Dead, the Eagles, and Janis Joplin), and created countless memories among the artists, fans, and workers who called the MRF their summer home.

Pierce has been a journalist and corporate communications leader in the St. Louis area for more than thirty years. A graduate of Southern Illinois University Edwardsville, his love of music and connections with many pivotal players in the MRF story served as inspiration for the new book, which was written with Jack Twesten and former festival director Lyle Ward. Pierce will be sharing stories he collected during his research and will have the copies of When the Stars Came Out for sale after the presentation!

Seating is limited. Please register at 1-800-613-3163.

Hayner Library Announces Quarterly Fine Amnesty Program

The Hayner Public Library District is happy to announce two new fine amnesty programs during the year. In addition to our "Food for Fido" and "Food for Fines" amnesty programs, which take place in April and October respectively, we will also hold "Cold but Kind" in January and "Supplies for Summer" in July!

For "Supplies for Summer", patrons can bring in personal hygiene products such as soap, shampoo, toothpaste, toothbrushes, deodorant, hand lotion, etc. when returning overdue Hayner Library items. These items will be donated to the Alton School District and Crisis Food Center and patrons' fines will be waived. For "Cold but Kind", patrons can bring in cold weather clothing such as stocking caps, socks, gloves, and scarves when returning overdue Hayner Library items. These items will be donated to the Crisis Food center and patrons' fines will be waived. As with our "Food for Fido" and "Food for Fines" programs, "Supplies for Summer" and "Cold but Kind" items must be donated at the same time the overdue Hayner Library items are returned.

The benefits of this program are threefold: patrons with long-overdue library items benefit from a quarterly fine amnesty program (January, April, July, and October); overdue library materials make their way back to the library so that they can be enjoyed by other library patrons; and organizations such as the Alton Area Animal Aid Association (5 A's) and Crisis Food Center can benefit from our patrons' generosity. It's a win-win for everyone!

Second Annual Hayner Library Local Author Book Fair: Saturday, December 9

Just in time for the holiday season, The Hayner Public Library District will host our second annual Local Author Book Fair on Saturday, December 9, from noon to 3:00 p.m., at Alton Square Mall. Meet local authors, buy their books, and have them signed!

The event will also feature library card registration, a showcase of non-traditional library materials available in our collection, a prize drawing, and other library highlights. There will be activities and story times for the kids, and Frosty the Snowman will even be on hand to spread some winter cheer!

You can browse and make purchases—and be sure to leave some time to explore Hayner Library at Alton Square Mall and the other great mall businesses.

Authors, this will be an excellent opportunity to introduce your books to your friends and neighbors.

Patrons, find a new favorite author and stock up on books to keep you entertained during the cold winter nights. There will undoubtedly be titles for everyone on your holiday shopping list—and even a stocking stuffer or two!

If you are an author with books to sell, reserve a table by calling Mary Cordes at (618) 433-2877 or email mary.cordes@haynerlibrary.org. The library will provide tables and tablecloths for authors. Authors can bring promotional materials and books to sell. Authors are responsible for bringing their own banking supplies. Authors should plan to arrive at 11:00 a.m. to set up their tables. There is a limit of twenty-five tables, first come, first served. The last day to register for a table is Wednesday, November 22.

Last year's inaugural event was great fun. Please join us—bring the family and support local writers!

Young patrons in the program were offered weekly story times, crafts, and performances and were rewarded for their reading with weekly prizes and prize tickets for a chance to win the grand prize drawings.

Participants were invited to the End-of-the-Summer Reading Party, where they were entertained by our Summer Reading program land shark, Circus Kaput's Balloon Artist Oz, a prize table provided by our friends at First Community Bank, and an impromptu story and dance party with the KidsSpace staff! Children also received a free book, a participation certificate, a ticket to a River Dragons baseball game (also provided by our friends at First Community Bank), and a sweet treat to take home. Winners of the three big prizes were: William A., who won the children's STEM activity set; Gia L., who won the $100 gift card to the St. Louis Aquarium; and Josh C., who won the water table playset. Teen Summer Reading Program 2023 Recap
"Oceans of Possibilities"

The 2023 Teen Summer Reading Program, "Oceans of Possibilities," challenged teens to keep their books open over the summer. We asked teens to go virtual using either the Beanstack app or the Beanstack website. Participants won weekly prizes for their diligent reading and were asked to participate in challenges, which allowed them to earn tickets for a chance to win the grand prize basket. At the end of the five-week program, participants were invited to iMerge for an afternoon of fun and games. Participants were also given a certificate, a free book, and a free ticket to attend a River Dragons baseball game.

Congratulations to this year's grand prize winner, Mason S.! Mason won the grand prize basket full of books, gift cards, and themed prizes. Congratulations to all our participants for making this year's Teen Summer Reading Program so successful. We would also like to thank First Community Bank for donating the River Dragons tickets. We hope to see everyone at next year's Teen Summer Reading Program, "Read, Renew, Recycle."

Food for Fines

Hayner Library holds Food for Fines, a fine amnesty program, every October. From October 1 through October 31, patrons with overdue Hayner Library items can pay their fine with a canned food item.

Library materials must be returned with food donations, at least one food item per overdue item, and only Hayner Library materials are eligible.

The library will donate the food items to Crisis Food Center in Alton. Of course, even if you don't have fines, please feel free to donate items to help others in our community.

Perhaps you have some Hayner Library materials that got lost under the couch or behind the DVD player? Food for Fines is an excellent opportunity to return those items to the library and avoid the accrued fines. Fine amnesty is a great way to support critically important community organizations such as Crisis Food Center—and it is also an excellent opportunity to return "lost" materials to the library so that other patrons can check them out. Thank you for your support!

Vintage Voices 2023

Vintage Voices, now in its twenty-second year, will continue its tradition of guided walking tours in the Alton Cemetery on the first two weekends in October (October 7, 8, 14, and 15), from noon until 2:30 p.m. Tours will leave from the main gate of the cemetery (at Vine & 5th Streets) every fifteen to twenty minutes. A non-walking tour presentation will be held at The Lovejoy, 401 Piasa Street, Alton, on Sunday, October 15, at 5:00 p.m.

Anna Jenkins and Ron Abraham will portray Elizabeth "Mother" Clarkson (1819-1916) and William Netzhammer (1878-1959), who will discuss their opposing views on Prohibition. Mother Clarkson was a fixture in the Women's Christian Temperance Union, and William Netzhammer owned Bluff City Brewery in Alton. This is the ninetieth anniversary of the Twentieth Amendment, which repealed the Eighteenth Amendment and thus ended Prohibition.

Diana Kay will portray Lottie Coleman (1866-1939), with Annalynn Abbott and Reigh Thompson portraying Lottie's nieces Eleanor and Lottie Jaeger. Lottie Coleman ran a successful boarding house, the Myrtle Hotel, and raised four homeless children. Lottie's father fought in the Civil War, and she was an officer of the local Daughters of Veterans.

Clarence Graves Sr. (1896-1974) and Lillian Knight Graves (1897-1966) will be portrayed by Jared Hennings and Velva Parker. Clarence Graves Sr. was a World War I veteran, retired from Standard Oil Company after forty years, and then was employed by Alton Banking and Trust Co. Active in the Piasa Bird Boy Scout Council, he was awarded the Silver Beaver Award. Lillian Knight Graves was employed by the Alton Recreation Department, where she worked in the teenage center, with the senior citizens group, and as a playground director. She was also president of the Mary Hart Club and belonged to the American Legion Auxiliary. Clarence and Lillian Graves belonged to Campbell Chapel AME Church.

John Meehan will portray Joseph Gratian (1819-1897), a nationally known pipe organ builder, composer, teacher, and musician. The Gratian Organ Company built organs in Alton at St. Paul's Episcopal Church and St. Mary's Catholic Church. They also built organs in St. Louis, Missouri, and across the Midwest. Joseph Gratian invented and held patents on several improvements in organ design.

Latasha Leflore Porter will portray Pearl Singleton (1889-1971), who owned a popular restaurant at 706 Belle Street. Many of her customers were shift workers at Duncan Foundry, just down the street. Pearl Singleton was also heavily involved in the Colored Women's Unity Club and Federated Unity Club. The motto of the Colored Women's Unity Club was "Loyalty to women and justice to children."

This year marks the fiftieth anniversary of the end of direct U.S. military involvement in the Vietnam War. Sean Williams will portray Larry Julius Gholston (1945-2014), an Edwardsville High School standout athlete who went on to serve in the 11th Motor Transport Battalion, a logistics unit of the United States Marine Corps. He is buried in the Alton National Cemetery.

Anissa Reinoso will portray Mildred Ladon Leake Cunningham (1900-1970). Mildred Cunningham was an accomplished pianist and organist in Alton. She played for St. John's Church for thirty-five years and for other churches that staggered their services. She also founded a traveling gospel choir and the LaDon Henderson Repertory Company.

Mary Sargent Dodge (1846-1922) and Joseph True Dodge (1845-1930) will be portrayed by Gail Drillinger and Jeff Pruett. Captain J.T. Dodge enlisted in the Union Army shortly before his sixteenth birthday and later worked in the steamboat and railroad industries. Mary Sargent Dodge was a lifetime member of the First Presbyterian Church in Alton. She and her husband were involved in Memorial Day (originally called Decoration Day) observances in Alton. The 156th consecutive Alton Memorial Day Parade was held in 2023. The Memorial Day Parade in Alton is the nation's oldest consecutively running Memorial Day parade.

Debbie Maneke will portray Angie Rand Schweppe (1853-1923), a charter member of the Alton Woman's Home Association who also coordinated the creation of Riverview Park. Angie Schweppe was heavily involved with the Humane Society and fought for women's suffrage. A wax figurine depicting Angie Schweppe resides in the Illinois State Museum, part of a collection of 129 figures depicting outstanding women in Illinois history and donated to the Illinois State Historical Library in 1929.

Tickets are $15 for adults and $10 for students ages 6-18. Tickets for the cemetery tour can be purchased online at https://vintagevoices2023.eventbrite.com, at Picture This & More, 17 East Broadway, Alton, or at the main gate of the Alton Cemetery at least thirty minutes before the tours begin.

Tickets for the non-walking tour can be purchased online at https://vintagevoices2023nonwalking.eventbrite.com or at Picture This & More, 17 East Broadway, Alton.

The characters and themes of this year's tours were carefully selected by the Vintage Voices steering committee. Hayner Genealogy & Local History Library staff members provide research packets to the actors on the decedent they will portray. Actors write their own scripts and do a fantastic job. The Hayner Genealogy & Local History Library also serves as a repository for Vintage Voices ephemera, such as a complete set of the program booklets and many of the scripts written by actors over the years. All of these items are available to view in the library.

Proceeds from the Vintage Voices performances support the continuation of the event, upkeep of the Alton Cemetery, and various community organizations, including Hayner Library. Please come out to see our history come alive!

After each Mobile Memory Lab program, the IHLS Metadata Cataloger will attach patron-provided metadata to digitized items and upload each collection to the Illinois Digital Archives. On Saturday, October 14, an annular solar eclipse will cross North, Central, and South America. It will be visible in parts of the United States, Mexico, and many other countries. While this eclipse won't darken the skies in our area like the total solar eclipse of August 21, 2017, it will still be a fun event for the whole family. ## Wreaths Across America 2023

Wreaths Across America is a grassroots movement begun in 1992 by Maine businessman Morrill Worcester. The organization's mission, "Remember, Honor, and Teach," is carried out by wreath-laying ceremonies in cemeteries in all fifty states and beyond. The organization spreads its message about the importance of remembering the fallen, honoring those who serve, and teaching our children the value of freedom and the sacrifices made by veterans and their families through wreath-laying ceremonies and other coordinated events.

Thanks to local volunteers, this organization and its mission have been active in Alton since 2007. On Saturday, December 16, 2023, our community will participate in this year's national Wreaths Across America event. The ceremony will start at 11:00 a.m. at the Alton National Cemetery, 600 Pearl Street, Alton.

In 2022, through generous community donations, 560 wreaths were placed on the gravesites at our local national cemetery. Every dollar donated helps ensure each veteran is remembered. You can help continue this tradition by donating to Wreaths Across America, P.O. Box 181, Alton, IL 62002. The cost of each wreath is $17.00, or three wreaths may be purchased for $34.00.

For the seventh year, our local Wreaths Across America effort will offer a limited number of wreaths for families or friends to honor their veteran loved one at other local cemeteries. Wreath reservations may be made Monday, November 20, 2023, through Friday, December 8, 2023, by calling Sue Fitzgerald at (618) 530-1430.

Please support our community in carrying forward this mission to remember, honor, and teach. Join our nation in honoring our veterans, many of whom forfeited their own Christmas celebrations for all of us.

For more information, call or email Margaret Hopkins at (618) 570-8804 or Hopkins1014@sbcglobal.net. To learn more, visit the Wreaths Across America website at www.wreathsacrossamerica.org.

Learn and Explore with Online Resources

Whether you're a student, a teacher, or just love to learn, our newest online learning tools make research easy and accessible.

Explora lets you search through six separate databases in a way that's easier and less intimidating than traditional database searching. If you've used any common search engines, you'll find that Explora looks and feels familiar, with the added certainty that the information you find is trustworthy. For broader searches, Explora will provide a Topic Overview in addition to the search results to help you get started. You can also browse popular topics, save individual articles or entire searches, and organize your research into project folders to help you stay on track.

Britannica Library is an online encyclopedia containing comprehensive information for all ages. With three separate experiences—Children, Young Adults, and Reference Center—anyone can find easy-to-use, trusted information at their fingertips. Because it's online, articles can be updated at any time to keep pace with our fast-moving world. You'll also find features that aren't possible with a print encyclopedia, such as instant translation of an article into another language, listening to an article, watching videos, viewing related articles and links, and playing interactive games. To help you with your research projects, Britannica Library offers a "Ready for Research" step-by-step research guide and "How-Tos" for different kinds of projects.

For more information or a one-on-one tutorial for using either of these resources, please contact our Reference Librarian at reference@haynerlibrary.org or 618-462-0677, ext. 2845.

See the Autographed Abraham Lincoln Letter at the Hayner Genealogy & Local History Library on February 17!

On Saturday, February 17, 2024, from 8:30 a.m. to 1:00 p.m., a letter written by Abraham Lincoln and owned by Hayner Library will be displayed in the Genealogy & Local History Library. This letter, written before Lincoln became the sixteenth President of the United States, is addressed to Alton resident Simeon Ryder. Ryder was a sea captain and fisherman who moved to Alton in 1834 and opened a grocery, dry goods, and hardware business. He was also involved with the development of the Terre Haute & Alton Railroad. The Ryder Building, now housing My Just Desserts in downtown Alton, was built and owned by Simeon Ryder.

Hayner Library has had ties to Abraham Lincoln since the library's 1852 founding. In the mid-1850s, Lincoln's law partner, William Herndon, was a speaker in the Alton Library Association's lecture series. In addition to the Lincoln letter, several other Lincoln-related items in the library's collection, including a small china cup and saucer said to have belonged to former First Lady Mary Todd Lincoln, will also be displayed. The seventh and final of the Lincoln-Douglas Debates was held in Alton in 1858, and this debate was the only one attended by Mary Todd Lincoln. Abraham Lincoln and Stephen Douglas traveled to Alton from Quincy by steamboat, but Mrs. Lincoln came by train from Springfield to support her husband with their eldest son, Robert.

To give context to the Lincoln letter and Lincoln's ties to this area, at 10:00 a.m. on Saturday, February 17, historian Tom Emery will present a lecture entitled "Abraham Lincoln in Alton" as part of our Historic Preservation Lecture Series, co-sponsored by Alton Area Landmarks Association (AALA). For more information and registration instructions, please see the lecture series article in this newsletter.

Volunteer Opportunity: Reach Out and Read (ROAR)

Are you looking for a rewarding literacy-focused volunteer opportunity? If so, check out the Alton School District's Reach Out and Read (ROAR) program.

ROAR is a flexible volunteer opportunity that supports literacy in our community. The program meets before school Tuesdays through Fridays, from October 3, 2023 through April 26, 2024. Volunteers are encouraged to pick the day of the week that is most convenient in their weekly schedule. Volunteers read with one student at a time, with the student reading at their reading level. Volunteers have flexible schedules—there is no need to call the school if your schedule changes. Simply go to the school on a different morning or the next week.

ROAR uses simple strategies to help young readers. Volunteers provide encouragement and individual attention to students, help students with difficult words, talk about the stories they read, and sign the student's reading log so that the practice is counted towards the student's goal.

You can choose a school close to your heart or your home. Volunteers are needed at West Elementary and North Elementary Schools from 7:30 a.m. to 8:00 a.m. and Eunice Smith Elementary, Gilson Brown Elementary, Lewis & Clark Elementary, and Lovejoy Elementary Schools from 7:45 a.m. to 8:15 a.m.

Getting started is easy! Contact Elaine Kane at ekane@altonschools.org or (618) 433-7825 to get involved and receive an Alton Community Unit School District 11 volunteer information form.

Puzzle of the Month

Take a stroll through history while relaxing with a good puzzle. On the first Wednesday of each month, a new puzzle will be available for patrons to assemble at the Genealogy & Local History Library at 401 State Street, Alton. The puzzles will depict some aspects of local history, and most have been made especially for this program. These one-of-a-kind puzzles will vary in size and difficulty so that most adults may participate. Patrons are welcome to work the entire puzzle or just a part, leaving the finishing to others. Each puzzle will be available for just one month before it retires into the history books.

Vintage Voices: How We Bring Past to Present

In October 2024, Vintage Voices will present its twenty-third season of guided walking tours in the Alton Cemetery (sometimes referred to as the Alton City Cemetery). To date, Vintage Voices has shared 266 stories presented by 115 actors. The characters and themes are carefully selected every year by the Vintage Voices steering committee. But how does that process work? How does the committee find new decedents to portray year after year?

Vintage Voices committee members and Hayner Genealogy & Local History Library staff members keep ever-evolving lists of possible decedents. We look through published books that discuss Alton residents, such as Footprints and Echoes: From Historical Alton Area by Viola W. Voss (who is buried at Alton Cemetery), Centennial History of Madison County, Illinois, and Its People, 1812 to 1912 edited and compiled by W.T. Norton (also buried at Alton Cemetery), and 20th Century African American Leaders in Alton: Committee on Black Pioneers, Alton Museum of History and Art Exhibit Catalog. We discover interesting people in family scrapbooks, business publications, and books of veterans. We keep a file in the Genealogy & Local History Library with obituaries of interesting people we find while doing unrelated research. For example, when researching a local business or industry, we sometimes find fascinating information about the people who owned it or worked there. We even consult with current and previous sextons of the cemetery to help identify interesting people who have been buried in the cemetery and, in many cases, locate the graves themselves. Only about half of the people buried in the Alton Cemetery have gravestones, a sad but common occurrence in many old cemeteries. Sometimes, we rely on contextual information to find possible decedents. The Hayner Genealogy & Local History Library collection contains the original cemetery internment books. These books list data on when people died, cause of death, burial location, and even the undertaker and funeral home. Checking these books for burials made by African American funeral homes to find African Americans buried in the cemetery has helped us create a list of possible decedents that is more reflective of the Alton area's community. We also have cemetery books that list burials by location, and researching the names of everyone buried in one lot can give us clues about maiden names and other familial information about women who would otherwise be lost.

Once auditions have been held and actors chosen, the Genealogy & Local History staff further researches the decedents and compiles packets of relevant information for the actors on the decedent they will portray. These packets contain census records, newspaper articles, photographs, World War One and World War Two draft cards, city directory entries, maps, death certificates, information about jobs, families, service and community organizations, and anything else we discover. Actors write their own scripts, and often come up with follow-up questions for the Genealogy & Local History staff. For instance, several years ago, an actor asked for information about the Stratford Hotel in the 1930s, when the decedent he was depicting would have worked there. We found newspaper articles and ads that described everything from the meals (in 1933, lunch was fifty cents, dinner was sixty-five cents, and Sunday dinner with chicken, steaks, and chops was seventy-five cents) to the dances (in 1938 the St. Patrick's Young Men's Club held its annual St. Patrick's Day dance there) to the meetings (the Piasa Amateur Radio Club, the Alton-Wood River League of Women Voters, the Rotary Club, and so many more).

The Hayner Genealogy & Local History Library also serves as a repository for Vintage Voices ephemera, such as a complete set of the program booklets and many of the scripts written by actors over the years. All of these items are available to see in the library. IR 977.386 VIN

Proceeds from the Vintage Voices performances support the continuation of the event, upkeep of the Alton Cemetery, and various community organizations, including Hayner Library. Please come out next October to see our history come alive!

St. Louis has long been known as a city with a rich sports history. Four of the most prestigious trophies in sports are named after St. Louisans—one in chess, one in golf, one in soccer, and one in tennis. Can you name them? What about the four national football teams that started as St. Louis franchises? Did you know that in 2014, the United States Congress designated St. Louis as the Chess Capital of the United States? Can you name the two St. Louisans who teamed up to form Wimbledon's first-ever interracial mixed doubles team? What "Hollywood legend" could regularly be seen racing his Datsun at a race track in Wentzville? Learn the answers to these questions and much more as we revisit the sights and sounds of St. Louis sports memories when author and sports historian Ed Wheatley explains what makes St. Louis a contender for the "Best Sports Town in America."

Please call 1-800-613-3163 to register for this program.

Unfiltered Lens: Civil Rights and Vietnam War through the Eyes of Robert J. Ellison

Exhibition Dates: Saturday, February 17 through Wednesday, March 27, 2024

Reception: Friday, March 1, 2024, 6:00 p.m. – 8:00 p.m.

Jacoby Arts Center
627 E. Broadway
Alton, IL 62002
www.jacobyartscenter.org

Jacoby Arts Center will showcase the award-winning work of photographer Robert J. Ellison – focusing on his coverage of the Civil Rights movement and Vietnam War – during a public photo exhibition from February 17 through March 27, 2024. This exhibition is a collaboration between Lewis and Clark Community College, The Hayner Public Library District, and Jacoby Arts Center. Photos are courtesy of the Wisconsin Veterans Museum. It has been an absolute pleasure working with these organizations, and we look forward to more collaborative projects in the future.

Both the exhibit and reception are free and open to the public.

The photo exhibition, originally displayed at Lewis and Clark's Hatheway Gallery in August 2023, mimics a journey through time in 100 photographs captured by the young photographer, who was killed in action at age twenty-three when a plane he was on was hit by enemy gunfire in Vietnam in March 1968.

Robert Ellison was born on July 6, 1944, in Ames, Iowa, the son of Albert Jackson "Jack" Ellison, a lieutenant in the 11th Airborne J Division, and his wife, Monticello College alumna Miriam Kindermann Ellison (later Miriam Eaton). Ellison's great-grandfather founded the Western Military Academy in Alton, Illinois. Jack Ellison graduated from Western in 1938 and Robert followed in his footsteps, graduating in 1963. Nearly everyone of age, including two of his aunts, served in the military during World War II. In early 1945, twenty-three-year-old Lt. Jack Ellison was killed at Luzon, Philippines. Robert, six months old at the time, never met his father.

As the only surviving son of a soldier killed in World War II, Ellison was exempt from military service in Vietnam. Nevertheless, he bravely served on the front lines as a civilian photographer for Newsweek and Time, bringing captive images from overseas to the American public.

"Ellison felt compelled to record the story of American soldiers honestly," said Ralph "Bo" Jackson, Robert Ellison's cousin, whose dream has been to bring this exhibition to life in the Riverbend community.

Jackson said Ellison was one of 200,000 people who heard Martin Luther King, Jr. give his famous "I Have a Dream" speech in Washington, D.C., and was so moved that it spurred him to take an active role in the Civil Rights movement. His images follow several marches and other events throughout the 1960s, capturing the essence and energy of the times, and were published by Ebony magazine.

The Civil Rights events depicted in the display at Jacoby are the March on Washington D.C. for Jobs and Freedom, August 1963; March on Washington to End the War in Vietnam, November 1965; Selma to Montgomery March, March 1965; Murden School Segregation Protest and School Bus Protest, Crawfordsville, Georgia, June through October 1965; and Mississippi March Against Fear, June 1966. The Vietnam War categories are Preparation (Ellison practicing skydiving); Booby Trap School, also called Demolitions and Mine Warfare School; general military life; Vietnamese citizens both in rural areas and in Saigon; and the Battle of Khe Sanh.

The week following Robert Ellison's presumed death in Vietnam, Newsweek published his Khe Sanh photos. They also printed an early obituary. Twenty-nine days after Robert Ellison's plane went down, Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. was assassinated. Ebony magazine devoted their entire May 1968 issue to Dr. King, but also included a moving tribute to Ellison. "He was a young white man who lived as Dr. King hoped all white men would live—free of prejudice, full of understanding, and respectful of the rights of all men. The world mourns Dr. King. Only the few who knew him mourn Bob. We feel that Dr. King would insist that he be given this space."

Later this year, Lacy McDonald, Genealogy & Local History Library Manager, will put the photos and captions together for a limited-printing, noncirculating book that will be added to library collections at The Hayner Public Library District, Lewis and Clark Community College, the Wisconsin Veterans Museum, the Springfield Community Center (Crawfordville, Georgia), and several other repositories.

Part 1: Freedom to Equality: Black History in the Riverbend with Jared Hennings

Genealogy & Local History Library

Saturday, January 20, 10:00 a.m.

In the first of these lectures, Jared Hennings will discuss Black history in the Riverbend area, including Alton's significance on the Underground Railroad, abolitionists who fought against slavery, and local Civil Rights leaders. Hennings will mention Rocky Fork Church in Godfrey, the Elijah P. Lovejoy Monument at Alton Cemetery, Union Baptist Church, and other significant locations. He will also talk about notable Black Alton residents, such as Charles Newton, the first Black graduate of Alton High School in 1873; Scott Bibb, a former slave who battled for public school integration in Alton; Josephine Beckwith, who fought to secure equality for African American youths and adults; and jazz great Miles Davis, who was born in Alton. Hennings will bring the historical figures to life with re-enactments, stories, and song.

Jared has been a character reenactor for a number of years with Vintage Voices at the Alton Cemetery beginning in 2004. He's had similar performing experiences with the Madison County Historical Society - Chautauqua in 2018 and 2019. He's acted at Alton Little Theatre in 'Fences,' 'To Kill a Mockingbird,' 'Driving Ms. Daisy,' 'The Full Monty,' and 'Gee's Bend.' He's performed with touring companies of the Black Rep and Historyonics Theatre Co. with the Missouri History Museum.

Note: The Riverbend is part of the National Park Service's "Network to Freedom" passport program. A passport stamp honors Underground Railroad sites in Alton and Godfrey. Passport holders can have their passports stamped at the Alton Visitor Center or the Hayner Genealogy & Local History Library.

Part 2: Abraham Lincoln in Alton with Tom Emery

Genealogy & Local History Library

Saturday, February 17, 10:00 a.m.

Author Tom Emery of Carlinville will discuss Abraham Lincoln's relationship with the Riverbend. Lincoln played a key role in the economic development of Alton with his staunch support of railroads to the city, and he was involved in several fascinating legal cases in the area, including one with a New York actress who fell into an open cellar door on an Alton sidewalk. There are also many connections of Lincoln to Shurtleff College, a fixture in Upper Alton for decades, the Alton prison, and Elijah and Owen Lovejoy. Lincoln's appearances in Alton, his professional and personal relationships, and the city's importance in his political career are covered in Emery's book, Lincoln in Alton, which earned the Certificate of Excellence from the Illinois State Historical Society in 2021.

Tom Emery is a critically acclaimed freelance writer and historical researcher. Emery has compiled more than forty book and booklet titles on an array of historical topics. Articles with his byline have appeared in over 150 newspapers across the United States including the Milwaukee Journal Sentinel, Omaha World-Herald, Chicago Daily Herald, and many more.

To accompany the "Abraham Lincoln in Alton" lecture, on Saturday, February 17, from 8:30 a.m. – 1:00 p.m., the Lincoln letter to Simeon Ryder owned by Hayner Library will be on display in the Genealogy & Local History Library (a facsimile of the letter is on view at all times). Please see the cover article in this newsletter for more details.

Part 3: The Gateway Arch: An Illustrated Timeline with John C. Guenther

Genealogy & Local History Library

Saturday, March 16, 10:00 a.m.

The Hayner Public Library District's Genealogy & Local History Library welcomes author, architect, and historian John C. Guenther to discuss his new book, The Gateway Arch: An Illustrated Timeline.

The book takes a chronological look at the historical foundations of the Jefferson National Expansion Memorial, beginning in 1699 with the Louisiana Territory, with ninety historical events which led to the realization of the Gateway Arch and the latest refinements to the memorial grounds and new museum.

As Guenther writes in the book's Introduction: "As impressive as the Gateway Arch is, the story of how this monument came to be is equally remarkable. This book seeks to "connect the dots" of history, illustrating key points in time which led to the creation of the Jefferson National Expansion Memorial and the Gateway Arch. Within this context, the reader may better understand and appreciate the importance of this site, the historical events that shaped our nation, region, Missouri, and St. Louis across time, and how the Memorial and Gateway Arch grew out of these events, honoring, celebrating, and raising our awareness of them."

Architect John C. Guenther, FAIA, LEED AP holds a fellowship in the American Institute of Architects for notable contributions to the advancement of the profession of architecture in design and was a lecturer in the College of Architecture at Washington University in St. Louis, where he co-founded and taught Mid-Century Modernism in St. Louis 1930–1970. John serves as president of the Society of Architectural Historians–St. Louis Chapter. He wrote "Missouri's Architectural Treasures," published by Missouri Life Magazine; "25 Must-See Buildings in Missouri" for USA TODAY; and the introduction to The Lost St. Louis Riverfront 1930-1943, which documents the historic riverfront architecture removed in anticipation of Gateway Arch National Park.

Knitters and Sewers Needed!

Do you love knitting or sewing? At a meeting of the Hayner Library Teen Advisory Board, the teens suggested that they dedicate some of their meeting times to creating hats, scarves, and blankets for those in need in Alton and Godfrey. However, many of the teens need help learning how to sew and knit in order to make this idea a reality. If you're a crafter and would like to help our teens learn how to develop their sewing and knitting skills, please contact Megan at (618) 433-2872 or megan.dees@haynerlibrary.org.

Cool to Be Kind:
Hayner Library's Fine Amnesty Program for January 2024

Hayner Library's newest fine amnesty program, Cool to Be Kind, will take place from January 2 through January 31, 2024. During this period, patrons with overdue Hayner Library items can pay their fine with cold weather clothing items such as gloves, mittens, hats, scarves, etc.

Library materials must be returned with clothing donations, at least one clothing item per overdue item, and only Hayner Library materials are eligible.

The library will donate the clothing items to the Crisis Food Center's Nearly New shop in Alton. Of course, even if you don't have fines, please feel free to donate items to help others in our community.

Do you have some Hayner Library materials that got lost under the couch or behind the DVD player? Cool to Be Kind is an excellent opportunity to return those items to the library and avoid the accrued fines. Fine amnesty is a great way to support critically important community organizations such as Crisis Food Center—and it is also an excellent opportunity to return "lost" materials to the library so that other patrons can check them out. Thank you for your support!

From Education to Recreation, Hayner Library Has It All

When asked to name the first thing they think of when they hear the word "library," most people think of one thing: books. Yes, Hayner Library has books (approximately 185,000 of them, in fact), but we also offer so much more than that.

As you glance through the pages of this newsletter, you'll read about the programs, services, and collections offered at Hayner Library. To paraphrase the old Oldsmobile tagline, "This isn't your father's library."

On the technology front, Hayner Library offers internet access, Wi-Fi, printers, copiers, free fax service, and scanning, and our Hayner Library at Alton Square Mall study rooms are equipped with smartboard interactive displays. We also check out hotspots and laptops to Hayner Library cardholders.

Hayner Library offers a myriad of digital resources, many accessible 24/7 from home with a Hayner Library card. These resources are designed to assist patrons of all ages and interests with homework, research, and business. We also have databases for crafting, auto repair, genealogy, local history, legal forms, small businesses, readers' advisory, and much more.

Download the Cloud Library and OverDrive Libby apps and enjoy access to thousands of free ebooks, audiobooks, and digital magazines! Biblio+ (available online or through the Biblio+ app) allows Hayner Library cardholders to stream television shows and movies for free, and it's even compatible with Roku!

Yes, we still check out books, but that's not all. In addition to books, Hayner Library's collection includes audiobooks, magazines, DVDs, large print materials, music CDs, Blu-rays, read-along audiovisual materials for emerging readers, and much more. Each format is available for readers of all ages. We have recently added board games and video games to our collection, and we're excited to announce that several of our board games are available in braille editions. We've also added memory kits to our collection to help those with memory loss and their caregivers foster positive memories. We add new items to our collection every day. You can even sign up for Wowbrary (www.wowbrary.org) and receive a weekly email listing every item added to the Hayner Library collection during the week.

Our Library of Things allows Hayner Library cardholders to check out unconventional library materials, such as baking kits, tools, projectors, musical instruments, outdoor lawn games, moving equipment, a metal detector, telescopes, fishing poles, and many other fun items.

Food for Fido Fine Amnesty Program

Do you have some Hayner Library materials that got lost under the couch or in the back seat of your car? Food for Fido is an excellent opportunity to return those items to the library and avoid the accrued fines. Hayner Library's fine amnesty program, Food for Fido, will take place from April 1 through April 30, 2024. During this period, patrons with overdue Hayner Library items can pay their fine with pet food and care items.

Library materials must be returned at the same time you donate the pet care items. We ask that you bring at least one pet care item for each overdue library item. This program applies only to overdue Hayner Library materials. The library will donate the pet care items to the Alton Area Animal Aid Association (5As).

Food for Fido is a great way to support community organizations such as the 5As, and it is also an excellent opportunity to return "lost" materials to the library so that other patrons can check them out. Thank you for your support!

St. Louis: The Best Sports Town in America: An Evening with Ed Wheatley

Hayner Library at Alton Square Mall Multipurpose Room

Wednesday, April 3, 6:30 p.m.

St. Louis has long been known as a city with a rich sports history. Four of the most prestigious trophies in sports are named after St. Louisans—one in chess, one in golf, one in soccer, and one in tennis. Can you name them? What about the four national football teams that started as St. Louis franchises? Did you know that in 2014, the United States Congress designated St. Louis as the Chess Capital of the United States? Can you name the two St. Louisans who teamed up to form Wimbledon's first-ever interracial mixed doubles team? What "Hollywood legend" could regularly be seen racing his Datsun at a race track in Wentzville? Learn the answers to these questions and much more as we revisit the sights and sounds of St. Louis sports memories when author and sports historian Ed Wheatley explains what makes St. Louis a contender for the "Best Sports Town in America." Please call 1-800-613-3163 to register for this program.

Ed Wheatley is an award-winning and bestselling author, film producer, and sports historian. He is also a weekly sports contributor on a St. Louis drive-time radio program. His book, The St. Louis Browns – The Story of a Beloved Team, received numerous accolades and awards, including Sports Collectors Digest's selection as the best baseball book published in 2017. It was also the Society for American Baseball Research's 2017 Lawrence Ritter Award nominee for the best book in baseball. In 2020, the St. Louis Post-Dispatch selected his other book, Baseball in St. Louis – Little Leagues to Major Leagues, as one of the top twenty-five books of 2020. He has produced two baseball films shown on the PBS network, each receiving EMMY award nominations and a win in 2020. His films were also selected for inclusion in the prestigious National Baseball Hall of Fame's Annual Film Festivals in 2018 and 2019. His book Wrestling at the Chase, from which he produced a third PBS film last summer, also received an EMMY nomination. His newest book, St. Louis Sports Memories – Forgotten Teams and Moments from America's Best Sports Town, explains why St. Louis is the best sports town in America.

What a Wonderful World: An Evening with Mark Dvorak

Jacoby Arts Center, 627 E. Broadway, Alton

Thursday, May 7, 6:30 p.m.

Hayner Library is pleased to once again host award-winning singer and songwriter Mark Dvorak as he presents an all-ages family concert, "What a Wonderful World," at Jacoby Arts Center. Dvorak is a singer and storyteller who accompanies himself on guitar, five-string banjo, twelve-string guitar, and other instruments. He has been a Hayner Library favorite for almost two decades, and we're delighted to be presenting him again this spring for a very special family concert. Please call 1-800-613-3163 to register for this program.

In 2012, WFMT's Rich Warren, host of "The Midnight Special," named Dvorak "Chicago's official troubadour," a sobriquet previously given to Old Town School of Folk Music founder Win Stracke and later to seminal folk singer and Dvorak mentor Fred Holstein. The Folk Alliance Region Midwest named Dvorak the 2013 Lantern Bearer Award recipient, an award presented to an individual who has contributed to folk performance arts and the folk music and dance community for twenty-five years or more.

Miss Jubilee: St. Louis Jazz and Blues

Jacoby Arts Center, 627 E. Broadway, Alton

Wednesday, June 12, 6:30 p.m.

Miss Jubilee is a St. Louis band that specializes in 1920s and 1930s blues and jazz. Vocalist Valerie Kirchhoff leads the group, paying homage to the female blues singers of old, and to the rich musical heritage of St. Louis. In those days, the line between "jazz" and "blues" was often blurred, and these are the sounds that most inspire the band. Performed with joy, precision, and an infectious energy, they prove that this wonderful old music isn't ready for the museum quite yet! Put on your dancing shoes and join us for an evening of music and fun at Jacoby Arts Center!

All the News That's Fit to Print: Write Your Own Obituary with Reneé B. Johnson

Genealogy & Local History Library

Two Session Workshop: June 1 and June 22, 2:00 p.m. – 4:00 p.m.

A good obituary tells us a bit about the deceased, more than just when they were born and died but how they lived. An exceptional obituary reveals their personality and priorities; it draws us into their world for just a moment. It leaves us feeling like we know them that much more. This important document may celebrate their achievements, identify their family, and share their legacy.

So why leave the writing of such an intimate, lasting statement to someone else? Write your own obituary. Have the last word and get the dates right. Alleviate the stress for your loved ones. You are the expert on you and your life. This two-part workshop will help you consider what you want to include in your obituary, how best to convey your thoughts, and provide feedback on your draft.

Both sessions, led by Reneé B. Johnson, will be held on Saturdays, June 1 and June 22, from 2:00 p.m. to 4:00 p.m. at the Hayner Genealogy & Local History Library. A pre-session questionnaire and other materials will be sent to registered participants prior to the first session. Participants will be expected to do most of their writing between sessions.

Session 1: June 1, 2024
- Review of pre-session questionnaire
- What is an obituary and what is a legacy letter?
- How to craft the document you want

Session 2: June 22, 2024
- Considerations of placement and distribution
- Sharing and feedback

This workshop is limited to ten participants. Register now by calling 1-800-613-3163.

Our Collection Just Keeps Growing! Seed Library Available at Hayner Library

For the last few months, library staff have been busy planning and implementing a new collection for patrons: a seed library!

Our seed library is available at all three Hayner Library locations. Patrons can stop by the library and select up to six packets of seeds to take home and plant. Each seed packet is labeled with the seed variety, sowing information, and plant-specific notes.

The current seed library contains:

- Flower seeds (aster, cornflower, marigold, sunflower, and zinnia)
- Fruit and vegetable seeds (acorn squash, butternut squash, cantaloupe, cucumber, pumpkin, and zucchini)
- Herb seeds (basil, dill, oregano, parsley, and sage)

Our seed library is not just a collection, it's a community effort! We warmly encourage donations from your garden, which will enrich our seed library and provide a wider variety of seeds for all. We accept all kinds of seed donations, both commercially packaged and saved seed. If you're donating saved seed, we ask that you fill out a form providing information such as variety, collection date, contact information, and growing notes to ensure the best possible use of your contribution.

But that's not all! The Hayner Library collection is a treasure trove for gardening enthusiasts, with hundreds of books and DVDs covering gardening, farming, and other agriculture-related topics. We even have gardening kits available for checkout, complete with a sun calculator, pH analyzer, and soil thermometer, to support your gardening journey!

Whether you're a master gardener or this is your first time planting seeds, we hope you'll stop by Hayner Library and take a look at our latest offering!

Hayner Library Available for Community Outreach Presentations

Hayner Library is more than just books—and we'd love the opportunity to tell you more about the services and programs that we offer. If you belong to an organization in Alton, Godfrey, or Foster Township and you're looking for a guest speaker, please call Hayner Library Executive Director Mary Cordes at 618 433-2877 or email mary.cordes@haynerlibrary.org.

The Architecture of Lucas Pfeiffenberger

On November 14, 1834, in the town of Mudau, State of Baden, Germany, a son was born to Johann Joseph and Eva Catherine (Mueller) Pfeiffenberger. They named him Lucas.

When Lucas was a small child, Johann and Eva packed up their family and belongings and crossed the Atlantic Ocean in search of a new home in the United States. They eventually settled on a farm near Dayton, Ohio, and it was here that American life began for the Pfeiffenberger family.

At fifteen years old, Lucas began an apprenticeship in carpentry during his daytime hours and used library services in the evenings to self-study architecture and engineering. These vocations would launch him into a very successful sixty-year career. In the spring of 1857, while traveling from his home in Ohio to the goldfields of California, Lucas stopped in Alton to visit his childhood priest and school teacher, Bishop Henry Juncker. The bishop had been called to Alton to serve as the first bishop of the Catholic Diocese. During Lucas' visit to Alton, he appears to have fallen in love with the city. Instead of moving on to California, he remained in Alton and made it his home for the rest of his life.

Lucas quickly excelled in business and civic duty in his new hometown. A year after his arrival, advertisements in the local newspaper began offering his contracting services. He had also joined Alton's volunteer hook and ladder fire organization. He became the chief of that organization in 1866 and continued in that seat until 1872. In 1872, he was elected mayor of Alton, a position he dutifully served for four terms.

On November 21, 1867, Lucas married Elizabeth C. M. Mather in her parents' home on Market Street. Rev. C.S. Abbott, pastor of Saint Paul's Episcopal Church, performed the ceremony. Elizabeth was a hometown girl born and raised in Lucas' beloved town of Alton. Five sons were born to their union. Neither marriage nor children seemed to slow Lucas down in his business or community duties. In fact, it appears that his passion for business and his active role in the community inspired his sons to follow in their father's footsteps. Three of his sons assisted in the family's architectural business, one became a doctor, and all were active in community affairs, just like their father.

From his arrival in Alton until his death, Lucas Pfeiffenberger stood as a prominent figure among businessmen and political circles. But he is most widely remembered for his expert talents as an architect. His range of skills stretched far beyond stately homes, multi-storied business buildings, and exquisite churches. He was also hired to design many other less conspicuous construction necessities, such as barns, sewer systems, roofs, staircases, pavilions, porches, bridges, garages, and much more. His services included designs for additions, remodels, alterations, and even demolitions.

The Pfeiffenberger firm's main office was 102 West Third Street in Alton. However, this city was not the only location touched by Lucas Pfeiffenberger's magnificent architectural designs. The firm also had offices in Granite City and East St. Louis, but his influence stretched even further. Architect Pfeiffenberger often traveled to other cities and states to work on projects of all designs, such as a summer cottage in Iowa, a hospital in Missouri, a factory in Arkansas, and a first-class hotel in Colorado.

On the afternoon of March 16, 1918, Alton lost its beloved architect. Lucas Pfeiffenberger passed away at his home, a house he designed at 708 State Street. He was eighty-three years old and had continued to work at his architectural firm until two weeks before his passing. He left his wife, Elizabeth (Mather) Pfeiffenberger, and three sons, George D., John M., and Dr. James Mather Pfeiffenberger. Two sons, Lucas Jr. and Andrew M., preceded him in death. He was laid to rest in the Alton Cemetery.

After Lucas' death, his sons George and John continued the family business in the Alton office under the name of L. Pfeiffenberger's Sons, Architects and Structural Engineers. The business continued at the same West Third Street location until 1953, when George Pfeiffenberger turned off the lights and closed the door to the family business for the last time.

Many of Pfeiffenberger's designs continue to stand along the streets of Alton. They are testaments to the fine work of a skilled architect whose structures were designed and constructed to withstand the elements of time.

The Hayner Genealogy & Local History Library is excited to announce that a seven-year project documenting the work of Alton's most distinguished architect has been finished and is now available to use for local history, property, or genealogy research. Some of the architectural and engineering work of John and George Pfeiffenberger have also been included. The project was designed, researched, organized, and indexed by Hayner Library staff member Pam DeCourcy, with assistance from library volunteers Bette Flactiff and Ann (Morrissey) Davidson. The project began as a small file folder that held approximately twenty-five newspaper clippings regarding Lucas Pfeiffenberger and his life in Alton. That information grew into a project that now boasts over 370 individual files about the people, businesses, and industries involved with Pfeiffenberger on a business level and employed his services in some way. There is also a list of over 270 people and projects associated with Pfeiffenberger outside the Alton area. The collection spans a distance from Arkansas to Colorado. The information included in these files came from sources such as Lucas Pfeiffenberger's personal notebook, the Lucas Pfeiffenberger Papers kept at the Missouri Historical Society in St. Louis, newspaper articles, and other miscellaneous documents such as city directory listings and Sanborn Fire Insurance Maps. An individual file might have a copy of the architect's original drawing or blueprint, newspaper clippings, a handwritten note copied from the architect's personal notebook, or a combination of all these things. Indexes are provided to help locate a name or address quickly. This project is part of the Illinois Room collection and available only at the Hayner Genealogy & Local History Library at 401 State Street. It is important to note that an address in this collection does not necessarily mean that Lucas Pfeiffenberger was the original architect. The information in this collection only confirms that the persons or establishments listed on the index were involved with Pfeiffenberger on a business level and employed his services in some way.

We wish to extend a special thank you to Mr. Alan Weinberger of Alton and Mr. Mather Pfeiffenberger of Washington, D.C. During the process of this research, Alan Weinberger donated Lucas Pfeiffenberger's personal notebook to The Hayner Public Library District. The notebook lists contract and financial information for customers who hired Architect Pfeiffenberger between 1896-1906. Mather Pfeiffenberger donated family information and photos and was always available to answer questions about the Pfeiffenberger family. He is the great-grandson of Lucas Pfeiffenberger.

Supplies for Summer Fine Amnesty Program

Do you have Hayner Library materials that got lost under the couch or in the back seat of your car? Supplies for Summer is an excellent opportunity to return those items to the library and avoid the accrued fines. Hayner Library's fine amnesty program, Supplies for Summer, will take place from July 1 through July 31.

During this period, patrons with overdue Hayner Library items can pay their fine with personal hygiene products such as soap, shampoo, toothpaste, deodorant, toothbrushes, hand lotion, etc. Library materials must be returned at the same time you donate the personal hygiene products. We ask that you bring at least one product for each overdue library item. This program applies only to overdue Hayner Library materials. The library will donate the personal hygiene products to Crisis Food Center and the Alton School District.

Supplies for Summer is a great way to support community organizations such as the Crisis Food Center, and it is also an excellent opportunity to return "lost" materials to the library so that other patrons can check them out. Thank you for your support!

In the mid-nineteenth century, Missouri artist George Caleb Bingham (1811-1879) earned a national reputation for paintings that defined the American frontier for curious eastern audiences. His images focusing on life along the Missouri and Mississippi Rivers underscored the unique economic significance of these great waterways in America's western expansion. Today, several of Bingham's river scenes rank among American art's most cherished masterpieces. She has authored two books, a PBS documentary, and numerous articles on nineteenth-century art and photography. Grants and fellowships from The Smithsonian, The National Endowment for the Arts, and The Missouri History Museum have funded her research projects. # The Hayner Public Library District

Serving Alton, Godfrey & Foster Township Fall 2024

Third Annual Hayner Library Local Author Book Fair: Saturday, December 7, 2024

Just in time for the holiday season, The Hayner Public Library District will host our third annual Local Author Book Fair on Saturday, December 7, from 11:00 a.m. to 2:00 p.m. at Alton Square Mall.

Meet local authors, buy their books, and have them autographed! The event will also feature library card registration, a showcase of our Library of Things collection, a prize drawing, and other library highlights. There will also be activities and story times for the kids.

You can browse and make purchases—and be sure to leave some time to explore Hayner Library at Alton Square Mall and the other great mall businesses.

Authors, this will be an excellent opportunity to introduce your books to friends and neighbors. Patrons, find a new favorite author and stock up on books to keep you entertained during the cold winter nights. There will undoubtedly be titles for everyone on your holiday shopping list—and even a stocking stuffer or two!

If you're an author with books to sell, don't miss this opportunity. Author registration begins Tuesday, October 1, 2024. Reserve your table now by calling Mary Cordes at (618) 433-2877 or emailing mary.cordes@haynerlibrary.org. The library will provide tables and tablecloths for authors. Authors can bring promotional materials and books to sell. Authors are responsible for bringing their own banking supplies. Authors should plan to arrive at 10:00 a.m. to set up their tables. There is a limit of twenty-five tables, so act fast!

Last year's event was great fun. Please join us—bring your family and friends and support local writers!

Inclement Weather Closing Information

Winter is just around the corner, bringing the potential for snow and ice. To ensure the safety of our patrons and staff, the library may close should road conditions become too hazardous. If bad wintery weather is in the forecast, please call the library, visit the Hayner Library website, or check our social media pages before visiting one of our locations. Drive carefully!

Vintage Voices 2024

Vintage Voices, now in its twenty-third year, will continue its tradition of guided walking tours in the Alton Cemetery on the first two weekends in October (October 5, 6, 12, and 13) from noon until 2:30 p.m. Tours will leave from the main gate of the cemetery (at Vine & 5th Streets) every fifteen to twenty minutes. A non-walking tour presentation will be held at St. Mary's Middle School, 1015 Milton Rd., Alton, IL, on Sunday, October 6, at 5:00 p.m.

Gail Drillinger will portray Mary Alice McCarthy (1862 – 1950), a teacher and principal at various schools in Alton, including McKinley, Lowell, Humboldt, and Lincoln. Annalynn Abbott and Talia McDonald will portray two of her students, Sarah Brueggeman and Violet Hermann respectively. McCarthy retired from school administration to take care of her elderly mother, and she was a quiet benefactor to many organizations in Alton, including First Baptist Church, where she was a member. When she died, her will contained thirty-three cash bequests totaling nearly $100,000, largely to Alton religious, charitable, welfare, and youth organizations or institutions.

Velva Parker will portray Anna Wilkerson Gillis Johnson (1873 – 1953), a native of Sparta, Illinois, who came to Alton to be a truant officer for the Black schools. Johnson was the president of the Colored Women's Civic League, a member of the committee on Negro Women and Children in Industry, and the secretary of the Alton Branch of the NAACP. She was a member of Union Baptist Church and often was a featured speaker at church functions.

This year marks the 100th anniversary of the dedication of Camp Warren Levis, the Boy Scout camp located in Godfrey. Kevin Botterbush will portray Andrew T. Hawley Jr. (1867 – 1949) and will discuss the history of Camp Warren Levis. The Piasa Bird Council's first camping area was called Camp Hawley and was located just north of Route 100 in Godfrey. Camp Hawley became the sole property of the Boy Scouts when the deed was transferred by Andrew T. Hawley Jr. on April 1, 1924. Mr. and Mrs. George Levis funded the sale and added more land in memory of their son, Warren, who died in 1906. The council named the camp in his honor.

Debbie Maneke will portray Eleanor Mawdsley (1896 – 1972). Mawdsley was a forty-seven-year employee of the Family Service and Visiting Nurse Association and eventually became the executive director. She was referred to as the Alton area's "dean of social workers." Mawdsley was educated at Alton public schools, Shurtleff College, and Washington University. She was a long-time member of First Baptist Church, the Business and Professional Women's Club, and Zonta. In 1967, she received the Alton Exchange Club's "Book of Golden Deeds" award.

Latasha LeFlore-Porter will portray Elizabeth (Lizzie) Scott (1830 – 1905). Scott's obituary described her as "one of the best known and most respected colored residents of Alton." Scott lived in Alton for more than fifty years and worked in the home of Dr. B. K. Hart. In the 1850s, when a previously enslaved woman, Amanda Kitchell Chavers, came to Alton and a slavecatcher arrived to forcibly return her to slavery, Scott contributed to a fund to buy Chavers's freedom.

The story of Alton Sportsman's Park and the years of baseball played there will be told by three people. Archibald Daniels (1838 – 1918) was an umpire who lent his services to games played between "the Fats versus the Leans." He will be portrayed by Jeff Pruett. Jim Lieber will portray A. J. (Doc) Bushong (1856 – 1908), catcher for the world champion St. Louis Browns who played a game against an Alton team at Sportsman's Park in August 1886. The Browns won the World Series two months later. Sean Williams will portray Bill Gatewood (1881 – 1962), the first pitcher to throw a no-hitter in the Negro National League. Gatewood played for the St. Louis Giants, who played in Sportsman's Park against the Cuban Stars baseball club of Havana, Cuba, in 1916.

This year marks the 110th Anniversary of the Grandview Mausoleum at Alton Cemetery. Jake Tenberge will portray John Kremer (1853 – 1914), the first person entombed there. Kremer's funeral was held on April 8, 1914, and the formal dedication with speakers and musical selections played by a quartet took place in June. Kremer was a prominent businessman in Alton and, at one point, was president of the Alton liquor dealers' association. He had a beautiful voice and was a singer with the Maennerchor.

Mollie Stiritz (1868 – 1952), Dora Stiritz (1874 – 1951), and Julia Hochstuhl (1862 – 1934) will be portrayed by Rhonda Brown, Jean Heil, and Diana Kay. They will be visiting their brother Louis F. Stiritz's grave at the Grandview Mausoleum. Mollie Stiritz, Dora Stiritz, and Julia Hochstuhl ran the Clifton Terrace Hotel in the early 1900s. The Clifton Terrace Hotel was a beautiful resort on the Mississippi River that consisted of a twelve-room hotel and several cottages, a large kitchen, a dining room, and a dance hall. The twenty-seven-acre resort was accessible by boat, train, and automobile.

Tickets are $15 for adults and $10 for students ages 6-18. Tickets for the cemetery tour can be purchased online at https://vintagevoices.eventbrite.com, at Picture This & More at 17 East Broadway, Alton, IL, or at the main gate of the Alton Cemetery at least thirty minutes before the tours begin.

Tickets for the non-walking tour can be purchased online at https://vintagevoices.eventbrite.com or at Picture This & More at 17 East Broadway, Alton, IL.

The characters and themes of this year's tours were carefully selected by the Vintage Voices steering committee. Hayner Genealogy & Local History Library staff members provide research packets to the actors on the decedent they will portray. Actors write their own scripts and really do a fantastic job. The Hayner Genealogy & Local History Library also serves as a repository for Vintage Voices ephemera such as a complete set of the program booklets and many of the scripts written by actors over the years. All of these items are available to see in the library.

Proceeds from the Vintage Voices performances support the continuation of the event, upkeep of the Alton Cemetery, and various community organizations, including Hayner Library. Please come out to see our history come alive!

Wreaths Across America 2024

Wreaths Across America is a grassroots movement begun in 1992 by Maine businessman Morrill Worcester. The organization's mission, "Remember, Honor, and Teach," is carried out by wreath-laying ceremonies in cemeteries in all fifty states and beyond. The organization spreads its message about the importance of remembering the fallen, honoring those who serve, and teaching our children the value of freedom and the sacrifices made by veterans and their families through wreath-laying ceremonies and other coordinated events.

Thanks to local volunteers, this organization and its mission have been active in Alton since 2007. On Saturday, December 14, 2024, our community will participate in this year's national Wreaths Across America event. The ceremony will start at 11:00 a.m. at the Alton National Cemetery, 600 Pearl Street, Alton, IL.

In 2023, through generous community donations, 560 wreaths were placed on the gravesites at our local national cemetery. Every dollar donated helps ensure each veteran is remembered. You can help continue this tradition by donating to Wreaths Across America, P.O. Box 181, Alton, IL 62002. The cost of each wreath is $17.00, or three wreaths may be purchased for $34.00.

For the eighth year, our local Wreaths Across America effort will offer a limited number of wreaths for families or friends to honor their veteran loved one at other local cemeteries. Wreath reservations may be made Monday, November 11, 2024, through Sunday, December 1, 2024, by calling Sue Fitzgerald at (618) 530-1430.

Please support our community in carrying forward this mission to remember, honor, and teach. Join our nation in honoring our veterans, many of whom forfeited their own Christmas celebrations for all of us.

For more information, call or email Margaret Hopkins at (618) 570-8804 or hopkins1014@sbcglobal.net. To learn more, visit the Wreaths Across America website at www.wreathsacrossamerica.org.

Family History Tips from the Genealogy & Local History Library

Do you want to know when and where your great grandparents were born, but you can't find any birth certificates? Here are some other sources of birth information.

First, double check with your parents, grandparents, aunts, uncles, and cousins. Does anyone know who their parents were? Is a family Bible lying around at someone's house? Old school records? Military papers? A fancy marriage certificate? Did someone keep newspaper clippings about family members?

If you strike out with family, look at their death records. If there are no death records, look for obituaries or funeral home records. Was a program passed out at their funeral? Funeral home and cemetery records include whatever birth information the family knew. No death or funeral home records? Look for other newspaper articles that were written about them when they were alive.

Look for them in the U.S. census. All household members' ages plus the country or U.S. state where they were born were recorded beginning in 1850.

Look for their marriage records. Applications for county marriage licenses asked for birth information. Don't forget church membership records!

Did your great grandparents immigrate to America? Their information on the ship passenger list will include their name and, sometimes, their age. Did they go through the process to become a citizen of the U.S.? That paperwork can include where and when they were born.

Did your great grandfather sign up to serve in a local militia in the 1800s? Register for the draft in the 1900s? Were either of them a veteran with an official military service record?

Hayner Genealogy & Local History Library staff will help you learn where and how to find all of this information about your ancestors and much more! Join us at Branching Out, our genealogy classes, or contact us to schedule an individual appointment at genealogy@haynerlibrary.org or (618) 462-0677, ext. 2892.

Wrestling at the Chase: An Evening with Ed Wheatley

Hayner Library at Alton Square Mall Performance Room
Tuesday, October 15, at 6:30 p.m.

How can four simple words, "Wrestling at the Chase," stir such vivid and special memories across multiple generations? When Sam Muchnick and Harold Koplar had a chance conversation on a plane in the fall of 1958, they had no idea that their unique idea would turn into the iconic program Wrestling at the Chase. Spanning multiple generations of fans, the show's premiere in 1959 would launch a phenomenon and the onset of professional wrestling's golden years. St. Louis became the wrestling capital of the world. Today, the WWE rules television and arenas nationwide, but without the leadership and promotion of Wrestling at the Chase, it may never have reached the standing it enjoys today.

Hundreds of men and women, dressed to the nines, would be drawn ringside every Saturday night in the Khorasan Room of the opulent Chase Park Plaza Hotel while hundreds of thousands more tuned in at the stroke of nine to enjoy the spectacle. They would marvel at heroes sporting monikers such as Bruiser, the Fabulous Moolah, Gorgeous George, King Kong, and Nature Boy. Then, the next morning, a brand-new audience of thousands would tune in for the re-airing of the show. The fans loved it. Since most Americans couldn't cheer their idols in person, Sam Muchnick, the Vince McMahon of his day, brought wrestling to the living rooms across America.

Emmy Award-winning producer Ed Wheatley brings the story of professional wrestling's rise to prominence in his exciting, ride-of-a-lifetime book, Wrestling at the Chase. The book is filled with hundreds of photos, stories, and personal tales from those involved both inside and outside the ring. See how the stool's three legs (the location, the delivery, and the product) came together in Wrestling at the Chase to support nearly three decades of entertainment that still provides countless memories for past, current, and future generations. Wheatley's book became the basis for the Emmy Award-nominated film Head Over Heels – Remembering Wrestling at the Chase, recently shown on the PBS network.

Ed Wheatley is an award-winning and bestselling author, film producer, and sports historian. He is also a weekly sports contributor on a St. Louis drive-time radio program. His books documenting sports history in St. Louis have received numerous accolades, and the documentary adaptations of his books have earned him several Emmy Award nominations. Please join us for an evening filled with reminiscences that will definitely send you home with a smile.

Seating is limited. Please call 1-800-613-3163 to register for this program.

The Semples of Alton – George Provenzano, Ph.D.

Genealogy & Local History Library, 401 State Street, Alton
Wednesday, November 13, at 6:00 p.m.

In 1836, General James Semple moved from Edwardsville to Alton to take advantage of better opportunities for real estate development in what then was a very rapidly growing city on the Mississippi River. For the next fourteen years, Semple and his family lived in a large country home in Semple Town [North Alton], a residential subdivision that he platted in a picturesque setting on elevated acreage just north of Alton.

When he moved to Alton, Semple was serving as Speaker of the Illinois House of Representatives in the Illinois General Assembly. He had been elected to three consecutive terms as representative from Madison County. In two of these terms, Semple served concurrently with an awkward-looking, ambitious politician from Sangamon County named Abraham Lincoln.

While living in Alton, Semple would continue his political career: first serving as President Martin Van Buren's appointee as Charge de Affaires to Bogota, New Granada [Columbia] in South America, then as justice of the Illinois Supreme Court, and finally as U.S. Senator from Illinois. During these years, Semple also devoted considerable time and personal wealth toward demonstrating the technical and economic feasibility of a giant steam-powered locomotive that utilized large, drum-like wheels to run on a trackless roadbed—Semple's patented invention that became known as the prairie car.

George Provenzano is a historian and retired economist. He has published several articles on General James Semple, Abraham Lincoln, and Illinois before the Civil War.

Seating is limited. Please call 1-800-613-3163 to register for this program.

Grow Something Great! Free Seeds at Hayner Library

In addition to traditional items such as books, DVDs, audiobooks, magazines, and music CDs, and non-traditional library items such as telescopes, baking kits, fishing poles, projectors, tools, and other fun items in our Library of Things, Hayner Library also offers a seed library to patrons who wish to grow vegetables, fruits, flowers, and herbs!

Our seed library is available at all three Hayner Library locations. Stop by the library and select up to six packets of seeds to take home and plant. Each seed packet is labeled with the seed variety, sowing information, and plant-specific notes.

The current seed library contains:

- Flower seeds (aster, coneflower, marigold, sunflower, zinnia, partridge pea, swamp milkweed, black-eyed Susan, and lanceleaf coreopsis)
- Fruit and vegetable seeds (acorn squash, butternut squash, cantaloupe, cucumber, pumpkin, and zucchini)
- Herb seeds (basil, dill, oregano, parsley, and sage)

Our seed library is not just a collection—it's a community effort! We warmly encourage donations from your garden, enriching our seed library and providing a wider variety of seeds for all. We accept all kinds of commercially packaged and saved seed donations. If you're donating saved seeds, we ask that you fill out a form providing information such as variety, collection date, contact information, and growing notes to ensure the best possible use of your contribution.

But that's not all! The Hayner Library collection is a treasure trove for gardening enthusiasts, with hundreds of books and DVDs covering gardening, farming, and other agriculture-related topics. We even have gardening kits available for checkout, complete with a sun calculator, pH analyzer, and soil thermometer, to support your gardening journey!

It's not too early to start thinking about sowing your seeds for the spring. Whether you're a master gardener or this is your first time planting, we hope you'll stop by Hayner Library and take a look at our latest offering!

Three Photo Tips from the Genealogy & Local History Library

Google.com can help:

- Save the image of your photo in a folder on your computer.
- On the Google website, click on "Image Search."
- Drag or upload your image from your folder to the "Image Search" bar and click on "Search."

Author Denise May Levenick shares digital strategies in her book How to Archive Family Photos: A Step-by-Step Guide to Organize and Share Your Photos Digitally (IR 929.1 MAY). Her photo storage worksheet helps determine what works best for your needs.

Our February and March Branching Out genealogy classes also give us guidelines for organizing and preserving family documents and photos (paper and digital). Join our genealogy classes, or contact us to schedule an appointment for individual help at genealogy@haynerlibrary.org or (618) 462-0677, ext. 2892.

Part 1: Plotting a Future for Historic River Towns with Dean Klinkenberg
Genealogy & Local History Library, 401 State Street, Alton
Saturday, January 18, 10:00 a.m.

In the Midwest, we built our earliest communities along big rivers. Many of these places, however, have been declining for decades, even though they still have "good bones." What can we do to help our river towns turn things around? In this presentation, Dean Klinkenberg offers a brief history of the economies of river towns along big Midwestern rivers. He'll overview some forces that have hurt them, specifically, the post-WWII suburban development pattern and agricultural consolidation. He'll highlight a few communities that have breathed new life into their towns, describe assets common to many river towns today, and offer thoughts on steps that anyone in a town of any size can take to improve the place where they live.

Dean Klinkenberg has been exploring the backwaters and back roads of the Mississippi River Valley since 2007, from the headwaters in northern Minnesota to the Gulf of Mexico. His Mississippi Valley Traveler guidebooks and other nonfiction books detail local and regional histories of the people and places along the river. In addition, he writes mysteries set along the Mississippi that feature hard-luck travel writer Frank Dodge. Klinkenberg has also written for publications including Smithsonian Magazine, The National, St. Louis Post-Dispatch, and the Minnesota Star Tribune. His newest book, The Wild Mississippi: A State-by-State Guide to the River's Natural Wonders, goes deep into the river's natural history and describes 166 places where we can experience the river's world directly.

Part 2: Saving the Best of Southwest Illinois: HeartLands Conservancy
Genealogy & Local History Library, 401 State Street, Alton
Saturday, February 15, 10:00 a.m.

Laura Lyon, Vice President of HeartLands Conservancy, has decades of experience in community planning, urban design, and conservation planning and design. As part of her role, Laura leads The Mounds – America's First Cities, the effort to elevate and create the Cahokia Mounds Mississippian Culture National Historical Park or National Monument. Laura has a Master of Architecture degree from Washington University in St. Louis. She and her husband also have an architecture firm, Studio Archaeos. They moved to Alton in 2012 to restore a house in Christian Hill.

As a steward of distinctive and dynamic places of ecological, cultural, and community value, HeartLands Conservancy is southern Illinois' largest conservation nonprofit. For over thirty years, the organization has advocated for protecting important places and solutions that balance conservation strategies with economic sustainability and human well-being. Laura and her team will update us on their ongoing watershed planning, conservation work, and projects, especially the Cahokia Mounds initiative.

Part 3: Arches, Mounds, Domes, and Bucky Fuller with Benjamin Lowder
Saturday, March 15, 10:00 a.m.

World-renowned inventor Buckminster Fuller spent ten of his most productive years as a professor at Southern Illinois University. Benjamin Lowder will share the fascinating history of the miniature earth dome that Buckminster Fuller designed for the SIUE campus. He will also take us on a virtual architectural tour across Southern Illinois and St. Louis, sharing the region's rich architectural history. The triangle-faceted geometry of Fuller's geodesic domes, scattered across this region like precious gems, has also inspired Benjamin to create a series of artwork exhibited from New York to Los Angeles.

Benjamin Lowder is the Director of the Fuller Dome, Center for Spirituality and Sustainability on the Southern Illinois University campus in Edwardsville, IL. He also serves on the board of directors for the historic Buckminster Fuller Dome Home in Carbondale, IL.

A Brief History of Hayner Library

The seeds of today's The Hayner Public Library District began with the Alton Library Association, which originated in 1852 and was supported through private funding. The Association was bought at auction in 1866 by a group of "concerned ladies" of Alton when the Association began to fall apart due to indebtedness. These ladies raised the funds to pay the library's $165 debt and purchase $300 worth of new books. A corner room of the City Hall building was secured for library use. Under the ladies' management, the library prospered from the start. The ladies believed it was the library's mission to provide intellectual culture via "high grade" literature and to contribute to the social life of the city. They sponsored a series of entertainments including lectures, dramas, concerts, suppers, fairs, and more. Many of the lecturers were of national reputation and included among others Horace Greeley, George Alfred Townsend, and Ralph Waldo Emerson.

In the winter of 1888, it became apparent that the Library was outgrowing its quarters and needed its own building. That same year saw the death of Jennie D. Hayner, a major director of the Library Association. It was her husband, John E. Hayner, who purchased the lot on 4th and State Streets, then funded and built the Library as a memorial to his wife. Construction of the Hayner Memorial Library, today the Genealogy & Local History Library, was completed in 1891. The architect for the building was none other than Theodore C. Link, designer of the Union Station Railroad Depot in St. Louis, Missouri. The total cost for the building, including an annex added in 1906 by Hayner's grandson, John A. Haskell, was $33,000.

In the spring of 1901, Andrew Carnegie offered to build a Carnegie Library for the City of Alton; the offer was respectfully refused on grounds that the new Carnegie library would charge a tax on all citizens and the Alton Library was meant to be free to all Altonians. Mr. Hayner's benefaction allowed Alton citizens to enjoy the only free library in the country, wholly under the management of the ladies of the Jennie D. Hayner Library Association, previously the Alton Library Association. (Carnegie did eventually contribute to the establishment of a library for Shurtleff College in Upper Alton).

As the years progressed, the library grew dramatically. Correspondingly, the costs to maintain and staff the library escalated. In 1952, the city council voted unanimously to acquire and operate the Hayner Memorial Library as a public library. In 1972 the voters approved a referendum that established The Hayner Public Library District. This meant that the library would be run by its own governing board. Today, the District includes the Downtown Library at 326 Belle Street, the Genealogy & Local History Library in the original building, and Hayner Library at Alton Square Mall.

Cool to Be Kind: Hayner Library's Fine Amnesty Program for January 2025

Cool to Be Kind, Hayner Library's winter fine amnesty program, will take place from January 2 through January 31, 2025. During this period, patrons with overdue Hayner Library items can pay their fines with cold-weather clothing such as gloves, mittens, hats, scarves, etc. Library materials must be returned with clothing donations, at least one clothing item per overdue item, and only Hayner Library materials are eligible. Only new or very gently used (no stains or holes!) clothing items can be accepted. The library will donate the clothing items to the Crisis Food Center's Nearly New shop in Alton.

Of course, even if you don't have fines, please feel free to donate items to help others in our community. Fine amnesty is a great way to support critically important community organizations such as Crisis Food Center—and it is also an excellent opportunity to return "lost" materials to the library so that other patrons can check them out. Thank you for your support!

May is National Bike Month!

May 1 – May 31

Donate your bicycle and support the community this National Bike Month! Madison County Transit (MCT) is celebrating National Bike Month by partnering with St. Louis BWorks and local libraries to collect used bicycles for donation! Throughout the month of May, you can drop off bicycles of any condition at the Downtown Library (326 Belle Street, Alton, IL). MCT will promptly pick up donations and deliver them to BWorks, where they will be refurbished and given to those in need.

What is BWorks?
St. Louis BWorks is a nonprofit organization that empowers youth through hands-on educational programs. Their Earn-A-Bike program teaches kids bicycle maintenance and safety, rewarding them with a bike of their own upon completion. BWorks is working to expand its efforts into Madison County, offering similar opportunities to children on this side of the river.

By donating a bike, you're helping provide transportation, independence, and learning opportunities to young riders in our community. As Dr. Maria Montessori said, "The greatest gifts we can give our children are the roots of responsibility and the wings of independence."

For more information, please contact MCT at (618) 797-4600 or email info@mct.org.

Food for Fido: April Fine Amnesty Program

Do you have some Hayner Library materials that got lost under the couch or in the back seat of your car? Food for Fido is an excellent opportunity to return those items to the library and avoid the accrued fines.

Hayner Library's fine amnesty program, Food for Fido, will take place from April 1 through April 30, 2025. During this period, patrons with overdue Hayner Library items can pay their fine with pet food and care items. Library materials must be returned at the same time you donate the pet care items. We ask that you bring at least one non-expired pet food item or one new (unused) pet care item for each overdue library item. This program applies only to overdue Hayner Library materials. The library will donate the pet care items to the Alton Area Animal Aid Association (5As).

Food for Fido is a great way to support community organizations such as the 5As, and it is also an excellent opportunity to return "lost" materials to the library so that other patrons can check them out. Thank you for your support!

June is Audiobook Appreciation Month!

Whether you fill your commute with fiction, get to know famous figures while you cook, or work out to the tune of a self-help bestseller, many of us love to read with our ears. But it's not just the convenience of reading hands-free that makes audiobooks so great! We also love audiobooks because they make reading accessible, improve literacy, engage emerging readers, and help us practice our listening skills.

Hayner Library provides a number of different platforms for listening to audiobooks, both physical and digital:

Libby & CloudLibrary – Libby and CloudLibrary are apps that allow you to borrow e-books and audiobooks with your library card! Libby is available for iOS, Android, and Amazon Fire tablets. CloudLibrary is available for iOS, Google, and Amazon Fire tablets. Just search your app store for "Libby" or "CloudLibrary" to get started.

Audiobooks on CD & Playaways – Playaways are media players that are pre-loaded with an audiobook. No internet required! Just plug in to headphones or any sound system with an AUX cable to start listening. You'll find audiobook CDs and Playaways at both the Downtown and Alton Square Mall locations of Hayner Library.

Each of these platforms and formats includes audiobooks for kids, teens, and adults, so the whole family can get in on the fun!

If you have questions about audiobooks or how to use any of the platforms listed above, please reach out to reference@haynerlibrary.org or call (618) 462-0677, ext. 2845.

Adventures with Audubon — Brian "Fox" Ellis

Genealogy & Local History Library, 401 State Street, Alton, IL
Friday, April 11, 6:30 p.m. - 7:30 p.m.

Spend an hour in the studio of one of America's greatest naturalists and wildlife artists. Listen to tales of his adventures as he finishes something no one has ever accomplished before: drawing every bird in North America. John James Audubon will enchant you with stories of his travels and travails in the wildest places on the planet. He will celebrate the natural history of North America as he saw it in the early 1800s. Audubon will bring to life bird behavior, focusing on the birds you are most likely to see as you go bird watching in this area. With lessons on field ecology, the scientific method, art history, and bird migration, the audience is invited to imitate birds and discuss the life histories of their favorite feathered friends.

Storyteller Brian "Fox" Ellis portrays Audubon in these entertaining and meticulously researched monologues drawing from Audubon's journals, essays, and letters to his friends and colleagues. This program was developed with a grant from the USFWS as part of their celebration of the 100th anniversary of the National Wildlife Refuge System. Fox has performed as Audubon in museums, nature centers, schools, and libraries across the United States, including Audubon's home in Henderson, Kentucky.

This event is made possible through The Hayner Public Library District's proud partnership with The Nature Institute (https://www.thenatureinstitute.org/).

Bob Dylan Tribute

Hayner Library at Alton Square Mall Performance Room
Wednesday, May 14, 6:00 p.m. – 7:30 p.m.

Join us for an evening featuring renowned blues guitarist Steve Vogel and iconic singer-songwriter and storyteller Bob Case. Bob was influenced by Dylan in his early teens and saw Dylan as an example of what it meant to be an artist for his generation. Traveling through the South during the Folk Revival of the 60s, Bob learned directly from country blues artists Bukka White, Fury Lewis, Sleepy John Estes, and Mississippi Fred McDowell.

Growing up in St. Louis on weekends, bluegrass and country music were everywhere to be found. Bob blended all these styles together, creating an understanding of roots music to build a musical career.

Moving to Boston in the early 1970s, Bob hooked up with slide guitarist J.B. Hutto, playing bass, touring, and recording with J.B. on the 1980s W.C. Handy Blues award-winning album Keeper of The Flame.

What Bob Case knows he learned directly from the artist who created it. During this time, Dylan's music was a musical stew of traditional roots music, rock 'n' roll, country, gospel, and pop. Simultaneously, his song ideas addressed the perplexities of our time with questions and ideas that needed to be answered. Bob Dylan was a major influence on all of us!

Please call 1-800-613-3163 to register for this program.

Supplies for Summer Fine Amnesty Program

Do you have Hayner Library materials that got lost under the couch or in the back seat of your car? Supplies for Summer is an excellent opportunity to return those items to the library and avoid the accrued fines. Hayner Library's fine amnesty program, Supplies for Summer, will take place from July 1 through July 31. During this period, patrons with overdue Hayner Library items can pay their fine with personal hygiene products such as soap, shampoo, toothpaste, deodorant, toothbrushes, hand lotion, etc. Library materials must be returned at the same time you donate the personal hygiene products. We ask that you bring at least one unopened and unexpired product for each overdue library item. This program applies only to overdue Hayner Library materials. The library will donate the personal hygiene products to the Crisis Food Center and the Alton School District. Supplies for Summer is a great way to support community organizations, and it is also an excellent opportunity to return "lost" materials to the library so that other patrons can check them out. Thank you for your support!

Vintage Voices 2025

Vintage Voices, now in its twenty-fourth year, will continue its tradition of guided walking tours in the Alton Cemetery on the first two weekends in October: 4, 5, 11, and 12, from noon until 2:30 p.m. Tours will leave from the main gate of the cemetery (at Vine & 5th Streets) every fifteen to twenty minutes. A non-walking tour presentation will be held at St. Mary's Middle School, 1015 Milton Road, Alton, IL, on Sunday, October 5, at 5:00 pm.

Gail Drillinger will portray Jane Watson Bassett (1881 – 1968). Bassett was the head librarian of Hayner Memorial Library from 1925 to 1952. Born in Arkansas, she attended Alton public schools as a child and graduated from Miss Bristow's Boarding and Day School in Covington, Kentucky, and from the St. Louis Library School. She began working at Hayner Library several months after finishing library school and retired due to ill health twenty-seven years later.

Wendy Adams will portray Harriet Isadore Robinson (1884 – 1972). Robinson served as Director of Music and Choir Director at Union Baptist for sixty years. She also directed the Uganda Chorus. Robinson was elected to the board of the National Association of Negro Musicians and reestablished the Alton branch of that organization. For many years, she operated a beauty shop in the Commercial Building on East Third Street.

Reinhold Gossrau (1845 – 1916) will be portrayed by John Kirkpatrick. Gossrau was a prominent Alton musician and businessman. He was born in Germany and came to Alton in the 1860s, where he immediately joined the Maennerchor singing group. He later was the leader of both the Maennerchor and the White Hussar Band. He was also one of the founders of the Alton Germania Building and Loan Association.

Debbie Maneke will portray Bertha A. Neermann Yoxall (1878 – 1964), who was in charge of the ready-to-wear department of the Gates-Clark Dry Goods Co. Later in life, she married William Yoxall, Superintendent of Western Cartridge Co. Both Bertha and William set up charitable trusts that have benefitted the Alton area for the last sixty years.

Latasha LeFlore-Porter will portray Dorothy H. Scott (1914 – 2002). First Lieutenant Scott was a member of the 6888th Central Postal Directory Battalion, nicknamed the "Six Triple Eight," the first and only all-Black female unit to be deployed overseas during World War II. Scott graduated from Alton High School in 1940 and went on to Illinois State Normal University before enlisting in 1942. After the war, she taught elementary school in Alton. Scott is buried at Jefferson Barracks, but her parents, Daniel Holiday Scott and Elizabeth Julia Jenkins Scott, as well as seven siblings, are buried at Alton Cemetery.

Cary Langley Waples (1895 – 1918) will be portrayed by Caleb Kelehan. Lieutenant Waples was killed in a military aviation accident in San Antonio when he was twenty-three years old. His body is interred in the Mausoleum. Waples will talk about World War I and war horses on the Bowman and Job Farms in East Alton. More than 250,000 horses were brought in from the midwestern and western United States and shipped out of the East Alton stockyards to Europe during World War I.

Sean Williams will portray Joseph Henry Price (1854 – 1922). Price worked for library benefactor John E. Hayner, was a janitor at City Hall, and was a fireman for the lead works. Price was a Mason and was a member of the G. T. Watson Lodge No. 2 in Alton. He was a member of the Hunter Republican League Club – a local African American Hadley Club – and involved in the Alton School Case. He and his family lived for many years at 1901 Alby Street.

Virginia C. Quigley (1860 – 1944) and Alice E. Quigley (1860 – 1944) will be portrayed by Diana Kay and Jean Heil. They were twins who were never apart until Virginia died in April 1944. Alice missed her desperately and died that September. They were descendants of Cyrus Edwards, were members of St. Paul's Episcopal, travelled all over the world, and in later years lived in Loretto home on Prospect.

Tickets are $15 for adults and $10 for students ages 6-18. Tickets for the cemetery tour can be purchased online at https://www.ticketleap.events/tickets/vintagevoicestours/tours, at Picture This and More at 17 East Broadway, Alton, IL, or at the main gate of the Alton Cemetery at least thirty minutes before the tours begin.

Tickets for the non-walking tour can be purchased online at https://www.ticketleap.events/tickets/vintagevoicestours/vintage-voices-non-walking-performance or at Picture This and More at 17 East Broadway, Alton, IL.

The characters and themes of this year's tours were carefully selected by the Vintage Voices steering committee. Hayner Genealogy & Local History staff members provide research packets to the actors on the decedent they will portray. Actors write their own scripts and really do a fantastic job. The Hayner Genealogy & Local History Library also serves as a repository for Vintage Voices ephemera, such as a complete set of the program booklets and many of the scripts written by actors over the years. All of these items are available to see in the library.

Proceeds from the Vintage Voices performances support the continuation of the event, upkeep of the Alton Cemetery, and various community organizations, including Hayner Library. Please come out to see our history come alive!

Eugene Jones Baldwin: A Long Night's Journey into Day

Genealogy & Local History Library, 401 State Street, Alton, IL
Wednesday, December 10, 6:00 p.m.

Please join us for Eugene Jones Baldwin's lecture on his newly published book, A Long Night's Journey into Day. Eugene Jones Baldwin is a journalist, poet, playwright, and musician. Recent publications include A Black Soldier's Letters Home: WWII (with James Killion III), and The Genehouse Chronicles, stories of nature and people of his native Alton. His plays have been produced in New York, Chicago, and regional theaters around the country. Water Brought Us and Water's Gonna Take Us Away, commissioned by the National Park Service about the Underground Railroad in Illinois, was produced in 2002. A writer/producer for the 1990 National Tuskegee Airmen Oral History Project, Gene recently published a story in The Telegraph of Jerseyville's Tuskegee Airmen, George and Arnold Cisco.

From the author: My book was born at the funeral of civil rights pioneer Josephine Beckwith, whom I had interviewed for The Telegraph. Judge Duane Bailey approached me and told me I was going to write about the history of Alton in the fifties, a subject about which I knew nothing. I told Judge Bailey I was the wrong color. He replied, "There is no color in justice." In that same year, my great-great grandfather, William Holman Jones, a conductor on the Michigan Underground Railroad and friend of John Brown, spoke to me in a dream: "I have a story to tell." James Baldwin, whose collected works are on my nightstand, speaks to me every night. Five years and countless interviews with families of civil rights leaders later, There is No Color in Justice, a personal journey, really is finished. This is that story.

Wreaths Across America 2025

Wreaths Across America is a grassroots movement that began in 1992 by Morrill Worcester, a Maine businessman. The organization's mission, "Remember, Honor, and Teach," is carried out by wreath-laying ceremonies in cemeteries in all fifty states and beyond. The organization spreads its message about the importance of remembering the fallen, honoring those who serve, and teaching our children the value of freedom and sacrifices made by veterans and their families through wreath-laying ceremonies and other coordinated events.

Thanks to local volunteers, this organization and its mission have been active in Alton since 2007. On Saturday, December 13, 2025, our community will participate in this year's national WAA event. The ceremony will begin at 11:00 a.m. at the Alton National Cemetery, 600 Pearl Street, Alton, IL.

In 2024, through generous community donations, 560 wreaths were placed on the gravesites at our local national cemetery. Every dollar donated helps ensure that each veteran is remembered. You can help continue this tradition by donating to Wreaths Across America, P.O. Box 3081, Alton, IL 62002. The cost of each wreath is $17.00.

Once again, our local WAA effort hopes to offer a limited number of wreaths for families or friends to honor their veteran loved one at other local cemeteries. These wreath reservations may be made starting Tuesday, November 11, 2025, through Monday, December 1, 2025, by calling Sue Fitzgerald at (618) 530-1430.

The Hayner Public Library District

Serving Alton, Godfrey & Foster Township — Winter 2026

The Hayner Public Library District Considering New Building

The Hayner Public Library District, which serves the approximately 46,000 residents of Alton, Godfrey, and Foster Township, recently completed a building program developed to assist the Board of Trustees as they determine the best course of action for the District's facilities.

In April 2024, the District hired Fred Schlipf to assist in writing the building program, a comprehensive plan outlining the District's goals, requirements, and functional needs of a potential new facility. Schlipf has been a library school faculty member for over fifty years, currently serving as an Adjunct Professor at the Graduate School of Information Science at the University of Illinois Urbana-Champaign. He is the author of the book The Practical Handbook of Library Architecture: Creating Building Spaces That Work, the definitive resource for library architecture.

For nearly eighteen months, Mr. Schlipf, the Board of Trustees, and the Library's Executive Director Mary Cordes, reviewed the District's current building facilities; analyzed the District's current collections, services, and programs; interviewed library employees to ascertain the needs of each department within the Library; and reviewed the Library's mission, values, and service roles within the community.

The District's long-term lease with Alton Square Mall will end in 2028, and the Library must give Hull Property Group, the owners of the Alton Square Mall, a year's notice of the District's intention to remain at the mall or leave. Hayner Library first moved to the Alton Square Mall in 1985. The District pays over $20,000 per month, plus utilities, to rent the Alton Square Mall location. The Library is also responsible for all maintenance and repairs within the Library's mall facility.

The District's Downtown Library, located at 326 Belle Street, is no longer conducive to the ever-changing needs of a public library. The Genealogy & Local History Library, housed in the District's original library building at 401 State Street, has outgrown its space, with more room needed to house, maintain, and preserve the history of Alton, Godfrey, Foster Township, and surrounding areas. The Genealogy & Local History Library's basement also houses the Library's administrative offices, IT department, and Technical Services department; all three of these departments have outgrown their spaces.

All of these issues, combined with the Board of Trustees concern regarding the long-term viability and future of the Alton Square Mall, led the Board to perform their due diligence in considering all facility options, including the possibility of a new library building, which would combine the collections and staff of the Downtown Library and Hayner Library at Alton Square Mall into one facility, and utilize both levels of the Genealogy & Local History Library for genealogical and local history purposes.

Mary Cordes

"The Library is such a tremendous asset to the community," says Executive Director Mary Cordes. "We provide so many wonderful programs, services, and materials for patrons of all ages and interests. Having the ability to offer them all under one roof would be a game changer," says Cordes. "We have a great staff who work tirelessly to provide the best library services possible to our patrons. But right now we spend a lot of our time going back and forth amongst locations, duplicating materials, supplies, utilities, and services, and generally trying to make the buildings work when they're overcrowded and no longer fit the needs required by our patrons," says Cordes. "As great as our services currently are, I can't imagine the positive impact we could have on our community if we had one large facility."

The Board of Trustees stresses that the completion of a building program in no way guarantees that a new library building is imminent. The Board will not make such a decision until it is confident that it is in the best interest of the taxpayers of the District. "We're excited to begin work on this project," says Board of Trustees President Kevin Botterbush. "The Trustees are committed to performing our due diligence to ensure we've gathered all of the information needed to make the best possible decision for the taxpayers of our District. We want to give the residents of the District the best library possible."

The Board of Trustees voted to hire an architectural or design-build firm to assist in identifying potential building sites, creating architectural renderings, determining the cost of a new facility, facilitating public engagement, and investigating avenues of funding.

Transparency is also paramount to the Board as it moves forward with reviewing the District's facilities and the viability of possibly building a new library for the residents of the District. Every step of this process, including the hiring of Mr. Schlipf and architectural or design-build services, has been posted on the District's Board meeting agendas. The Board will also begin to seek input from community stakeholders in the future.

Hayner Library's current collection houses nearly 210,000 physical items among the three library facilities. During Hayner Library's last fiscal year, the Library circulated almost 249,000 items. As a member of the Illinois Heartland Library System, Hayner loaned nearly 60,000 items to other libraries through interlibrary loan services and received over 25,000 items through interlibrary loan. The Library answered over 6,400 reference questions, and patrons accessed the Library's computers over 22,000 times. The Library also provides a Library of Things (nontraditional library items such as outdoor games, instruments, projectors, sewing machines, telescopes, fishing rods, and much more), one-on-one tech help, programming and story times for children, adults, and teens, community resource guides, voter registration, printing, copying, faxing, and scanning services, delivery services to patrons who are unable to visit the Library due to temporary or long-term disability, several e-book and audiobook platforms, streaming television and movies, databases-including digital archives of The Telegraph, yearbooks, city directories, historical photographs of the Riverbend, genealogy and local history services, and much more.

Inclement Weather Closing Information

Winter is just around the corner, bringing the potential for snow and ice. To ensure the safety of our patrons and staff, the library may close should road conditions become too hazardous. If bad winter weather is in the forecast, please call the library, visit the Hayner Library website, or check our social media pages before visiting one of our locations. Drive carefully!

January is National Hot Tea Month

As the cold winter winds begin to blow, nothing is quite as comforting as a warm cup of tea. Whether you prefer black, green, or herbal, the soothing warmth of hot tea can bring peace, relaxation, and joy.

Did you know that January is the official month to celebrate this beloved beverage? Welcome to National Hot Tea Month—a time to honor the rich history and cultural significance of tea in our daily lives.

Starting January 5, come in, select a new read, and you will receive a "Get Cozy" bookmark with a tea bag attached. This program will be available at Hayner Library at Alton Square Mall and the Downtown Library while supplies last.

Recycle Your Outdoor Decorative Lights at Hayner Library

Friday, January 2 - Saturday, January 31

Is your basement, garage, or attic filled with tangled ropes of non-working holiday or outdoor string lights? If you've been hanging on to string lights with missing bulbs, burned-out sockets, or frayed wires because you don't want them to end up in a landfill, bring them to the library! During the month of January, drop off your old holiday or outdoor string lights at the Downtown Library or Hayner Library at Alton Square Mall, and we'll make sure they get recycled. Stop by the library, toss your lights in the recycling bin, and you're all set (maybe check out a book on your way out the door!). This program is a great way to ensure that the copper, plastic, and glass in your old lights are given a second life and don't end up in a landfill. Patrons who recycle their lights will receive an eco-friendly bookmark (while supplies last)! Please note: We cannot accept any other types of lighting except string lights.

Cool to Be Kind — Hayner Library's January Fine Amnesty Program

Cool to Be Kind, Hayner Library's winter fine amnesty program, will take place from January 2 through January 31, 2026. During this period, patrons with overdue Hayner Library items can pay their fines with cold-weather clothing such as gloves, mittens, hats, scarves, etc. Library materials must be returned with clothing donations, at least one clothing item per overdue item, and only Hayner Library materials are eligible. Only new or very gently used clothing items can be accepted (no stains or holes). The library will donate the clothing items to the Crisis Food Center's Nearly New shop in Alton. Of course, even if you don't have fines, please feel free to donate items to help others in our community. Fine amnesty is a great way to support critically important community organizations, such as the Crisis Food Center, and it is also an excellent opportunity to return "lost" materials to the library so that other patrons can check them out. Thank you for your support!

Cold Weather Crafts

A different craft will be available each month. These kits are limited and are first-come, first-served. Stop by the Circulation Desk at Hayner Library at Alton Square Mall at the beginning of each month to get yours!

Part 1: Armenian Immigration to Granite City in the Early Twentieth Century with Norma Asadorian
Genealogy & Local History Library
Saturday, January 17, at 10:00 a.m.

Armenians and other immigrants who settled in Granite City's Lincoln Place neighborhood played an important role in the development of the planned community. At the beginning of the twentieth century, the immigrant industrialist brothers Fredrick and William Niedringhaus established Granite City across the Mississippi River from St. Louis. Granite City began as an industrial town producing graniteware household items and industrial steel. The need for large amounts of cheap factory labor attracted thousands of immigrants, including Hungarians, Macedonians, Mexicans, and Armenians, among many others.

The Armenian Genocide is a significant event in modern Armenian history and prompted the immigration of many early Granite City Armenians. It continues to influence foreign relations with the Republic of Armenia and the lives and shared memories of Armenians and their descendants around the globe.

Norma Asadorian descended from Armenian immigrant ancestors who settled in the historic Lincoln Place neighborhood in Granite City. Before her retirement in 2012, Asadorian was an award-winning secondary school teacher for thirty-seven years. In the classroom, she taught a wide variety of social studies courses. She has continued her lifelong interest in history, languages, and archaeology as the founder and President of the Lincoln Place Heritage Association (LPHA). She is also a long-time Madison County Historical Society board member and works part-time for SIUE's Historical Studies Department, where she observes and evaluates student teachers.

Part 2: The Chatillon-DeMenil House with Bill Stanard
Genealogy & Local History Library
Saturday, February 21, at 10:00 a.m.

Constructed between 1851 and 1876, the Chatillon-DeMenil House illustrates the story of Franco-American, Creole culture during the Civil War, turn-of-the-century, and Roaring 20s eras in St. Louis. De Lor, Chatillon, Chouteau, and DeMenil, all names familiar to historians of the Louisiana Province of New France, figure prominently in the cultural life of the Gateway to the West.

Veteran, teacher, craftsman, sailor, and writer, Bill Stanard dedicated his career to teaching English and computer science, as well as spending countless hours building boats, enjoying the camaraderie of fellow artisans. He lives and works in St. Louis, and is the Executive Director of the Chatillon-DeMenil House.

Part 3: Immigration from German-Speaking Europe to Southwestern Illinois in the Nineteenth Century with William P. Shannon IV
Genealogy & Local History Library
Saturday, March 21, at 10:00 a.m.

Immigration from German-speaking Europe changed southwestern Illinois in the nineteenth century. Join us for an exploration of German immigration to our area. St. Clair County Historical Society Executive Director William Shannon will be your guide on this journey into history, tracing the impact of German immigrants in every facet of life in our region.

William P. Shannon IV is the Executive Director of the St. Clair County Historical Society. He also serves as the President of the Illinois State Historical Society. A native of south suburban Chicago, he now lives in Belleville.

Seating is limited. Please call 1-800-613-3163 to register for these programs. Each program requires individual registration.

Dolly Parton's Imagination Library Comes to Madison County – Free Books for Children Mailed Directly to Your Home

In January, Dolly Parton's Imagination Library was launched in Madison County, and Hayner Library is proud to be one of the local agencies that has partnered in the worthwhile cause to bring free books to young children in our county.

In 1995, Dolly Parton launched her Imagination Library to benefit the children of Sevier County, her home county in East Tennessee. The program was established as a tribute to her father, Robert Lee Parton, who never learned to read or write. Dolly's vision was to foster a love of reading among her county's preschool children and their families. Over the years, the program has expanded to all fifty states, the United Kingdom, Canada, and Australia. In February 2025, the Imagination Library celebrated gifting over 270 million books since its inception!

Reading is essential for children; it boosts cognitive development, fosters language acquisition, and strengthens emotional intelligence. Regular reading habits improve academic performance, enhance creativity, and build vocabulary. It acts as a foundation for school success, critical thinking, and empathy.

All children in Madison County, ages birth to five years old, are eligible to enroll in Dolly Parton's Imagination Library. Once enrolled, children will receive a free book in the mail every month until their fifth birthday.

Enrollment in Dolly Parton's Imagination Library is easy! To enroll, visit www.imaginationlibrary.com, click on the "Check Availability" icon at the bottom of the screen, and follow the prompts. Please be aware that the turnaround for receiving the first book is approximately six to eight weeks from registration. Each child in a family can be enrolled in the Imagination Library.

Dr. Ian Hunt: Grant and Lee, Their Appomattox to Memorialization

Genealogy & Local History Library
Wednesday, April 8, 6:00 p.m.

In the final days of the American Civil War, two military commanders from opposing sides would meet at the Wilmer McLean House in Appomattox Court House, Virginia, to negotiate the surrender of the Army of Northern Virginia. What would happen that day would not only impact the ending of the conflict but would also have a dramatic effect in the months after on how the nation would reconcile with those who had chosen to make war on the United States. This is the story of how Ulysses S. Grant both ended the war and spared his former foe, Robert E. Lee, from facing trial for treason.

Dr. Ian Patrick Hunt serves as the Chief of Acquisitions and Special Projects at the Abraham Lincoln Presidential Library and Museum, a position he has held since 2016. He began his career at the ALPLM in January 2006 as an intern conducting research on the Museum's 2006 temporary exhibit on the lives of the First Ladies entitled "Mrs. President: From Martha to Laura." Over the last two decades, Ian has held different positions as a historian with both the Library and Museum as well as its Foundation, researching the collections and their relationships to the Lincoln family and Illinois history in general.

Dr. Hunt has written frequently on the Civil War, slavery, Lincoln, and the Secession crisis and has appeared in numerous publications, including The New York Times, The Washington Post, the Chicago Tribune, and the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, as well as giving television and radio interviews both locally and nationally. He coauthored Lincoln: The Life and Legacy that Defined a Nation in 100 Objects, which was released in September 2025 and was awarded the 2025 Book of the Year prize by both the Lincoln Group of New York and the New York Civil War Roundtable. His upcoming book on the Secession crisis, tentatively titled Sectional Larceny, is being published by the University of Illinois Press and is expected to be released in 2026. He received his PhD from Southern Illinois University and, in addition, holds a master's certificate in Museum Science from the University of Missouri -St. Louis. He has consulted on numerous television, movie, and book projects, which places him in a unique position to understand the ever-changing landscape in the world of Lincolniana. ## Family Roots Pilot Program with Dr. LaKisha T. David

Genealogy & Local History Library
Saturday, April 18, 10:00 a.m. – 11:00 a.m.

This presentation introduces the Family Roots Pilot Program, which supports individuals as they engage with family history and kinship through genetic genealogy. It explains why people turn to DNA and what it can mean to bring genetic information into questions about family history, identity, and connection.

People come to DNA testing with different experiences. Some have family stories and written records, while others face gaps, silences, or missing information about their families. When records are incomplete or unavailable, it can limit what people can learn through documents alone and shape the reasons they seek DNA testing and what they expect from it. The presentation uses African Americans as a clear example to illustrate how missing records, motivations for testing, and the interpretation of DNA results often intersect in real life, helping explain why DNA often becomes part of family history conversations.

The presentation also discusses what it means to receive and use genetic results, including how those results can influence decisions, relationships, and expectations within families. It addresses privacy and consent, and why understanding the limits of DNA matters before sharing or acting on genetic information. Emphasis is placed on clear communication, responsibility, and careful use of DNA, especially given how deeply it can affect how people see themselves and their families. The session concludes by describing how this work connects to the ongoing and future efforts of the Family Roots Pilot Program. Information will be provided for interested individuals on how to request a kit online afterward.

Dr. LaKisha T. David is an Assistant Professor of Anthropology at the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign. Her work focuses on family history, identity, and kinship, with particular attention to how people engage with genetic genealogy alongside historical and social information. She is the founder of The African Kinship Reunion Repository (TAKiR) and the Principal Investigator of the Family Roots Pilot Program, which is housed within TAKiR. Through her research and public-facing work, Dr. David is committed to thoughtful and ethical engagement with genetic information and to helping individuals better understand how DNA fits into broader family stories and connections. To register, please call 1-800-613-3163. Limited seating is available.

Illinois State Historical Society Marker Dedication and Cookie Party

Jennie D. Hayner Pocket Park, 410 State Street
Saturday, May 9, 10:00 a.m. – 12:00 p.m.

The Hayner Public Library District recently received an Illinois State Historical Society marker and we invite you to join us in the Jennie D. Hayner Pocket Park for lemonade and cookies to celebrate.

The historical marker text reads:

The Hayner Public Library District

The Hayner Public Library District (then known as the Alton Library Association) began in 1852 as a subscription library. "The association is designed to be ... a permanent institution of our city, which will every year increase in means and usefulness." During the Civil War, many of the library's books were borrowed by soldiers and never returned. The Association fell into massive debt, but the women of Alton banded together to save the library. In 1866, at a public meeting, officers and directors were elected for a reconstituted Alton Library Society housed at City Hall. In 1869, a revolutionary resolution was passed requiring the board of directors to be exclusively comprised of women. Donations, parties, and lectures augmented library membership fees. Famous writers and thinkers, including Frederick Douglass, Elizabeth Cady Stanton, and Ralph Waldo Emerson, gave talks to benefit the library. In the late 1880s, John E. Hayner funded a library building as a memorial to his wife, Jennie. The directors hired architect Theodore Link to design the building. In 1891, the Jennie D. Hayner Memorial Library opened. An annex, funded by the Hayner family, was added in 1907. In 1901, thanks to an endowment by John E. Hayner, the library became a truly free library for Alton's citizens. In 1952, the Alton City Council voted unanimously to acquire and operate the Hayner Memorial Library as a public library. In 1972, voters approved a referendum that established The Hayner Public Library District, and in 1986, Godfrey and Foster Townships joined the district.

Genealogy & Local History Library
Thursday, May 21, 6:30 p.m. – 7:30 p.m.

Artistry and craftsmanship combine for an evening of learning and entertainment when Chris Jacoby of Jacoby Fine Violins joins us to discuss the fine art of violinmaking. Chris will explain how and where the violin family emerged from the tradition of lutemakers in Italy at the beginning of the sixteenth century, and how it has morphed into the world's favorite instrument over the following 475 years. Chris will bring wood, tools, and plaster casts of famous instruments for the audience to look at, as well as instrument parts and instruments in the process of being built. In an age when our email tries to write responses for us using AI, Chris will discuss why it is important to build things and follow traditions that are largely unchanged over centuries of human and societal development.

Chris Jacoby is a former board member of the Violin Society of America. As Chair of Publications, he launched their membership magazine The Scroll and served as editor for four years. He has lectured and presented at international conventions on the subjects of instrument construction and social media presence for luthiers. Chris is a longtime contributor to industry publications such as the London-based The Strad and Strings Magazine (Oakland, California), where he was the "Ask the Expert" columnist for years. After working in the United States and Europe building copies of the great Italian masters, and managing high-end restoration and repair workshops, he is happily running his own violin shop in Alton, at 11 E. Broadway, in the historic "Maker's District." His instruments are played by professionals around the world. To register, please call 1-800-613-3163. Limited seating is available.

Lee Murdock: Ballads and Waterways

Tuesday, June 16, 6:00 p.m. – 7:00 p.m.

Broadly acknowledged as "the premier interpreter of songs and tales about the Great Lakes," Lee Murdock has uncovered a boundless body of music and stories in his home region. There is a wonderful timelessness to this music. Great Lakes songs are made of hard work, difficult living, ships that go down, and ships that come in. The music is grounded in the work sound traditions from the rugged days of loggers and wooden sailing schooners. Noted as a fluent instrumentalist on the six- and twelve-string guitars, Lee Murdock's musical influences span fifteen generations, from seventeenth-century Irish harp music to Scott Joplin guitar rags, embracing the blues, freshwater shanties, original songs, and ballads. Bringing a more profound understanding of the folk process, Lee's repertoire combines historical research with contemporary insights. Making folk music for the modern era, Lee Murdock's work is an anthem to the people who live, work, learn, and play along the freshwater highways of North America and beyond. ## Food for Fido — April Fine Amnesty Program

Wednesday, April 1 – Thursday, April 30

Do you have Hayner Library materials that got lost under the couch or in the back seat of your car? Food for Fido is an excellent opportunity to return those items to the library and avoid the accrued fines. Hayner Library's fine amnesty program, Food for Fido, will take place from Wednesday, April 1, through Thursday, April 30. During this period, patrons with overdue Hayner Library items can pay their fines with pet food and care items. Library materials must be returned at the same time you donate the pet care items. We ask that you bring at least one non-expired pet food item or one new (unused) pet care item for each overdue library item. This program applies only to overdue Hayner Library materials. The library will donate the pet care items to the Alton Area Animal Aid Association (5As). Food for Fido is a great way to support community organizations such as the 5As, and it is also an excellent opportunity to return "lost" materials to the library so that other patrons can check them out. Thank you for your support!

How to Sign Up

Signing up for a library card is quick, easy, and free! Just stop by any Hayner Library location, fill out a simple registration form, and you will be ready to start using your card right away.

• Adult patrons must be residents of The Hayner Public Library District and must reside at a permanent residence within the District. Patrons are eligible for a three year library card.

• To obtain a library card, patrons must present a current photo ID with a current address listed. If the address on the ID is not current, patrons must also present a second form of documentation with the current address (example: a recent utility bill). Age eighteen and older.

• Juvenile resident library cards require a parent or legal guardian to meet the standards listed above for an adult resident library card and must sign an authorization statement on their child's registration form. The child must be present for the library card to be issued (but not renewed).

• Patrons with outstanding fines from other Illinois Heartland Library System libraries who are now eligible for Hayner Library cards must pay their fines and fees from other libraries before obtaining a Hayner Library card.

• Patrons who wish to renew their Hayner Library cards may do so as long as their Hayner Library fines and fees are less than $5.00.

Celebrate with Us

To make this September even more exciting, everyone who signs up for or renews their library card in September will receive a free library card holder!

Get Outside! A Survey of Alton Area Parks Past and Present

Get Outside! A Survey of Alton Area Parks Past and Present is an eighty-eight-page hardcover book offering one, two, and four-page photographic spreads with basic information and a brief history of the parks in active use in 2026, located in Alton, Godfrey, and Foster Township, Illinois. We celebrated the book's publication with a signing on May 23, 2026, in the Jennie D. Hayner Park.

Get Outside! is a collaborative project of the Alton High School Graphic Design Club, Reneé B. Johnson, and The Hayner Public Library District Genealogy & Local History Library. The Alton High School Graphic Design Club students made up the creative team, graphic communications teacher Lexa Browning-Needham served as project supervisor, and Reneé B. Johnson researched and wrote the book. This is the third such project, following Alton ABC, a rhyming picture book published in 2019, and Color Me Alton: Seasons, a multigenerational coloring book published in 2022.

All three publications are available at the Hayner Genealogy & Local History Library, 401 State Street, Alton. Check out the Hayner website for more details!

Supplies for Summer Fine Amnesty Program

July 1 – July 31

Do you have Hayner Library materials that got lost under the couch or in the back seat of your car? Supplies for Summer is an excellent opportunity to return those items to the library and avoid the accrued fines. Hayner Library's fine amnesty program, Supplies for Summer, will take place from July 1 through July 31. During this period, patrons with overdue Hayner Library items can pay their fine with personal hygiene products such as soap, shampoo, toothpaste, deodorant, toothbrushes, hand lotion, etc. Library materials must be returned at the same time you donate the personal hygiene products. We ask that you bring at least one unopened and unexpired product for each overdue library item. This program applies only to overdue Hayner Library materials. The library will donate the personal hygiene products to the Crisis Food Center and the Alton School District. Supplies for Summer is a great way to support community organizations, and it is also an excellent opportunity to return "lost" materials to the library so that other patrons can check them out. Thank you for your support!

Art for All with Little Free Art Libraries

Last summer, Hayner Library partnered with Jacoby Arts Center and Lewis & Clark Community College's YouthBuild to install five Little Free Art Libraries throughout Alton! Each Little Free Art Library was carefully hand-built and weatherproofed by YouthBuild students and painted by community members in collaboration with Jacoby Arts Center. They are stocked regularly with art books, art supplies, craft kits, and other artsy materials, all free to take and create with.

To provide free access to art, we need support from you! If your art supply stash is overflowing, you have an abundance of art books and craft magazines, or you'd just like to share your art with the community, please consider donating to a Little Free Art Library. The best way to donate is to drop your materials directly in a Little Free Art Library, but you may also drop off materials at Jacoby Arts Center during regular business hours. If you are donating art supplies that will melt or degrade in hot weather (glue, paint, etc.), we ask that you donate to one of our indoor Little Free Art Libraries.

The Boys and Girls Club of Alton (2512 Amelia Street, Alton, IL – outdoors)

Milton Schoolhouse (1320 Milton Road, Alton, IL – indoors)

Jacoby Arts Center (208 State Street, Alton, IL – outdoors)

Alton City Hall (101 E. 3rd Street, Alton, IL – indoors)

Olin Park (at the corner of State Street and Grand Avenue, Alton, IL – outdoors)

All the News That's Fit to Print: Write Your Own Obituary with Reneé B. Johnson

Genealogy & Local History Library
Mondays, August 3 and August 17, 6:00 p.m. – 8:00 p.m. (Two-Session Workshop)

A good obituary tells us a bit about the deceased; more than just when they were born and died, but how they lived. An exceptional obituary reveals their personality and priorities; it draws us into their world for just a moment. It leaves us feeling like we know them that much more. This important document may celebrate their achievements, identify their family, and share their legacy.

So why leave the writing of such an intimate, lasting statement to someone else? Write your own obituary. Have the last word and get the dates right. Alleviate the stress for your loved ones. You are the expert on you and your life. This two-part workshop will help you consider what you want to include in your obituary, how best to convey your thoughts, and provide feedback on your draft.

Both sessions will be led by Reneé B. Johnson at the Hayner Genealogy & Local History Library. A pre-session questionnaire and other materials will be sent to registered participants prior to the first session. Participants will be expected to do most of their writing between sessions.

Session 1 – Monday, August 3, 6:00 p.m. – 8:00 p.m.

- Review of the pre-session questionnaire
- What is an obituary, and what is a legacy letter?
- How to craft the document you want

Session 2 – Monday, August 17, 6:00 p.m. – 8:00 p.m.

- Considerations of placement and distribution
- Sharing and feedback

This workshop is limited to ten participants. Please call 1-800-613-3163 to register for this program.

Self-Care with Eileen Wolfington

Hayner Library at Alton Square Mall Performance Room
Wednesdays, August 5; September 30, 10:00 a.m. – 11:00 a.m.

Wednesday, August 5, 10:00 a.m. – 11:00 a.m. – Walking the Labyrinth
Take time to quiet your mind, self-reflect, reduce stress, and focus thoughtfully through this active form of walking meditation. Unlike a maze, which has dead ends, a labyrinth features a single winding path that leads from the outer edge to the center. Participants can choose to walk indoors on a fabric labyrinth while wearing foot covers, or they can use their finger to trace a PDF of a handheld finger labyrinth while listening to soft meditation music.

Wednesday, September 30, 10:00 a.m. – 11:00 a.m. – Introduction to Healing Touch
Gain insights into a soothing heart-centered practice that promotes balance in physical, emotional, mental, and spiritual well-being. Participants will learn the Self-Chakra Connection technique, which helps to open, connect, and balance energy centers, enhancing the flow of energy throughout the body. This non-invasive, straightforward guided practice is conducted while seated and can be performed individually or with a partner.

Please call 1-800-613-3163 to register for these programs. Please register for each program separately.

Visions of the Alton Piasa – Dr. Mark J. Wagner, Emeritus Professor of Anthropology, SIU Carbondale

Thursday, September 10, 6:00 p.m. – 7:00 p.m.

The "Alton Piasa," or "Piasa Bird," was a very large Native American painting located on the Mississippi River bluffs near Alton, Illinois. First described by Father Jacques Marquette in 1673, the painting fascinated visitors for almost 200 years, until it was quarried away in the mid-nineteenth century. Because of this, we have numerous first-hand descriptions of the Piasa Bird created by early 1800s sightseers, but they vary so widely from each other that it is hard to believe they are all describing the same images. Dr. Wagner believes that people with different visual abilities and beliefs (even Father Marquette!) were seeing what they wanted to see on the rock face rather than what was actually there. Wagner concludes that the Alton Piasa was a prehistoric Mississippian-era (1000-1500 AD) painting based on the presence of similar images dating to that time period carved on stone rock surfaces throughout southern Illinois.

Dr. Mark Wagner was the Director of the Center for Archaeological Investigations at Southern Illinois University Carbondale for many years before retiring in 2025. His major research interests include Native American rock art, the Cherokee Trail of Tears, and the historical archaeology of Illinois. From 2017-2024, he directed the SIU Archaeology Field School at the Fort Kaskaskia Historic Site in Randolph County, which discovered the remains of a previously unknown early 1800s U.S. Army fort. He is currently engaged in writing books and articles on the various discoveries he made throughout his career, including the prehistoric rock art of the state. Please call 1-800-613-3163 to register for this program.

"Journey to Freedom: Illinois' Underground Railroad" Exhibit Comes to Hayner Library

The Hayner Public Library District is thrilled to partner with Alton City Hall to co-host the large-scale traveling exhibit, "Journey to Freedom: Illinois' Underground Railroad." The Abraham Lincoln National Heritage Area, also known as Looking for Lincoln, produced the exhibit, which has spent the last several years on display throughout the state of Illinois. It will be at Alton City Hall from Thursday, October 1, 2026, to Thursday, December 31, 2026. Previous exhibit locations include the Lincoln Log Cabin State Historic Site, Bloomington Public Library, Urbana Free Library, Jacksonville Area Museum, and the Shawnee Hills Arts Council.

"Journey to Freedom: Illinois' Underground Railroad" shares the stories of freedom seekers like John and Eliza Little, who traveled barefoot from Tennessee through Illinois to Canada to gain their freedom, and conductors like Henry and Mary Ann King Brown, who helped enslaved individuals to freedom in the Springfield, Quincy, and Galena areas. Several Altonians, including Isaac Kelly, who was a deacon at Union Baptist Church and served as a conductor on the North Star Line of the Underground Railroad, are also highlighted. His route began from his home in Alton on George Street, along the Illinois River, and on to Springfield, Illinois. Visitors to the exhibit will learn more about Underground Railroad stops and routes through Cairo, Springfield, Quincy, and Chicago. Other featured communities are Brooklyn/Freedom Village, Miller Grove, Galesburg, Mount Hope, Jacksonville, New Philadelphia, and Rocky Fork.

To complement the "Journey to Freedom" exhibit, The Hayner Public Library District will offer several programs related to the Underground Railroad. Please join us on Thursday, October 1, 2026, at 6:00 p.m., for an exhibit opening and reception at Alton City Hall. On Tuesday, October 6, 2026, Connie Martin will present "Pre-Civil War Quilts: Secret Codes to Freedom on the Underground Railroad." On Tuesday, October 13, 2026, Chris Vallillo will share his musical performance "Songs of the Illinois Freedom Road." Both of these events will take place in the Hayner Library at Alton Square Mall Performance Room (upper level). On Saturday, October 24, 2026, historian Charlotte E. Johnson will give the lecture "The Underground Railroad in the Alton Area" at the Genealogy & Local History Library. For more details about these events, please refer to the Special Events section of this newsletter and the Hayner Library website. We look forward to seeing you!

"Journey to Freedom: Illinois' Underground Railroad" contributors Charlotte E. Johnson and Reneé B. Johnson authored the following piece about Rocky Fork, which you may recognize from the Hayner Library Summer 2021 newsletter and the Great Rivers & Routes website. Since Rocky Fork is featured in the exhibit, we would like to share this background information with you again:

The Rocky Fork area, a National Network to Freedom Underground Railroad site in Godfrey, Madison County, covers an area that now includes residential, private recreational lands and the grounds of New Bethel AME Church. As early as 1816, the area is believed to have been a passageway for freedom seekers. Just a year later, six slaves were registered as indentured servants by the owner of a newly established tavern/distillery at the junction of Piasa and Sugar/Rocky Fork creeks. By 1830, the area was well within the Underground Railroad route of Priscilla Baltimore. Known as "The Moses of the West," Mother Baltimore brought many through Rocky Fork and was instrumental in founding its community.

While the land was wild and a bit forbidding, it was valuable. Landowners Don Alonzo Spaulding and Andrew T. Hawley were the types of men who put their beliefs into action. They and their families were active abolitionists believed to be Underground Railroad agents. The lands they owned needed to be cleared. Their farms required workers. Both men offered freedom seekers work and the potential to acquire land.

In 1839, Mother Baltimore brought circuit-riding AME Minister William Paul Quinn to meet with the people at Rocky Fork. Rev. Quinn gathered the people together as a formal AME Church group before continuing in his westward mission. Through Rev. Quinn's efforts, a call was made for a resident spiritual leader. Rev. Erasmus Green and Mrs. Eliza Jane Green answered that call in 1857. In the meantime, more people came to the area by boat, long swim, and overland routes. They purchased land through outright cash sales and work-for-purchase arrangements. These include the Parks and Wilkenson families. By 1869, Reverend Green had helped raise the first building to house the Bethel AME Rocky Fork Church and school, the center of a community.

Wreaths Across America 2026

The National Wreaths Across America event, which began in 1992 by Morrill Worcester, will once again continue to remember the fallen, honor those who serve, and teach our children the value of freedom by placing twenty-inch live balsam wreaths on the graves of veterans.

This year marks the twentieth anniversary of this ceremony at the Alton National Cemetery. Thanks to local volunteers, this group will once again participate in the national Wreaths Across America event on Saturday, December 19, 2026, at 11:00 a.m. at the Alton National Cemetery, 600 Pearl Street, Alton, Illinois.

In 2025, through generous community donations, 560 wreaths were placed on every grave at our local national cemetery. Every dollar donated helps ensure that each veteran is remembered. You can help this tradition by donating to Wreaths Across America, P.O. Box 3081, Alton, IL 62002. The cost of each wreath is $17.00.

Once again, the local Wreaths Across America effort will offer a limited number of wreaths for families or friends to honor their veteran loved ones who are buried at other local cemeteries. These wreath reservations will begin on Veterans Day, Wednesday, November 11, 2026, and conclude on Wednesday, December 2, 2026. All of these reservations must be made by calling Sue Fitzgerald at (618) 530-1430.

The local Wreaths Across America group hopes to make the twentieth anniversary event bigger and better through your support, donations, and attendance. For more information, please call or email Margaret Hopkins at (618) 570-8804 or hopkins1014@sbcglobal.net. You can also find information on the Wreaths Across America-Alton Facebook page.

For more information about the Alton National Cemetery, the Alton City Cemetery, and many other cemeteries in Alton, Godfrey, and the surrounding areas, including cemetery maps, please visit the Hayner Genealogy & Local History Library, 401 State Street, Alton, Illinois. You can also find Madison County cemetery maps and other cemetery-related information in the Genealogy & Local History Library section of the Hayner Library website at www.haynerlibrary.org.

Food for Fines Fine Amnesty Program

Thursday, October 1 – Saturday, October 31, 2026

Do you have Hayner Library materials that got lost under the couch or in the trunk of your car? Food for Fines is an excellent opportunity to return those items to the library and avoid the accrued fines. From Thursday, October 1, 2026, through Saturday, October 31, 2026, patrons with overdue Hayner Library items can pay their fine with a canned food item. The library will donate the food items to Crisis Food Center in Alton. Library materials must be returned with food donations, at least one food item per overdue item. Only Hayner Library materials are eligible. Only non-expired, non-perishable food items are eligible for Food for Fines. Of course, even if you don't have fines, please feel free to donate items to help others in our community. Fine amnesty is a great way to support critically important community organizations such as Crisis Food Center; it is also an excellent opportunity to return "lost" materials to the library so that other patrons can check them out. Thank you for your support!

Getting Started with Reliable Research Tools

Finding information online can be overwhelming, and finding trustworthy information even more so. Hayner Library offers over fifty educational online resources—available at home or in the library—to help students, teachers, and curious people learn and explore without all the uncertainty.

Not sure where to start? We recommend two of these resources, Explora and Britannica Library, as learning launchpads.

Explora lets you search through thirty academic databases, separately or all at once, in one user-friendly interface. If you've used any common search engine, you'll find that Explora looks and feels familiar, with the added certainty that the information you find is trustworthy. For broader searches, Explora will provide a "Topic Overview" in addition to the search results to help you get started. You can also browse popular topics, save individual articles or entire searches, and organize your research into project folders to help you stay on track.

Britannica Library is an online encyclopedia containing comprehensive information for all ages. With four separate experiences–Young Children, Children, Young Adults, and Reference Center–anyone can find easy-to-use, trusted information at their fingertips. Because it's online, articles can be updated at any time to keep pace with our fast-moving world. You'll also find features that aren't possible with a print encyclopedia, such as instantly translating an article to another language, listening to an article, watching videos, viewing related articles and links, and playing interactive games. To help you with your research projects, Britannica Library offers a "Ready for Research" step-by-step research guide and "How-Tos" for different kinds of projects.

For more information or a one-on-one tutorial for using either of these resources, please contact our Reference Librarian at reference@haynerlibrary.org or (618) 462-0677, ext. 2845.

To view our full list of online resources, use the QR code or visit tinyurl.com/hayneronline. All of our subscription databases are available from home with a Hayner Library card or from a computer at any Hayner Library location.

Local History Puzzles at the Genealogy & Local History Library

Hayner patrons! Did you know that a new bespoke wooden puzzle depicting a moment in the history of the area debuts on the first Wednesday of each month at the Genealogy & Local History Library? Begun in December 2023, the Puzzle of the Month program continues!

Images for the puzzles come from the Robert K. Graul Photograph Collection from the Alton Telegraph newspaper, vintage postcards, Alton High School Graphics Club creations, and local snapshots. Typically, the 250-piece puzzles, crafted by Wentworth Wooden Puzzles with special-cut whimsies, may be completed by an adult in an hour or two. Displayed with each puzzle is a short history of the image. These one-of-a-kind puzzles are not available for checkout or purchase; however, patrons are welcome to work the puzzle for just a few minutes or until completed.

Working a jigsaw puzzle requires focus that quiets the mind, increases spatial awareness, short-term memory, and problem-solving skills, and many other healthy brain activities.

Stop by the Genealogy & Local History Library for a little brain exercise, and learn a bit more about Alton, Godfrey, and Foster Township.

Banned Books Week

Sunday, October 4 – Saturday, October 10, 2026

In 1982, schools, libraries, and bookstores experienced a surge in the number of challenges to books they carried. In response, the American Library Association (ALA) launched its first Banned Books Week, highlighting the harms of censorship and celebrating the freedom to read.

The ALA and the Banned Books Week Coalition continue to observe Banned Books Week each October. Book challenges across the country are tracked, and a list of the most challenged books from the previous year is released.

Want to learn more? Visit ALA's Banned Books Week resources to explore current censorship data, see the" Top 10 Most Challenged Books" list, and discover more about the books and stories being challenged across the country.

All the News That's Fit to Print: Write Your Own Obituary with Reneé B. Johnson

Genealogy & Local History Library
Saturdays, October 3 and October 17, 2026, 2:30 p.m. – 4:30 p.m. (Two session workshop)

A good obituary tells us a bit about the deceased—more than just when they were born and died, but how they lived. An exceptional obituary reveals their personality and priorities; it draws us into their world for just a moment. It leaves us feeling like we know them that much more. This important document may celebrate their achievements, identify their family, and share their legacy.

So why leave the writing of such an intimate, lasting statement to someone else? Write your own obituary. Have the last word and get the dates right. Alleviate the stress for your loved ones. You are the expert on you and your life. This two-part workshop will help you consider what you want to include in your obituary, how best to convey your thoughts, and provide feedback on your draft.

A pre-session questionnaire and other materials will be sent to registered participants prior to the first session. Participants will be expected to do most of their writing between sessions.

Session 1 – Saturday, October 3, 2026, 2:30 p.m. – 4:30 p.m.

- Review of Pre-session questionnaire
- What is an obituary and what is a legacy letter?
- How to craft the document you want

Session 2 – Saturday, October 17, 2026, 2:30 p.m. – 4:30 p.m.

- Considerations of placement and distribution
- Sharing and feedback

This workshop is limited to ten participants. Please call 1-800-613-3163 to register for this program.

Songs of the Illinois Freedom Road with Chris Vallillo

Tuesday, October 13, 2026, 6:00 p.m.

Songs of the Illinois Freedom Road is a powerful new musical performance featuring the songs, stories, and struggles of the Illinois Underground Railroad. The program was developed by Looking for Lincoln to be performed in conjunction with communities hosting the exhibit.

The show features rare first-person accounts of freedom seekers who passed through Illinois. Highlighted stories include John and Mary Little, who traveled on foot 140 miles to Chicago, and George Burroughs, a Black Canadian who worked on the Illinois Central Railroad, where he helped smuggle escapees to freedom.

Vallillo extensively researched the subject using primary source documents such as the 1857 slave narratives of Canada and the WPA Slave Narratives, as well as the most recent scholarship on the subject. Vallillo combines these powerful stories with eleven historic songs that were sung by the enslaved to inspire and share knowledge among themselves.

Always a project-oriented artist, in the early 2000s Vallillo began creating one-person shows using music as the vehicle to explore a subject or theme. His 2008 project, Abraham Lincoln in Song, received the endorsement of the Abraham Lincoln Bicentennial Commission and the CD reached number ten on Billboard's Bluegrass Album Chart. In 2016, his recording, Oh Freedom! Songs of the Civil Rights Movement, charted at number six on the folk charts, and the show was staged with a band and full choir at Western Illinois University. That show was videotaped and syndicated on Illinois Public Television. Please call 1-800-613-3163 to register for this program.

Entry forms will be available at all performances. After the last performance, three prizes will be awarded, including a framed commemorative print, a Vintage Voices gift basket, and four tickets to the 2027 Vintage Voices performances. Winners will be announced in the after-event press release. Whether it's a favorite character, memorable performance, or special moment, we invite fans to take a walk down memory lane with us!

Jared Hennings will portray Dr. George Samuels (1884–1970). Dr. Samuels was the first Black doctor to practice medicine in Alton, Illinois. After graduating from medical school, Samuels started a practice in Oklahoma. During World War I, he served as a first lieutenant in the medical corps before moving to Alton. He delivered legendary jazz trumpeter Miles Davis one hundred years ago, on May 26, 1926, and will share the story of Davis's life.

July 4, 2026, marked the 250th anniversary of the United States Declaration of Independence. Declaration of Independence signer Josiah Bartlett has several relatives buried in the Alton Cemetery. Gail Drillinger will portray his granddaughter, Hannah Bartlett Blaisdell (1805–1897), and Debbie Maneke will portray Hannah's daughter, Ariana Blaisdell (1842–1925). Ariana Blaisdell was a public school teacher for many years before she resigned to care for her mother. Both Blaisdells were members of the Congregational church.

Sean Williams will portray Cyrus C. Richardson (1815–882). Richardson was one of the Madison County members of the State Convention of Colored Citizens of the State of Illinois that was held in Alton in November 1856. Richardson was also one of the founding members of the African Baptist Church and Friends to Humanity (now Union Baptist Church) in 1837. Richardson's sister and brother-in-law were well-known Chicago abolitionists Mary Jane Richardson Jones and John Jones.

Jeff Pruett will portray James Smith (1846–1927). Smith will tell the history of the Parrott rifle (cannon) monument installed by the Grand Army of the Republic (G.A.R.) in 1890. Smith was a mail carrier in Alton and participated in three patriotic societies founded on service in the Union Army. He was a member of the G.A.R. when the monument was installed.

The Alton Railway and Illuminating Company purchased the land to create Rock Spring Park in 1896. Ron Abraham will portray the company's president, Joseph Franklin Porter (1863–1942), and John Kirkpatrick will portray Charles A. Caldwell (1863–1947), of the Board of Directors. Porter and Caldwell will share the history of the park.

This year marks the one hundredth anniversary of Black History Month, originally Negro History Week. Mackenzie Bridgewater will portray Lovejoy School student Ruth H. Davis (1924–1943) and Velva Parker will portray Lovejoy School teacher Dorothy Mann Jackson (1912–2001). Lovejoy School hosted numerous Negro History Week events, and Davis gave readings at several of these events while she was a student in the 1930s. Jackson taught at Lovejoy during this time, and later at Central and Horace Mann. She was the first secretary of the Alton NAACP and an active member of the Alton YWCA.

This year, for the very first time, the inside of the Grandview Mausoleum is part of the Vintage Voices tour, and guests will get to meet four of the mausoleum's residents. Helen Cora Walter (1897–1913) and Marietta Myers (1913–1921), portrayed by Talia McDonald and Reese Yates, will greet guests as they come into the mausoleum. Diana Kay as Emily M. Scharf Johnson (1887–1976) and Karen Wilson as Rose Dougherty Gray (1885–1963) will share highlights from the last twenty-five years of Vintage Voices.

Tickets are $15 for adults and $10 for students ages 6-18. Tickets for the cemetery tour can be purchased online at https://events.ticketleap.com/tickets/vintagevoicestours/walking2026, at Picture This and More at 17 East Broadway, Alton, Illinois, or at the main gate of the Alton Cemetery at least thirty minutes before the tours begin.

This year's non-walking performance will be a special event to celebrate twenty-five years of Vintage Voices, with refreshments and a reception where attendees can talk to the actors. Tickets for the non-walking tour are $25 and can be purchased online at https://events.ticketleap.com/tickets/vintagevoicestours/non-walking or at Picture This and More at 17 East Broadway, Alton, Illinois.

The characters and themes of this year's tours were carefully selected by the Vintage Voices steering committee. Hayner Genealogy & Local History staff members provide research packets to the actors on the decedent they will portray. Actors write their own scripts and really do a fantastic job. The Hayner Genealogy & Local History Library also serves as a repository for Vintage Voices ephemera such as a complete set of the program booklets and many of the scripts written by actors over the years. All of these items are available to see in the library.

Proceeds from the Vintage Voices performances support the continuation of the event, upkeep of the Alton Cemetery, and various community organizations, including Hayner Library. Please come out to see our history come alive!

Art for All with Little Free Art Libraries

Last summer, Hayner Library partnered with Jacoby Arts Center and Lewis & Clark Community College's YouthBuild to install Little Free Art Libraries throughout Alton! Each Little Free Art Library was carefully hand-built and weatherproofed by YouthBuild students and painted by community members in collaboration with Jacoby Arts Center. They are stocked regularly with art books, art supplies, craft kits, and other artsy materials, all free to take and create with. To provide free access to art, we need support from you! If your art supply stash is overflowing, you have an abundance of art books and craft magazines, or you'd just like to share your art with the community, please consider donating to a Little Free Art Library. The best way to donate is to drop your materials directly in a Little Free Art Library, but you may also drop off materials at Jacoby Arts Center during regular business hours. If you are donating art supplies that will melt or degrade in hot weather (glue, paint, etc.), we ask that you donate to one of our indoor Little Free Art Libraries.

You can find a Little Free Art Library at the following locations:

- The Boys and Girls Club of Alton (2512 Amelia St., Alton – outdoors)
- Milton Schoolhouse (1320 Milton Rd., Alton – indoors)
- Jacoby Arts Center (208 State St., Alton – outdoors)
- Alton City Hall (101 E. 3rd St., Alton – indoors)

Dolly Parton's Imagination Library Comes to Madison County — Free Books for Children Mailed Directly to Your Home

In January, Dolly Parton's Imagination Library was launched in Madison County, and Hayner Library is proud to be one of the local agencies that has partnered in the worthwhile cause to bring free books to young children in our county. In 1995, Dolly Parton launched her Imagination Library to benefit the children of Sevier County, her home county in East Tennessee. The program was established as a tribute to her father, Robert Lee Parton, who never learned to read or write. Dolly's vision was to foster a love of reading among her county's preschool children and their families. Over the years, the program has expanded to all fifty states, the United Kingdom, Canada, and Australia. In February 2025, the Imagination Library celebrated gifting over 270 million books since its inception! Reading is essential for children; it boosts cognitive development, fosters language acquisition, and strengthens emotional intelligence. Regular reading habits improve academic performance, enhance creativity, and build vocabulary. It acts as a foundation for school success, critical thinking, and empathy. All children in Madison County, ages birth to five years old, are eligible to enroll in Dolly Parton's Imagination Library. Once enrolled, children will receive a free book in the mail every month until their fifth birthday. Enrollment in Dolly Parton's Imagination Library is easy! To enroll, visit www.imaginationlibrary.com, click on the "Check Availability" icon at the bottom of the screen, and follow the prompts. Please be aware that the turnaround for receiving the first book is approximately six to eight weeks from registration. Each child in a family can be enrolled in the Imagination Library. Share the joy of reading with the children in your life—register them for Dolly Parton's Imagination Library today!

2026 Summer Reading Program Recap "UNEARTH A STORY"

This summer, young patrons of The Hayner Public Library District dug into reading during our exciting 2026 Summer Reading Program, "Unearth a Story."

Children registered through Beanstack, our online reading platform, where they logged their reading and tracked their progress throughout the summer. Our KidsSpace staff created engaging reading challenges and activities that brought the program to life. Participants enjoyed weekly story times, crafts, science activities, and live performances from entertainers including Steph Plant, Elliot the Entertainer, and Science Heroes. We even hosted our very first T. rex Tea Party, where children had a wonderful time meeting our very own T. rex!

Weekly prizes and "big prize" tickets rewarded readers for their efforts and kept enthusiasm high all summer long. To wrap up the program, children were invited to a special celebration featuring Iggy, a gigantic T. rex from St. Louis Dinosaur, along with free books and a sweet treat from Mo'z Sweet Treats. Lucky participants also took home big prizes, and one reader received a special door prize.

This year's Traveling Trophy was awarded to Evangelical School in Godfrey for its outstanding participation.

This summer's program was a tremendous success, with 253 readers logging 3,879 books read and an incredible 40,493 minutes of reading! These impressive accomplishments reflect the enthusiasm and dedication of our young readers and their families.

Thank you to everyone who joined us for a summer filled with reading, discovery, and fun. We can't wait to see you next year for our 2027 Summer Reading Program! Congratulations to all of our readers on a fantastic summer, and be sure to check out our reading challenges throughout the year for even more reading adventures.

Some social media can have a positive impact on our social and mental well-being, while other aspects of social media can have lasting and devastating effects. In this live learning experience, Lauren from A.R.C. Angels will discuss harmful aspects of social media such as addiction, negative health effects, cyberbullying, and being mindful of what we post. This program also encourages young people to think outside of the box as we discuss realistic scenarios and how to handle crises.

2026 Summer Reading Program Recap "UNEARTH A STORY"

Using Beanstack, our online reading platform, participants registered, logged their reading, and completed challenges throughout the summer. This year, thirty-five teens participated, earning 343 badges and logging an impressive 19,412 minutes of reading!

Throughout the program, teens engaged in creative activities, connected with peers, and discovered new books and genres. Our Teen Services staff worked hard to create a welcoming, inclusive space where everyone could find something to enjoy.

Participants created artifacts, explored the wonders of archaeology, enjoyed movie marathons, completed weekly Beanstack challenges, and celebrated the season with an end-of-summer party.

Congratulations to all our amazing teen participants for making this year's program such a success! We can't wait to see you next year for the 2027 Teen Summer Reading Program.

Mango Languages App

Want to learn a new language? Hayner Library now offers Mango Languages, an online resource for self-paced language learning with over seventy world languages, including ESL (English as a Second Language) and ASL (American Sign Language). Available as an app or from your desktop, Mango adapts to your unique learning style, so you can pick up on new vocabulary, intuit unfamiliar grammatical structure, and train your pronunciation, all while boosting your cultural IQ. Lessons include a mix of reading and listening activities – with native speaker audio – as well as interactive pronunciation practice that allows you to record yourself speaking and compare it with the target language audio. Similarly, the ASL course allows you to record video of yourself to practice and compare your signing and facial expressions. For young children, try Little Pim, Mango's video-based language courses featuring Little Pim, the cartoon panda. To get started, use the QR Code or search for Mango Languages in your app store. All you need is a Hayner Library card! If you are using the app, create an account, then select "Search for Free Mango" when it asks you to select your subscription. Search by location, select "Hayner Public Library District," then log in with your library card barcode number.
